THINKS WAR IN AFRICA IS SURE.

St. James' Gazette Openly Asserts There Is No Way to Prevent Armed Encounter.

DECISION NOT FAR OFF.

Crowds at Cricket Games and Preparing for Henley Boat Races Show Sports Are Popular.

CHAMBERLAIN STANDS FIRM

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE BY H. J. WHIGHAM.]

London, July 3.—In spite of the women's congress resolution in favor of universal arbitration, the tone of the conservative press is still warlike over the Transvaal. The St. James' Gazette is particularly fiery and says openly it expects war.

A great deal now depends on the next few days. The full report of the Bloemfontein conference is published and therefore the government has no longer any excuse for its waiting policy. Evidently they are far from being out of the woods, but much depends on the result of Hofmeyer's mission.

To Yield Under Pressure.

Two days after the Bloemfontein conference broke up it was cabled that Kruger intended to yield under pressure. The authority for that statement was a particular friend of President Steyn. Hofmeyer evidently relied on the good offices of the Orange Free State. So far this prediction has been carried out. If, however, this second informal Bloemfontein conference proves fruitless after the endeavors of Steyn and Hofmeyer, things will become serious.

Chamberlain Will Not Retreat.

Joseph Chamberlain took care in the House yesterday afternoon to point out that Kruger had practically made no new proposals since the conference and that all his proposals were at strong variance with those of Milner. The main feature of difference was the question of immediate representation for all uitlanders who have been residents since 1890 or before that date. Kruger desires at all costs to put off the evil day. As this question is all important, Chamberlain evidently contemplates no retreat.

Bad Weather for Cricket.

The fine weather of the last few weeks naturally disappeared for the first day of the interuniversity cricket match. It is now cold and threatening every moment to rain.

Lord's cricket ground is, nevertheless, a brilliant sight, the new stands are crowded, and there is evidently no waning in the popularity of cricket.

Henley Regatta Thursday.

Henley comes this week also, and the serious work begins on Thursday. A novelty this year is the staking off of the course, so that pleasure boats cannot interfere with the racing. A floating barrier will protect the course on both sides, and henceforth Henley will be a real race meeting, and not a picnic with only incidental boat racing. It was prophesied that these restrictions would detract from the popularity of Henley, but the contrary is likely to be the case. Fewer people, possibly, will live at Henley for a week than heretofore, but that is simply because the train service is so much better now that a majority of the spectators go down every day from town.

Outside Crews Enter.

Crews from Canada and Holland add a cosmopolitan flavor to this year's racing. The Canadians row in the center of their boat, in a direct line, with a rather short stroke like that of Cornell when they came to Henley four years ago. Eton is practically the only school crew worth anything nowadays and will easily capture the "Ladies' Plate," for which there are only three entries. There should be a good race, however, for the Grand Challenge Cup.

First Issue of Anglo-Saxon.

Lady Randolph Churchill's Anglo-Saxon Review, just published for the month of June, is a delightful magazine, although the price of one guinea is rather prohibitive. It is a relief to find a book really well printed and bound in green calf, with gold work, in these days of cheap magazines. The design of the cover is a fac-simile of the binding done for James I., who was a connoisseur of bookbindings.

Many Good Articles.

In carrying out the idea of an Anglo-Saxon Review Lady Randolph Churchill selected several American authors for the first number, including Whitelaw Reid, Henry James, and Elizabeth Robins. The best article is one by Lord Rosebery on Sir Robert Peel, in which he goes on to explain the duties of an ideal Prime Minister. Swinburne has a poem on the centennary of the battle of the Nile, but, like all his recent work, the poem is without pristine strength or command of meter. Slatin Pasha has an interesting account of the Soudan. Altogether the magazine is extremely readable.

The new magazine is a quarterly, and, being extremely expensive, at first catches popular attention, but the question of whether it can stand the test of time remains to be decided.

COURTESY TO AN AMERICAN.

"Big Ben," the Parliament Bell, Silenced for Ten Hours Owing to Mrs. Cavendish-Bentick's Illness.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE NEW YORK WORLD AND THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

London, July 3.—Had the tower of the House of Commons disappeared during the night London would not have been more surprised than it was over the fact that "Big Ben," the tremendous bell in the tower, was silent from 10 o'clock on Saturday night to 8 o'clock on Sunday morning.

"Big Ben" was silenced for ten hours out of consideration for an American woman, the wife of William George Cavendish-Bentick, who was Elisabeth Livingston.

Mr. Bentick's residence is 5 Richmond terrace, a delightful house to the right of Whitehall. There on Friday the surgeons performed a serious operation on Mrs. Bentick, which was successful, and from the effects of which she is now recovering. But on Sunday Mrs. Bentick's condition was extremely critical. Her surgeons feared the worst should she not sleep well on Saturday night. The air in her sick room vibrated when "Big Ben" near-by tolled the hours, and its deep sound racked her nerves, already at utmost tension.

So Mr. Bentick sent a message to the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Commons, of which he was for some time a member, asking him to silence the bell. "Else the sound of the bell may cause my wife's death," wrote Mr. Bentick.

So for ten hours "Bob Ben" spoke not. Mrs. Bentick went to sleep, and passed the crisis.

New York, July 3.—[Special.]—Mrs. William George Cavendish-Bentick is the daughter of Maturin Livingston of this city. She is a great favorite in London society. She and her husband are of the "Prince of Wales' set." She is of slight figure, of medium height. She has large blue eyes, a happy expression, and is most amiable. She was married nineteen years ago at Newport. Her husband was long a Conservative member of the House of Commons for Penekyn, Falmouth, and Flushing, but he was beaten by a Liberal at the last election.

Subsidy for West India Line.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, July 3.—The Secretary of State for the Colonies, Joseph Chamberlain, has sent a letter to the West India committee saying a contract has just been signed by which the government subsidizes the Jamaica Fruit and Produce association with £10,000 ($50,000) annually for five years, the association undertaking to establish a direct fortnightly fruit and passenger line of steamers, to make fifteen knots, between Jamaica and the United Kingdom, commencing May, 1900.

The association also contracts to improve the wharfage at Kingston and elsewhere, to build hotels, and to push the fruit industry. The imperial government pays half the subsidy. It is hoped the contract will be improved and the subsidized service between Canada and the West Indies will shortly be arranged for.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer then moved a resolution authorizing the issue of £865,000 ($4,325,000) from the consolidated fund. It was adopted by a vote of 223 to 101.

Luncheon to Women's Congress.

The delegates to the International Congress of Women were entertained by the London Society of American Women at luncheon at the Hotel Cecil today. Mrs. Hughes-Griffin presided, supported by the Countess of Aberdeen and Mrs. Choate.

The company included 250 guests. The Marchioness of Dufferin and Ava, Lady Randolph Churchill, Mrs. Humphry Ward, Sarah Grand, the novelist, and other prominent women were present.

Denmark Submits a Question.

The Daily Mail publishes the following dispatch from Copenhagen: "The United States government has been sounded regarding its disposition to support Denmark's efforts to secure a guarantee of her international neutrality, with special reference to any naval war in the Baltic."

Booker Washington in London.

Booker T. Washington, the colored founder and principal of the Normal Industrial Institute at Tuskegee, Ala., lectured today in Essex Hall, London, on "The Negro Problem in America." The chair was taken by Joseph H. Choate, the United States Ambassador, who introduced the lecturer.

South American Peace Congress.

The correspondent of the Times at Buenos Ayres says:

"President Roca of the Argentine Republic will visit Uruguay and Brazil about the middle of the month to invite the Presidents of those countries to meet the President of Chile here next autumn with a view of discussing the reduction of South American armaments. The Argentine government will also propose an alliance of the four republics."

Takes Over Niger Territories.

In the House of Commons today the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, submitted the proposed terms on which the government takes over the Niger company's territories. The scheme includes the revocation of the charter, the payment of £865,000, and half the proceeds from royalties on minerals exported through British territories for ninety-nine years. When the Niger territories are taken over the whole of the British west African territory will be redivided into three divisions. They will all be administered from the Colonial office, all inland customs will be abolished, and perfect freedom of trade will be permitted, except in the case of spirits.

TALK OF NEW CONCESSIONS.

Volksraad May Decide to Give the Uitlanders Additional Members.

Pretoria, July 3.—The Volksraad by a vote of 14 to 13 has decided to give an additional member for Pretoria and each district having only one member now.

Herr Fischer, the envoy of the Orange Free State, had a long interview with President Kruger on the question of the franchises today. It is expected that Herr Hofmeyer, the Afrikander leader, will join in the conference tomorrow.

At the opening of the Raad President Kruger, while urging members to stand firm on the question of the independence of the South African Republic, submitted his scheme of additional representation for the gold fields. He suggested the appointment of a commission by the Raad to confer with the Executive on the question of redistribution, but said it was useless to think about a general scheme because the people were opposed to it.

ARE PART OF UNITED STATES.

John Dillon in House of Commons Says British West Indies Will Soon Be So Declared.

London, July 3.—During the debate on the second reading of the military works bill John Dillon, nationalist member for East Mayo, objected to the proposed expenditure on the defenses at Halifax and Bermuda, adding that he firmly believed all the West Indian Islands would soon belong to the United States, as the inevitable result of the recent war.

The inhabitants of the British West Indies, Mr. Dillon said, would find they must of necessity join the United States, since nature intended those islands to form part of the United States.

"The people of the islands will ultimately say so," declared the Irish statesman, "and Englishmen would not be so foolish as to resist. If they did, they would have to advance more loans to the islands and they would soon tire of that. Do believers in an Anglo-American alliance imagine that they are promoting good feeling by erecting these fortifications?"

Kingston, Jamaica, July 3.—Kingston and Port Antonio are preparing for an informal but enthusiastic observance of the Fourth as a compliment to Florida's generous exhibition of Anglo-American sentiment on the Queen's birthday.

DREYFUS HEARS HIS STORY

EXILE TOLD WHAT TRANSPIRED IN HIS ABSENCE.

Finds It Difficult to Comprehend the Mass of Events Crowded Into the Last Few Years—Lawyers Spend Several Hours Developing New Facts—Deroulede Makes Complete Change of Front—Ravings of De Beaurepaire.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE BY GRACE CORNEAU.]

Rennes, July 3.—Dreyfus finds his greatest difficulty in talking, as the silence of long years has so affected his speech that he scarcely says anything, even to his wife. Mme. Dreyfus is patiently trying to make him understand the facts of his case, but his comprehension seems to be as slow as his speech. What is more remarkable is there is no person in the world today who knows less than he about the details of his own affair. He does not seem able to understand half of all the plots and schemes against him nor why such animosity has been shown towards him.

Truth Slowly Dawning.

Madame Dreyfus has over and over again explained the same things and the light is slowly dawning upon him. The announcement of Colonel Henry's suicide seemed to fill him with astonishment. He could hardly believe it. He said that there never had been any animosity that he was aware of between himself and Colonel Henry.

First Learns of Picquart's Part.

Colonel Picquart's rôle in the history of the case seemed to him almost incomprehensible. Mme. Dreyfus explained Colonel Picquart's part at a great length, but the prisoner seemed to scarcely understand it at all. He understood Du Paty de Clam's maneuvers better, and when told of his arrest made a short, dry reflection much to the point, saying he understood that perfectly.

His lawyers will undertake a discussion of his case with him by degrees, allowing the matter to develop slowly in his mind so that no confusion may arise.

Great Care Observed.

His food in prison is all tasted before it is served to him, and his guardians are keeping a strict watch. The number of sentinels around Mme. Dreyfus' house has been diminished, but the windows and doors facing the street are hermetically closed every night.

Crowds to Hear Trial.

There is hardly a vacant hotel apartment left, and it is estimated that for the opening of the trial there will be more than 10,000 visitors in Rennes.

Prince of Monaco's Offer.

The Prince of Monaco has just given a lesson to every one, which is worthy of him. He has always been known as a most humane and kind ruler and the people of Monaco are said to be the happiest in the world. They have no taxes to pay and are treated like children of the Prince. Mme. Dreyfus has received the following letter from the Prince:

"Madame, you have defended the honor of your husband with admirable vigilance and triumphant justice will bring you the reparation due you. To aid honest people to forget all these sufferings and all these wrongs, I invite your husband to come to me at the Chateau de Marchais as soon as the holy work of justice is accomplished.

"The presence of a martyr towards whom the conscience of humanity turns in its anguish will be an honor to my house.

"Among all the sympathies that go out to you, Madame, there is none more sincere, nor more respectful, than mine.

"ALBERT, Prince de Monaco."

Chateau Marchais is the fall residence of the Prince, twenty miles from Laon. The Chateau is a beautiful old place and there Dreyfus will be able to regain his lost health and forget his terrible martyrdom.

Opposition Resorts to Slander.

Now that the opposition finds it cannot block the path of justice it is inventing dastardly stories concerning the private life of both Dreyfus and his wife. Shocking calumnies are going the rounds from mouth to mouth in a vain endeavor to separate the now reunited pair.

Vain Fury of De Beaurepaire.

Quesnay de Beaurepaire is lashing himself in fury at the refusal of a reception by Carriere, and has had no news of the anonymous correspondents who, he says, promised him proofs of the culpability of Dreyfus.

The Dreyfusards are taking a keen delight in Quesnay's vain appeals to his anonymous friends to produce the proofs.

One day he says:

"Reveal yourself for the sole honor of your country and accomplish the salvation of the army."

The next day he offers to guarantee protection, and says: "Confide in me and you will be protected."

Neither appeal, however, has brought him any response.

Army in Rennes Neutral.

The army men here seem disposed to preserve strict neutrality. The gendarmes and the men responsible for Dreyfus' person have been carefully selected, mostly those who were known to be favorable to revision.

Captain of Guard for Revision.

The Captain under whom they all serve has on several occasions stated that if Dreyfus was not allowed the benefit of a rehearing he would resign from the army.

Mme. Dreyfus Is Grateful.

Mme. Dreyfus says she feels deeply grateful to every one, even her opponents, for having remained calm at the moment of her husband's arrival and given no cause for disturbance.

All of this gives great encouragement to the government for a declaration of innocence, as, if the arrival had been tumultuous, it might have inspired a fear of the consequences of acquittal.

Distinguished Men to Attend.

Casimir-Perier has rented a handsome apartment for his stay during the trial. Zola and Clemenceau expect to be present, and other distinguished men have also engaged quarters. The trial will certainly be one of the most extraordinary of the century.

Lawyers Tell the Story.

MM. Demange and Labori saw Dreyfus in prison this morning. M. Demange, telling of it, said:

"Labori and I first had a long interview with M. Carriere and then we rang the bell of the prison and were conducted to the parlor next to the cell of Dreyfus, who at once appeared with open arms and threw himself upon me. We embraced each other long and tenderly. Then I introduced M. Labori.

"'There is no need for an introduction,' said Captain Dreyfus. 'I know and love him already.'

"Captain Dreyfus thanked M. Labori for aiding Mme. Dreyfus in the Esterhazy trial.

"We gave him an outline of his case and he listened with rapt interest, but only asking an occasional question."

The lawyers saw Dreyfus again at 3 this afternoon and left for Paris tonight.

Brother May See Him.

General Gallifet has told Mathieu Dreyfus to ask the commandant of the army at Rennes for permission to see his brother.

Deroulede Changes Front.

Deroulede has gone back on the Generals and says he has every confidence that at the trial at Rennes Dreyfus will be recognized as innocent and that no chastisement is terrible enough for the authorities who condemned the martyr. The victim in such a case, he thinks, should not only be acquitted but should also be exalted.

This defection of Deroulede is the Paris sensation.

First Conference with Counsel.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Rennes, France, July 3.—Maitres Labori and Demange, counsel for Dreyfus, who had a long conference with Mme. Dreyfus yesterday, visited Dreyfus in the military prison at 10 o'clock this morning. The permit for the lawyers to enter the prison bore the inscription:

"Tenth Army Corps, Tribunal of Court-martial.

"Permit to communicate, available until the day judgment is delivered. Monsieur ——, counsel of the Court of Appeal, is authorized to communicate with Captain Dreyfus, whom he is charged to defend.

"MAJOR CARRIERE."

This is the first time M. Demange, the defender of Dreyfus at the court-martial of 1894, and Dreyfus had seen each other since the sentence.

On entering the room M. Demange and Dreyfus threw themselves into each other's arms. The scene was most touching. Neither was able to utter a word, but warmly embraced. Dreyfus, when able to speak, thanked M. Demange for his devoted services.

Meets Lawyer Labori.

M. Demange then presented M. Labori, who had been a silent spectator of the scene. Dreyfus clasped M. Labori's hand, and in a voice choked by emotion expressed the deepest gratitude for the splendid manner in which M. Labori had championed his cause.

MM. Demange and Labori then gave the prisoner a general review of all which has happened since Dreyfus was sent to Devil's Island. Dreyfus explained that he knew nothing but what was contained in the volume which M. Labori had sent him, giving an account of the proceedings of the Court of Cassation in 1898.

Wife a Constant Visitor.

Mme. Dreyfus visited her husband this afternoon. She has received permission to call upon him each day.

This afternoon Maitres Demange and Labori had another conference with the prisoner, M. Labori saying after it was over that the time had been devoted to continuing the review of events since 1898. His counsel were surprised at Captain Dreyfus' strength of memory, even in trifling matters, and at the lucidity of mind he displayed.

After the interview they dined with Mme. Dreyfus.

MM. Demange and Labori then left. They were both greatly impressed with the appearance of Dreyfus, who, they declared, both physically and mentally, is in much better health than they anticipated.

Charges in Form of Report.

Late this evening it was ascertained that unless the authorities should direct a preliminary inquiry or the examination of Captain Dreyfus, Major Carriere, the government commissioner charged with the preparation of the case against the prisoner, will merely draw up a report, which will be presented to the court-martial.

To Send for Dreyfus Diary.

Paris, July 3.—Dreyfus' memoirs, which he wrote on Devil's Island, were left there, but they will be forwarded to the government with his other effects.

Comment on Deroulede Speech.

There is a good deal of comment upon a speech made by Paul Deroulede, founder of the League of Patriots, and long known as one of the most violent opponents of revision. M. Deroulede said in substance that if Dreyfus should be found innocent by the new court-martial "no punishment would be sufficiently heavy, no pillory sufficiently infamous for all the Ministers, civil or military, who were responsible for his conviction, and no honors high enough for the martyr and victim."

BELGIUM IS NEARING A CRISIS.

Leftists Urge Dissolution of Chamber—Guardsmen at Liege May Be Punished.

Brussels, July 3.—At a meeting of the factions of the Left in the Chamber a resolution in favor of the withdrawal of the electoral bill and urging a dissolution instead of a referendum was adopted.

Warned Against Government.

A number of small meetings were held tonight. These were addressed by speakers who urged the people to remain on their guard lest the new proposals of the government should prove insincere. The meetings broke up without disorder.

May Punish Liege Guardsmen.

It is understood that the members of the civic guard of Liege who, on dispersal yesterday morning after the usual parade, proceeded to the Socialist club carrying arms reversed, as a sign of capitulation, and who subsequently attended a meeting in the clubhouse, where some of their members condemned the electoral bill, will be prosecuted by the government.

The guardsmen declare that in this conduct and in pledging themselves to continue the agitation against the measure they were simply exercising their rights as citizens.

Crisis Expected Today.

The critical point will be reached when the government's proposals are submitted to the Chamber tomorrow. The bill now satisfies only the Clericals, and there is a strong feeling, in which the Socialists join, that new elections ought to be held before any change is effected in the way of redistribution of votes or seats. The government is on one side threatened with a revolution which may sweep away the monarchy, while on the other hand universal suffrage is liable to result in the return of such a large Socialist and Republican majority in the Chamber that the monarchy will be equally threatened.

Orderly Protest at Liege.

Liege, July 3.—An orderly procession of 15,000 Socialists and Liberals demonstrated here this evening in support of a petition to the Governor of the Province of Liege. M. de Thoree urged King Leopold to compel the Cabinet to withdraw the electoral bill.

DEATH IN SOUTHERN FEUD

YOUNG HATFIELD KILLS OFFICER AND BATTLE MAY BE ON.

Member of the Famous Family of Desperadoes Slays a Deputy Sheriff on Pullman Car and His Relatives Turn Out to Prevent His Capture by the Posse of Citizens That Is in Close Pursuit—Volley of Shots Heard on the Kentucky Side.

Williamson, W. Va., July 3.—[Special.]—Deputy Sheriff H. E. Ellis of Mingo County, one of the most influential men in the southern part of the State, was shot to death today by Elias Hatfield, a young desperado, a son of "Devil Anse" Hatfield. Posses are in pursuit, and others of the Hatfield family have turned out to prevent the capture of the murderer. A battle to the death seems inevitable.

Three years ago Deputy Sheriff Ellis, who is a relative of the McCoys, surrounded a mountain hut and effected the capture of John Hatfield, who was wanted for the killing of Creed McCoy. Hatfield was sent to prison for life, and his relatives then swore vengeance on Ellis.

At noon today Ellis walked to the platform of a Pullman sleeper attached to a N. and W. train from the South, and immediately spied Elias Hatfield, who had a Winchester rifle and had been drinking. The deputy feared trouble and returned to the sleeper. Hatfield had noticed him, however, and, unslinging his rifle from his shoulder, bounded to the sleeper platform and, with an oath, fired at the officer. Ellis returned one shot from a revolver, but the second ball from Hatfield's rifle penetrated the deputy's skull, killing him.

Escapes into Kentucky.

The greatest excitement reigned for a time, but Hatfield leaped from the rear of the car and, running toward Tug River, escaped across into Kentucky. Two hours later a posse of almost 100 citizens, headed by Sheriff N. J. Keadle, was in pursuit of the desperado. A number of the Hatfields crossed into Kentucky late this evening, heavily armed. That they go to prevent the arrest of Elias Hatfield is unquestioned.

A telegram from Gray tonight states that more than forty shots from rifles were heard in the mountains almost opposite there in Kentucky, and that the bloodhounds taken to the scene by the posse were baying furiously.

It is believed that the posse has fired on Hatfield, or that the pursuers of young Hatfield have had trouble with his relatives, who are attempting to prevent his capture.

A lynching undoubtedly will be the murderer's fate if brought back to the West Virginia side of the river.

History of Famous Feud.

The Hatfield-McCoy feud began in 1882, between the McCoys in Pike County, Ky., and the Hatfields of Logan County, W. Va. The two counties join along the Blue Ridge. The feud grew out of an election dispute, in which one of the McCoys shot and killed a Hatfield. Four of the McCoys were arrested for the murder, and, while awaiting examination, were captured by a Hatfield mob, carried into Logan County, then taken back into Kentucky in the dead of night, and all four shot.

It was not until 1887 that Governor Buckner offered a reward of $500 for the murderers of the McCoys, and made a requisition for them upon the Governor of West Virginia, which requisition was refused. The Sheriff of Pike County, tempted by this reward, went to Logan County, captured three of the Hatfields, and put them into the Pike County jail. By way of retaliation, their kin who were free made a raid into Pike County on New Year's eve, burning the house of the head of the McCoy family, and killing his wife, daughter, and son. The father escaped, and, rousing his relatives, invaded Logan County, killing two of the Hatfields and taking six prisoners.

From 1882 to 1887, when the two States were roused to a sense of the situation, the killing and burning went on unchecked, the Hatfields being the chief aggressors. "Devil Anse" Hatfield purchased firearms and ammunition in quantities, and organized a regular clan with himself at the head. They had a cavern in the "Devil's Backbone," where they held their meetings and laid their murderous plans.

Kill Woman and Children.

Randall McCoy, with his wife and thirteen children, had his home in a cluster of log cabins near the mouth of Pond Creek. "Devil Anse" and his gang raided the dwelling in the dead of night, laid the place in ashes, wounded the father, leaving him for dead, and killed the mother and five of the children, the rest escaping to the woods in the darkness.

In 1887 Jefferson McCoy, riding along a mountain path, was waylaid and shot by Captain Ansel Hatfield and one of his gang. McCoy's old mother was with him, and after the first shot was fired, wounding him slightly, she threw herself on the ground at "Devil Anse's" feet, and, clasping his knees, pleaded for her son's life. Hatfield kicked her brutally and completed the murder of her son.

Slaughter Many McCoys.

Minor crimes of various kinds were committed until January, 1888, when the crowning piece of lawlessness was accomplished. Thirteen of the Hatfield gang surrounded the McCoy homestead and set fire to it while the family were asleep trusting in the protection of the companies of soldiers assembled at Pikeville and at Logan Courthouse. They killed all the sons who could handle a rifle, one of the daughters, and beat the mother over the head until they stunned and left her for dead. The father did his best to defend his family, and dodging from tree to tree fired shot after shot, with the result that three of the attacking party had to be buried when the fight was over.

Shortly afterwards Sheriff Phillips of Pike arrested several of the Hatfield gang. Their captain escaped. The men were brought to trial and most of them were sent to the penitentiary for terms of from eight to ten years.

Early in 1897 most of the Hatfields, having served their terms, came home and "Devil Anse" reappeared at their head, in defiance of three true bills for murder in the first degree that had been found against him by the Pike County grand jury.

Captain Anse was finally taken after killing one man and wounding another and lodged in jail to await trial. Some one smuggled a hatchet to him, and with this he chopped his way through a stockade eighteen inches thick. The escape was made between 1 and 2 o'clock in the morning and was not discovered until several hours later.

During the nine years since the raiding of his home Randall McCoy had managed to locate the outlaw's cave in the Devil's Backbone, and to this retreat he led the pursuing party. Hatfield's followers were with him. There was a fight lasting for several days and then the outlaws' stronghold was wrecked with dynamite. Several are supposed to have escaped, among them, perhaps, Hatfield.

It is out of this feud that the trouble of today grew, and more fatalities may before now be added to the long list that has made the Hatfields and McCoys famous.

MOVING PICTURES IN SURGERY.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE BY D. B. MACGOWAN.]

Berlin, July 3.—A fin de siecle application of cinematography is reported from Kiel. The French surgeon, Doyen, becoming dissatisfied with his clinical demonstrations where but few observers really see anything, had a special cinematograph made and took instantaneous photographs of a variety of operations, showing every detail. Saturday he gave a successful demonstration before a large scientific audience.

Dr. Doyen is distinguished for the swiftness and certainty of his stroke, but does not recommend the practice to general imitation.

Ministers to Take Vacations.

Chancellor Hohenlohe is going to Paris on private business, and it is stated all the Ministers are to take a vacation until Aug. 7, when the canal bill will have its second reading.

Bismarck's Mission Unknown.

Political prophecy is again divided. The Hamburger Nachrichten says Prince Bismarck has left Travemuende without being received by the Kaiser.

Bismarck's journey is, however, still unexplained.

P. D. Armour Is Well.

Ambassador Ready to Sail.

Editors Sentenced to Prison.

Herr Jacobey, editor of Vorwaerts, and Editor Beyer of the Saxon Arbeiter Zeitung, have been sentenced to three months each for criticising certain criminal proceedings against workingmen.

The editors of the Saxon papers are court officials, and consequently the editors have committed "beamtenbeleidigung" (malfeasance in office).

FAILS TO STOP WIFE'S SUICIDE.

John Thomas of South Chicago Runs for Hours to Overtake Her, but Finds Her Dead.

John Thomas, 10638 Avenue H, South Chicago, ran a race with death yesterday and lost. The body of his wife, whose life he tried to save, lies in a morgue at Whiting, Ind., having been taken from Lake Michigan. For hours Thomas ran along the lake shore from Ninety-third street to a point southeast of Whiting, searching for traces of his wife, who had an hour the start of him and who he knew was bent on suicide.

Thomas had found his wife trying to hang herself on Sunday night, so when he went to his dinner at noon and neighbors told him she had gone toward the lake he knew he must overtake her soon or find her dead. He went north to Ninety-third street and found no trace of her. Then he retraced his steps, and when he reached the foot of One Hundred and Sixth street he found Mrs. Thomas' cape. He ran up and down the beach and his ravings attracted citizens, who notified the Whiting authorities. Holding the cape close to his breast, Thomas sat in the bow of the boat in which a party dragged the lake. He was the first to see his wife's body as it lay in six feet of water 100 yards from shore.

Mrs. Thomas is survived by a 5 weeks' old child. She began to show signs of insanity a few days ago. The family have lived in South Chicago several years.

BISHOP NEWMAN IS WEAKER.

Doctors Find the Patient More Enfeebled Late Last Night and He May Not Live Till Morning.

Saratoga, N. Y., July 3.—[Special.]—Bishop Newman was still alive but unconscious late tonight, but it is extremely doubtful if he lives to see the sunrise of tomorrow. At 10:10 o'clock tonight Drs. S. E. Strong and E. A. Palmer, the attending physicians, were hurriedly summoned to the Newman cottage on Circular street. They found their patient in substantially the same condition he has been all day, except that he was gradually becoming weaker and more enfeebled. He has been in a semi-unconscious condition since daybreak. Mrs. Newman, who is grief-stricken, is constantly at the bedside of her husband.

Charles B. Macdonald of the Chicago Golf club won the gold medal for lowest score in the qualifying round of the amateur golf championship at Onwentsia yesterday.

Under adverse conditions and against a remarkably strong field of Eastern cracks the veteran played excellent golf and completed the thirty-six holes with a total of 168 strokes.

John Reid Jr., the intercollegiate champion, won the silver medal with two strokes more.

It was a good day for Chicago, a big day for the West, and a great day for Onwentsia.

The fight for places in the qualifying list was keen, no less than seven players tieing with a total of one hundred and eighty-seven for the last four places.

Of the thirty-five on the winning list eighteen are from Eastern clubs, sixteen from the Western, and one from the Southern, so that the forces of the two leading sections are about evenly divided for the contests to follow.

The opening day of the tournament encountered a serious handicap in the weather. As early as 9 o'clock it threatened rain. The clouds held back until 2 o'clock, but then a hard rain set in, and it rained during a great part of the afternoon. The slippery links naturally handicapped many of the players a great deal, but did not affect them as much as might have been expected. It served, however, to drive the spectators to cover, the play being watched from the clubhouse veranda, which afforded a view only of the last hole. Every returning favorite got a hearty round of applause.

All of the Cracks Qualify.

It was remarkable that none of the crack players fell by the wayside. Through the pouring rain and over the sodden links they proved themselves masters of the situation, and, after the weeding out of the first round, the battle will be between the men who have fought many keen battles with brassey and niblick. The Scotchmen demonstrated they will be a factor in the race, and the work of Macdonald, Forgan, and Champion Douglas has set the home bred players a high standard to follow. Taking everything into consideration, the play showed a marked advance over that of former years, the work of the younger generation being of a creditable character.

As a result of the morning play, C. B. Macdonald and D. R. Forgan tied, with the total of 83. The Wheaton champion played record-breaking golf on his journey out, making the distance in 38, being five strokes less than bogey. Even "Jim" Foulis, who has navigated the links with him on many occasions, was surprised. It was too good a performance to repeat, and a small slice of bad luck resulted in a score of 45 for the return journey. Forgan played consistent golf, going out in 41 and back in 42. Travis journeyed along in his usual nonchalant style, and accounted for his first half in 44.

McCawley, the Merion Cricket club crack, made but few mistakes after he had taken seven in going to the reservoir. John Reid Jr. went out and in in 43. His driving was not all that could be desired, but on the greens he excelled, and made up the deficiency. William Holabird Jr. showed no sign of nervousness, and negotiated the eighteen holes in finished style. His coach remarked at the finish "that he was a wee bit off in his driving, but played a fine short game."

Stuart, the Princeton Captain, under the skillful guidance of Bobby Robert Risk, the well-known local player, went out in 44 and back in 42.

The other players to finish in order were Siason Thompson, 88; H. H. Cumming, 88; H. A. Colby, 89; A. H. Smith, 89; Roderick Terry Jr., 89; G. C. Hubbard, 89; Findlay S. Douglas, 91.

Aided by the good starts of the morning most of these players had no trouble in qualifying. Reid was in better form in the afternoon, getting out in 43 and back in 41, which gave him what appeared to be the gold medal score until Macdonald trooped in some time after with two strokes less. Harriman accomplished the best performance of the afternoon. The metropolitan champion made the first nine holes in 39, playing grand golf, and missing Macdonald's performance of the morning by only one stroke. As a result he finished seventh on the list. Weather conditions militated against the majority in the afternoon, but the play was of sufficient quality to indicate that the work during the week under match play would be of an intensely exciting character.

Promptly at 7:30 o'clock Phelps B. Hoyt of the Glenview Golf and Polo club drove off, his initial effort clearing the bunker and landing a trifle to the right of the course. Walter McKittrick of the St. Louis County club followed with an accurate drive, and the head of the long procession moved on.

D. Mark Cummings of Washington Park club and J. Insley Blair, Morris County club, followed. The latter opened with a drive that was equal to any made in the morning, and, as if in approval, the sun shone out for the first time.

Forgan's Good Opening Drive.

The pairs followed one another at regular intervals of four minutes. Secretary W. Bage Kerr of the United States Golf association and Sidney Williams of the Onwentsia club got them away so promptly that the last pair were playing within five minutes of scheduled time.

The initial drives of most of the contestants were good. H. R. Rea of the Allegheny Country club was the first to foozle, but fell short of the bunker. Slason Thompson followed his example later on, but redeemed himself by a fine brassey shot. Roderick Terry Jr., the stalwart Yale man, was the first to catch any applause from the gallery. His drive landed far over the bunker.

D. R. Forgan and C. G. Hubbard both played with their coats on. The Onwentsia man opened auspiciously, his easy Scotch swing sending the ball far down the course. By 9 o'clock dark clouds apeared in the west, and spectators and the players who had not started made preparations for a watery tour. Apart from a slight shower, however, about thirty minutes later, the rest of the morning was fine.

Pair by pair the contestants filed off, both good and bad together. Macdonald got away a grand drive while Norris, who journeyed with him, was lucky in hurdling the bunker. It remained for Champion Douglas to get the first gallery of the day. As soon as he and Carnegie started down the course the crowd of seventy-five followed, and it saw some excellent work on the part of the Fairfield expert.

M. C. Cummings made the best drive of the morning. William Holabird Jr., the tall stripling from the Glenview Golf and Polo club, came in for a round of applause as he started off, accompanied by his faithful mentor, Lawrence Auchterlonie. Roy S. York won fame for being the only man to get into the bunker.

Bob Wrenn as a Scorer.

Jasper Lynch, the Knollwood expert, and Harold C. Smith had Tennis Champion and Rough Rider Bob Wrenn for scorer. Walter J. Travis in a light slouch hat and a black suit appeared as unconcerned as if starting on a practice round. He was sure he would qualify and did not worry. Walter Fairbanks, a hardy Scotchman from Denver, upheld the honor of his city, doing excellent work in his initial shots for the first green. Walter B. Smith, the pride of Onwentsia, was paired with J. F. Curtis of the Essex County club and drew as large a gallery as did Champion Douglas. H. P. Toler, the Baltusrol expert and Nicholas Longworth of the Cincinnati Golf club brought up the rear of the procession, the last drive of the first round being made at 11:20, nearly four hours after Hoyt and his partner opened the fifth annual tournament.

Ninety-eight starters out of 112 entries was considered as creditable as the 107 starters at Morristown.

The busy officials had scarcely time for lunch, and a short time elapsed before the procession was again winding its tortuous passage around the course for the afternoon play. In the south a large bank of dark clouds gave promise of certain rain. It held off long enough to enable the first few pairs to complete the round in dry clothes. A steady downpour then set in, and the contestants presented a bedraggled appearance as, stroke by stroke, they piled up their scores. J. Reid Jr. got home before the wet had much chance to damage the course, and while his performance of 170 is good it is fair to assume that Douglas, Travis, Harriman, and Forgan might have equaled his score except for their handicap of slippery grass.

McDonald had a watery tour. His performance under the prevailing conditions is certainly remarkable. He had bad luck in putting, rimming the hole two or three times. As the contestants reached the home green they were applauded from the veranda of the clubhouse. One by one the Eastern cracks turned in their scores, and it was easy to see that the majority of them would qualify without trouble.

Tyng, Terry, McCawley, Hubbard, Thorp, and Lineaweaver all came in with scores lower than any of the Westerners, with the exception of Macdonald, Forgan, and Walter Smith. William Holabird Jr. was close behind the Eastern men. Judging from the scores in the qualification round the hopes of the West depend on the two Onwentsia and one Chicago representatives. Cleveland has three representatives among the survivors, Denver two, Cincinnati one, St. Louis one, and Pittsburg one. Onwentsia did fine work in having six men qualify. H. H. Cummings of the Swannanoa Country club, one of two representatives of the South, made a great performance in getting around in 176. Several of the contestants gave up in the second round when they saw no chance to qualify. As one of them explained, it was more from a desire to preserve his clubs than to escape a wetting.

PLAYERS MAKE GOOD SCORES.

C. B. Macdonald Does the Best Work of the Day, Finishing with a Total of 168.

[BY HERBERT JAMES TWEEDIE.]

The first day's play at the fifth annual championship was a day of fine golf, notwithstanding the heavy rain of the afternoon. Had the rain kept off we probably should have had to record some especially fine scores, but 168 for thirty-six holes was as good golf as could be expected and as good play as has been done in America in the preliminary rounds of the championships.

Charles Blair Macdonald, champion of 1895 and the hero of a thousand feats at the royal and ancient game, exceeded himself by doing the first nine holes in the magnificent score of 38. Taking 45 to his home journey, he succeeded in totaling 83, tying with D. R. Forgan at that figure. On his second trial he went around in 85, playing under adverse circumstances of weather, being drenched to the skin, as were other competitors. The greens were heavy and difficult to gauge, so it was possibly a finer performance than his first round.

Following him closely was John Reid Jr. with 170, who played steady and good golf throughout and has undoubtedly proved what his friends have claimed for him, that he is one of the best of Yale College-bred golfers.

David R. Forgan came away with a splendid 83 in the morning, showing he had not forgotten the golf he learned at St. Andrew's years ago. He was not quite so good in the afternoon, taking 90, but his higher score was partly attributed to his bête noir, the "boomerang" hole.

Findlay Douglas went around in 173, 87 for the first round and 86 for the second. His putting was not quite up to his usual form. Medal play is not quite his strong suit, perhaps, but at the hole game he will be found to be quite ready to take his full part.

Walter Travis, after taking 84 in the morning, had to record five more strokes in the afternoon, which raised his score to 173, so that there were three men tied for the third prize, which will be decided today.

Harriman, after taking 91 in the morning, did wonders in the second round and finished in 174, a grand recovery and an evidence of the golf which is in him.

Walter B. Smith, last year's runner up, was not far away with 174, playing good steady golf all day after starting late and having the worst of the weather.

James Tyng, at 175, was well amongst the leaders. Terry, another collegian, had 176, as did McCawley and H. Cummings.

William Holabird Jr., the Glen View boy, returned 179, a fine performance considering his youth and this being his initial entry in a national tournament. A boy of 15 playing as well as Holabird has done is much to be commended.

The Scotchmen were on the day's play well to the fore, but the young players, the college boys, and others are pressing them hard, and it is needless to say that in this tournament, as in others, surprises may be in store. Much depends, of course, on the draw. Several have tied for the last five places in the thirty-two and will have to play a deciding hole this morning for the places. About a fourth of the envied thirty-two will be from the West, and with the odds, therefore, against them, the brave Westerners will have to play their best and do battle in the grand old style to bring the cup once more to Chicago.

MANY GO TO LINKS FROM TOWN.

Guests Arrive at Onwentsia Clubhouse, Despite Threatening Weather and Rain—Fewer Pink Coats Seen.

In spite of the threatening weather in the morning and the wet of the afternoon, quite a number of people from town came to the Onwentsia club yesterday to spend the day or the week with friends in the club or in the surrounding cottages. Among them were Mrs. Chauncey Blair, Miss Natalie Blair, and Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Adams; Mr. Roswell Field, Mr. F. P. Knott, Mr. R. D. Wrenn, Mr. Charles W. Brega, and Mr. Thomas Hannah; Miss Owens, who is the guest of Miss Louise Brega; Mrs. Arthur Ely, Mrs. Eames, and Miss Buel, who are visiting Mrs. Charles Macdonald at her cottage; Mrs. C. Boal and Miss Mann of Troy N. Y., the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Williams; Mr. and Mrs. James Harlan, who are staying with Mr. and Mrs. J. Hannah, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Aldis, who are Mr. and Mrs. Bradley's guests. Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Day have at their house Miss Amy Walker, Mr. V. Le Moyne, Mr. Howard Elting, and Mr. Gamble Rogers.

Among the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus H. McCormick are Miss Isham, Miss Joan Chalmers, Mr. J. G. Thorp, Mr. Tyng, Mr. Toler, Mr. J. Curtis, and Mr. Travis.

Not half so many pink coats as might have been expected dotted the green fields over which the Onwentsia course is laid, partly owing to the warmth of the weather, which made shirtsleeves preferable, and also because the pink coats are not so much in favor now as formally. Most of the contestants, it was noticed, did away with the elaborate breeches and stockings considered indispensable by some, the greater part wearing instead long gray or white flannel trousers and golf shoes.

The carefully dressed men seemed to be all among the onlookers, most of whom were obliged to cover their irreproachable toilets with heavy mackintoshes in the afternoon, as the rain began drenching the players and driving all but the bravest of the spectators indoors. Only a few stood in the soggy turf with waterproofs and umbrellas, watching their friends across the fields.

The large veranda of the clubhouse was crowded with spectators, who cheered every new and bedraggled arrival and eagerly asked his score, as he came, beaming or dejected, towards the house for a change of clothes.

Notes.

Sheldon Cary was the only lefthanded player.

J. G. Thorp and C. B. Macdonald were the giants of the tournament, while Abram Poole and J. M. Kirk were the midgets.

According to H. P. Toler, who teed off with Nicholas Longworth, the Cincinnati player has a story for every hole.

R. S. York was the first man to get caught in the first bunker and O. C. Fuller and A. L. Morris both succeeded in hurdling the cop.

There were two sets of brothers entered, Harold and Walter Smith and J. B. and W. B. Kirk. Ralph Poole and Abram Poole, father and son, also played.

Bob Wrenn held the score card for Harold Smith and Jasper Lynch. A. B. Dick, the well-known Exmoor player, did the same for Walter Smith and J. F. Curtis.

F. D. Frazier and William Holabird Jr. were the two youngest players entered. The former is but 16 and the latter one year younger. Both hail from Glenview and both are pupils of Auchterlonie, who is proud of the boys.

J. F. Curtis did exceedingly well when the fact that he has not been able to find time for practice and has just arrived after a long trip is taken into consideration. He paired off with Walter Smith and was benefited by having such a good pacemaker.

The center of interest among the crowd gathered to see the play was the work of the Smith brothers. Their scores were examined more than those of any other golfers and Alex Smith was told to take good care of the runner-up in last year's contest. Both of the boys qualified.

Young Holabird, with the exception of Walter Smith, who is an Onwentsia boy, was the most popular player on the links. He did splendid work and if he had not got caught in the boomerang for a loss of seven strokes he would have finished near the medal winners. He had the honor of being the only player from Glenview to qualify.

The professional caddie was much in evidence. Henry Turpie of Edgewater carried the clubs for H. K. Allen, James Foulis of Wheaton for C. B. Macdonald, Bolton of Riverside for E. R. Driver, Richard Leslie of Glenview for W. B. Kirk, Auchterlonie of Glenview for William Holabird Jr., and Alex Smith of Washington Park for W. B. Smith.

"One strange thing about the day's play," said Auchterlonie, "was the apparent inability of the players to putt. They seemed to be afraid of over putting and more than three quarters of the misplays on the greens came from this lack of confidence. The greens were heavy during the rain, but the players did not appear to take this into account as they should have done."

WILLIAM H. HOGAN IS DEAD.

Former Purchasing Agent of Stock-Yards Company Expires at Kankakee Asylum from Paresis.

Kankakee, Ill., July 3.—[Special.]—William H. Hogan, who was purchasing agent for the Union Stock-Yards and Transit company of Chicago for thirteen years, died at the Eastern Illinois Insane Hospital today of paresis. He had been an inmate of the institution since October, 1898. He was born at Laporte, Ind., graduated at Valparaiso College, and went to Chicago seventeen years ago, entering at once the employ of the Stock-Yards company. As purchasing agent for the grocery and liquor departments he handled vast sums of money annually. J. C. Hogan, with Armour & Co., Chicago; T. H. Hogan of Minneapolis, and a sister living at Delavan, Ill., are the surviving relatives. He was unmarried. The body will be taken to Laporte for burial.

Hogan, who was familiarly known as "Billy," ruptured a blood vessel while at Hot Springs a year ago. He was brought back to Chicago, and for a time his recovery was hoped for. On learning of his death at Kankakee yesterday his brother, James C. Hogan, left immediately to take charge of the remains. The funeral will take place today, and interment will be at Laporte, Ind. Several Town of Lake friends left last night to attend the funeral.

Every woman who goes down-town tomorrow will be interested in the annual clearance sale of Chas. A. Stevens & Bros. Past sales will not compare with it in the amount of goods offered and the prices made. Read advertisement in Wednesday morning papers.

FEAR FIRE KILLED THREE

BODIES OF MISSING BELIEVED TO BE BURIED IN RUINS.

Josie Doyle, Bartholomew Spakiewitz, and Steffina Bagdcis Not Seen Since Flames Destroyed Building of Western Paper Stock Company—Employes, Caught in a Trap, Leap from Windows and Many Are Hurt—Heroic Work of Women Rescuers.

The bodies of three employés of the Western Paper Stock company are believed to be in the fire ruins of the concern's building, at 1452-58 Indiana avenue. They had not been heard from up to midnight, and hope for them was practically abandoned. In the fire yesterday, which caused excitement for miles around because of its spectacular nature and of daring rescues made, eight female employés were hurt by jumping from windows. The building was consumed, except the walls. Loss, $90,000; insured.

The Missing.

DOYLE, MRS. JOSIE, 21 years old, wife of Thomas Doyle, 569 West Thirteenth street.
SPAKIEWITZ, BARTHOLOMEW, foreman, widower, 50 years old, 5442 Armour avenue.

Scubada, Frances, overcome by smoke and body cut and bruised.
Zgeda, Maggie, 456 Clinton street; feet burned; taken to St. Luke's Hospital, then home.

Last Seen Running to Warn Others.

Bartholomew Spakiewitz, the old man who, it is believed, perished in the fire, was a foreman in the shipping department. He was 50 years of age, was one of the firm's oldest employés, having been with them for nineteen years. He was a widower, his wife having died a year and a half ago, leaving him with four small children, with whom he lived at 5442 Armour avenue. The orphans are Bessie, 14 years of age; Charlie, 13; Joseph, 11; and Mary, 9. The neighbors are taking care of the children. Spakiewitz was last seen rushing for the elevator shaft, after entering the building to warn the girls to flee.

Fear Mrs. Doyle Is Lost.

Mrs. Josie Doyle, another supposed victim of the fire, was the wife of Patrick Doyle, and lived at 569 West Thirteenth street. She was working on the fourth floor of the building, in the assorting department. Her husband and father believe she is buried beneath the ruins.

Mrs. Doyle's younger sister, Mary Puroboski, was at work on the second floor, and escaped by running out over a viaduct in the rear of the building. Mrs. Doyle was 21 years old, and had been married three years. She had been working for the Western Paper Stock company less than two weeks. She was the daughter of John Puroboski, 719 West Sixteenth street. Patrick Doyle is employed by R. T. Crane & Co.

Fire Starts in Basement.

The flames sprang up near the middle of the basement at 11 a. m., and when the first warning came the whole front of the cellar was a mass of fire. Harry Shevlin, the engineer, was stationed in the engine-room in this part of the building, So far as is known, he was the only man near the starting point of the fire. The flames spread so rapidly that he had to be dragged from the coal-hole at the rear of the building and had not time to even take his vest, containing a watch and $5, from the nail where it hung beside the engine. When he reached safety the fire filled all of the basement and was roaring to the upper floors through the elevator shafts at front and rear.

On the upper floors more than a hundred girls, mostly Polish, were employed in sorting the old paper which the firm made a business of buying and selling. The fire preceded any warning that could be sent to them. Their first intimation of danger was when the flames shot through the elevator shafts to the roof, igniting floors and ceilings as it ran up the sides of the shafts. The paper in piles and bags, caught fire about them and they ran screaming to the windows.

Rush for the Fire Escapes.

The greater part of the women crowded to the fire escapes, and windows at the rear. Here a shed reached to the second floor of the building, but the women were almost too frightened to heed the advice which was shouted at them to jump on the shed if they feared to wait a rescue.

Women Heroic in Rescue Work.

Mrs. Lena Caldwell and Mrs. Margaret Rend, who reside at 1440 Indiana avenue, four doors north of the building, did heroic work as life-savers. The screams from the stampeded women attracted their attention, and going to their door they saw at the windows of the burning structure the faces of more than twenty-five of the frightened girls. Some were in the act of jumping. Others were crowding about the openings for the same purpose.

Mrs. Caldwell and Mrs. Rend cried to the girls to remain where they were until they could get a ladder, then the two women ran to the cellar, dragged out a twenty-foot ladder, carried it through a back yard and an alley, then through a narrow way between the burning building and the Legal News Building. Immediately they raised it to the second story window on the north side of the building and held it steady until a half dozen girls descended.

All this was before the Fire department arrived on the scene. The ladder would not reach to the third story window, and the women who had gathered there could not be restrained, and jumped, sustaining injuries. In their efforts to lend aid, both Mrs. Caldwell and Mrs. Rend received many bruises.

"We were glad to do what we could," said one of the two rescuers afterwards. "It was time for action, and we did all we could to keep them from jumping. It was an awful sight. We remembered the old ladder, and, reassuring the women, took it to the window and got some of them out safely. The people in the office of the building were busy taking out books and such things, and did not appear to realize the perilous situation. At least, they did not lend much aid in getting the girls out of the trap."

Robert Rend, son of Mrs. Rend, was among the first on the scene and helped in the work of rescuing. He called to one of the girls in the third floor window to jump. She was small and he caught her in his arms and broke the fall. He was dazed for a few moments, having been knocked down by its force. As soon as he recovered he picked up the girl and started for St. Luke's Hospital alone, but when he reached the street others aided him with his burden. The young girl was a Bohemian and Rend did not know her name. She could not speak English. She was removed afterwards to her home with seven others, who were slightly injured.

John Gregson, 6938 Seipp avenue, a former employé of St. Luke's Hospital, which is five doors north of the burned structure, and F. B. Giles, a clerk in that institution, were among the first to arrive at the fire. Giles brought a ladder with him, and he and Gregson raised it to the bottom rounds of the iron fire escape. Both men ran up and helped a dozen or more girls to safety.

Risks Blisters to Give Aid.

John Creighton, an employé of the Fourteenth street pumping station, half a block from the building, ran barefoot among the burning timbers and helped women from the building.

G. Johnson, a colored man who stands with an express wagon near the Illinois Central depot at Twelfth street, drove to the burning building in his wagon, abandoned his horse, and caught several women as they jumped from the ladders.

Thought to Be Lost, but Is Found.

Julius Otowsky, a Polish laborer employed about one of the paper presses on the fourth floor, up to 10 p. m. was reported to have been lost in the fire. He was found then at his home, 3058 Throop street. He had a close call for his life on account of strenuous efforts to assist girls on the fourth floor to escape.

Work of the Firemen.

Several brave firemen also took chances on a bridge leading from the warerooms of the concern across an alley to an old church which is used as a storehouse, and from there poured water from several leads of hose into the blazing building with good effect. Chief Swenie, with Marshals Horan, Musham, Townsend, and Mahoney, directed the operations of the firemen, and the fire was under control two hours after the alarm was sent in. It smoldered, however, until late into the night, although streams of water played upon the débris.

The building was a four story brick structure. The fire is supposed to have caught either from natural gas or spontaneous combustion.

Find Gas Keeps Flame Alive.

Engine after engnie added its power to the flood of water which was poured into the ruin. It was nearly 2 o'clock before the firemen discovered that the stream of natural gas, used in the building for fuel, still was pouring through a leak which the falling wreckage had made in the supply pipe.

Unable to Explain Its Origin.

Secretary E. C. Follansbee of the paper company said: "We always have used the utmost precaution in guarding against just such an occurrence, and I am at a loss to account for this. The only thing I can think of is that some employé was careless in handling the natural gas."

Engineer Shevlin said: "All I know about it is that I was in my engine-room at work. The next thing I knew, the whole basement was in flames, and if they hadn't pulled me out through the coal hole I would be in there yet. I don't know how it started, and I didn't wait to look back."

MILLION FROM THE KLONDIKE.

Steamer Arrives at Vancouver with Treasure from the Gold Field of the North.

Vancouver, B. C., July 3.—The steamer Tees arrived from the north today with a large amount of Klondike treasure. The total value of the dust alone was nearly $1,000,000, and numerous drafts brought the treasure above that amount.

Dan McDonald brings out $250,000 in dust. He paid three guards to sit on the boxes all day and sleep on them at night. When the treasure reached here the guard was increased by local police and the treasure was taken in hacks to the government assay office, where it was exchanged for minted money.

Passengers say from this on every ship out will be a big treasure ship. Passengers also reported that the alleged discovery of gold fields at Cape Nome is a false report circulated by the steamboat companies for trade purposes.

Seattle, Wash., July 3.—[Special.]—The Humboldt returned from Lynn Canal again today with about $150,000 worth of dust and a lot of Klondikers, one whom is George W. Carmack, the discoverer of the camp which will, it is estimated by the most sanguine, by the close of summer, including previous outputs, add about $35,000,000 to the world's circulating medium.

On June 20 a pack train of twenty horses, each carrying 200 pounds of dust, strolled into Dawson from Dominion Creek. Of these eleven were weighted down with some of the yield of the T. S. Lippys, No. 16.

SENATOR FAIRBANKS IN ALASKA.

Visits Skaguay and Is Given a Warm Reception by the Chamber of Commerce.

Skaguay, June 28, via Victoria, B. C., July 3.—The revenue cutter McCulloch with Senator Fairbanks, a member of the joint high commission, and party on board dropped anchor in the bay yesterday morning, and soon after the Skaguay Chamber of Commerce and City Council went on board to bid the party welcome.

The guests were shown around town and given luncheon. In the afternoon they were taken in carriages to Reid's Falls, and in the evening given a reception by the Chamber of Commerce.

Senator Fairbanks made an address, in the course of which he said:

"A few years ago this pushing city was not to be found on the map of the Western Hemisphere, but today it is known from one end of the United States to the other. [Applause.] The statement is not entirely correct, though; our countrymen do not realize what a splendid and magnificent city and possibilities are here."

Senator Fairbanks briefly returned thanks for the splendid reception, and President E. O. Graves of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, District Attorney Evans of Minnesota, and Judge Johnson of the United States District Court of Alaska also spoke.

This morning the party was taken by train to the summit, there to be entertained by the Chamber of Commerce and the White Pass railroad.

ATTACK BY NEGROS FILIPINOS.

California Troops Set Upon by the Natives, Who Kill One American.

Manila, July 3.—Reports have been received here of an outbreak in the Island of Negros incident upon the departure of the California regiment for home.

Some hostile natives, seeing a company of soldiers at one of the small posts preparing to depart, thought the Americans were evacuating the island, and a party of 250 rebels, mostly Bolomen, attacked the troops and killed one man and wounded another belonging to Company E. The Filipinos were driven off easily.

The transport Sherman will bring the California troops to Manila before starting for San Francisco.

The transport Grant will embark the Colorado regiment soon.

SPAIN RATIFIES PEACE TREATY.

Senate Takes Final Action in Formal Session—Demonstration at Barcelona Continues.

Madrid, July 3.—The Spanish Senate resumed today the discussion of the treaty of peace between the Kingdom of Spain and the United States.

Señor Montero Rios, President of the Spanish Peace commission at Paris, declared that Spain would enjoy the same commercial rights in Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippines as would be enjoyed by the United States. He pointed out that the treaty was based upon the principle that Spain had relinquished sovereignty over Cuba in order that the island should become independent and not be annexed to the United States.

The Senate ratified the treaty and then adjourned.

Mobs Parade at Barcelona.

Barcelona, July 3.—Fresh demonstrations occurred this evening and the gendarmes charged and dispersed the crowd.

Quiet was not restored until midnight. The mob paraded the streets and made demonstrations before the Episcopal palace and residence, about the electric cars, and the cafés, shouting, "Down with the Jesuits!"

Two monks were insulted and an attempt to protect them led to a serious encounter.

Will Not Pay New Tax.

LOOKS FOR PARTITION OF CHINA

Marquis Ito, Japanese Statesman, Thinks European Powers Will Divide the Empire.

Tacoma, Wash., July 3.—Recent Japanese papers say that Marquis Ito, former Premier of Japan, has declared his firm belief that the partition of China among the powers of Europe is only a question of time. He says that Japan must take steps for her own protection, making every effort to maintain a rate of progress equal to that of the countries by which she will be confronted.

Late Oriental advices state that twenty ringleaders of the rioters who destroyed and burned the electric tramway cars at Seoul last month were executed in public at Corea's capital four weeks ago. They met their fate bravely. Their heads were cut off and exhibited in public places as a warning to all evildoers.

It was believed that this summary action would also have important influence upon the leaders of the Corean rebellion, which was assuming large proportions. At last accounts the insurgents were marching toward Seoul. The Emperor and his Cabinet are thoroughly alarmed.

HONOR FOR PRINCE ARTHUR.

Legislative Enactment Making Him Heir to the Duchy of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.

Coburg, July 3.—The Diet today adopted a bill whereby the Duke of Albany becomes heir to the Duchy of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha. In the event of the extinction of the Albany lineage Prince Arthur of Connaught succeeds, or on Prince Arthur of Connaught's extinction the heir of the Prince of Wales succeeds. Prince Hohenlohe-Langenburg is made the Duke of Albany's regent.

Cost of Transport Service.

San Francisco, Cal., July 3.—A local paper prints a statement showing the alleged cost of the transport service on this coast since the war began. The total is placed at $5,930,218, of which $4,223,400 was expended in chartering twenty-two vessels. The amount spent on these transports when they were not in actual use, being held in port either here or at Manila, is placed at $738,951.

Nineteenth Soon to Leave.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 3.—The Nineteenth Infantry Regiment, stationed at Camp Meade, received word today that the transport to take the command to the Philippines will leave San Francisco on or about July 24. The regiment will leave Camp Meade inside of fifteen days. The government has secured a lease until March 1, 1900, for the present site of Camp Meade.

Major McDill for Manila.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 3.—Major John R. McDill, present acting assistant surgeon in the United States army, has received orders to proceed to Manila, and will leave for San Francisco on Thursday night to catch the transport on July 12.

WHITNEY ON RAILWAY RUMORS.

New York Capitalist Declares He Knows Nothing of Alleged Consolidation Plan.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE NEW YORK WORLD AND THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

London, July 3.—William C. Whitney, who arrived on the Umbria, was questioned concerning the persistent rumor that the Metropolitan Street railway company, the Third Avenue system of roads, and the Elevated railroad system are to be merged into one great corporation.

"I know nothing about any such plan," said Mr. Whitney, with emphasis. "I don't believe there is such a plan in contemplation, or, if there is, it has come up since I left New York.

"I think you will be quite right to suggest that this rumor of consolidation is being cried for speculative purposes, as it has often been before, without any foundation whatever."

Mr. Whitney said he had come to England for a month's rest.

WOMEN SIGN FOR FIGHT.

"RED HEAD" LENORA AND "BIG ALICE" JOHNSON TO MEET.

Latter, Angry Because Her Antagonist Whipped Her on the Steamer Gordon During Sam Barkley's Excursion to the Two-Mile Crib, Issues a Challenge That Is Accepted—Championship of the Viaduct at Stake—Knockout May Be Repeated.

Articles were signed yesterday for another finish fight between the same two young women who gave the touch of éclat to Sam Barkley's fourth annual excursion around the two-mile crib. The excursion took place on Friday night, but the recipient of the knockout blow did not recover sufficiently until yesterday to agree to another go. This time it will be for the championship of the viaduct at catch weights.

Those who saw the first fight say it was the best and gamest that ever took place in Chicago between "ladies." For that matter, it did not exactly take place in Chicago. It took place on the deck of the steamer Gordon while the boat was anchored under the lee of the two-mile crib.

Those who went on the excursion simply as pleasure-seekers had no notice in advance that a "ladies' contest with four-ounce gloves, Marquis of Queensberry rules, to a finish," was to be "pulled off." It said on the handbills advertising the excursion that the affair would be "the hottest thing that ever happened." Another black-faced line of type contained this simple assertion: "This will be the best I ever gave—come sure. Sam Barkley."

Beer and Good Humor.

The boat was crowded when it left the Clark street bridge and steamed down the river. The crowd was willing to be put in a good humor, and the third keg of beer was tapped as the Gordon cleared the breakwater. The upper deck was cleared and "Little Bear" and "Sheeny Mose" undertook to give an exhibition in scientific boxing. "Little Bear" left his solar plexis exposed in the first round and while he was recovering "Sheeny Mose" was spending some of the purse money at the bar.

Three other boxing bouts for points followed, and seventeen "specially selected artists" assisted in entertaining the crowd with cakewalks and buck and wing dancing, but the excursionists who had paid admission said they thought they ought to have their money back. "Dare Devil, the Bridge Jumper," was on the bills, but he didn't jump, and that gave more cause for dissatisfaction among the excursionists.

At that time "Red Head Lenora" appeared on the quarter deck, and "Count" Galvez, the master of ceremonies, announced that she would do the skirt dance. When she had finished the Tuxedo club sang "How Would You Like to Be the Iceman?" Lenora said the song was intended as a reflection on her.

"Just to show you gents that I ain't no ice wagon," said Lenora, "I'll put on the gloves with any lady of me size on the ship." She sat down and waited for a response.

"Big Alice" Johnson heard the remark, and said she was pleased to learn that there was a "lady" present who had sand enough to say it.

"I haven't got no typewriter," she said, approaching Lenora, "but I brought me mitts along with me."

"You ain't no welterweight," said Lenora, who is thirty pounds lighter than "Big Alice."

"I don't ask no lady what she weighs when I talk fight," said Alice. The preliminaries were closed at that, and the two women took off their hats, and put on the gloves.

Better After First Round.

After the first round the excursionists said the entire program of the evening was good. The second round attracted everybody to the quarter deck who could get there. The round ended without any apparent advantage. Alice was taller and heavier and the odds were offered on her in the betting, but in the first half of the third round Lenora struck Alice on the chin, knocking her down.

"Give the lady her full ten seconds," said Lenora, generously.

Alice was still out when the tenth second was tolled. Lenora threw off her gloves and got back to the bar as the ninth keg was being tapped.

Alice did not learn what had happened until the boat got back to the Clark street bridge. Then she was told how it happened. Ever since she has been angry at Lenora, and that is why the articles were signed yesterday for another fight and the championship of the viaduct. It is expected the fight will take place as a drawing feature for an excursion on the Chief Justice Waite one evening this week.

AMEND BRITISH PEACE PLAN.

Conference at The Hague Also Considers Russian Arbitration Scheme—Rule in Naming Judges.

The Hague, July 3.—The Drafting committee of the Arbitration commission of the peace conference passed the second reading of Sir Julian Pauncefote's scheme for a permanent court of arbitration today, and then took up the Russian scheme, which is now entitled "The Law of Arbitration and Disputes Thereunder."

Sir Julian Pauncefote's scheme was amended so as to permit the powers wishing to take advantage of it to propose four names for Judges and also to permit the foreign powers at The Hague to replace the permanent council of administration suggested in the proposal of the head of the British delegation.

At the suggestion of M. Leon Bourgeois, head of the French delegation, the Drafting committee decided that, in the event of a dispute, it should be the duty of neutral powers to call the attention of the disputant nations to the existence of the permanent court of arbitration.

HOW TO BUILD A BODY.

One of the most important discoveries of late is the application of the right kind of food to rebuild the lost substances of the body, thrown off by the active, nervous work of Americans.

Careful investigation by experts in food and diatetics has brought out the fact that albumen, which is contained in various foods, is acted upon by phosphate of potash, not such as obtained in drug stores, but such as is found in certain parts of the field grains in most minute particles, arranged in Nature's laboratory, not man's.

The part of the grains containing phosphate of potash is used in the manufacture of Grape-Nuts food, therefore the active, nervous, pushing brain worker can feed the body with food that goes directly to the rebuilding of the broken down gray matter in the brain, solar plexus, and nerve centers all over the body, with the result that the individual who refreshes and rebuilds the body with proper material of this sort obtains a definite result, which he can feel and know of and which is apparent to his friends.

A vigorous brain and nervous system is of greater importance to any business man or brain worker than unlimited quantities of money.

PHELPS B. HOYT TEEING OFF AT THE OPENING OF NATIONAL GOLF TOURNAMENT AT ONWENTSIA.

CHEER HERO OF SANTIAGO

VICTORY OF A YEAR AGO CELEBRATED BY THE NAVY.

Sailors of the Brooklyn Make It a Schley Day in Most Unmistakable Manner—Letter from Admiral to His "Boys" Read by Boatswain Hill—Everybody Has an Enjoyable Time—Observances at Newport and in Maryland.

New York, July 3.—[Special.]—Schley day was celebrated today by the big, heavy, tanned fellows who had manned the guns and run the engines and did whatever else they were bid on the Brooklyn, flagship of Rear Admiral Schley, just a year ago.

It was a most remarkable sort of a celebration—this excursion of the crew of the Brooklyn. It was probably the first excursion ever given where almost every man present was a hero. Throw a stick in any direction in that gathering under the trees of Schuetzen Park, Glendale, and you would surely hit a man who had helped to blow the Spanish fleet out of Cuban waters.

There were about 400 of these men, and, though some of them had not served on the Brooklyn during that great sea battle, they all were inspired with the same spirit of loyalty and devotion to the country and their Admiral.

Two Girls to Every Tar.

And the girls! For every hero there were at least two hero worshipers. They were the prettiest and best dressed girls to be found in Greater New York, and every one of them constituted herself officer of the deck, and gave orders accordingly.

But to begin at the beginning, the ship's crew, dressed in their newest blue uniforms, marched from the navy yard at 9:30 a. m. to the bridge plaza. There, after a long delay, during which they held a sort of informal reception, they boarded trolley cars for the park at Glendale.

In the first car were the navy yard band and "Billy Boy," the mascot goat.

At the park they were joined by hundreds of others until nearly 2,000 persons were within the gates. The visitors could drink anything from soda to champagne, could smoke and eat, and dance and participate in a dozen games, but could not spend a cent.

Lunch was served early and dinner at 5 p. m., and before meals and between meals and after meals there was dancing in the great pavilion.

Pictures of Schley Everywhere.

This pavilion was decorated with flags and flowers and several life-sized portraits of Admiral Schley which were draped with the red, white, and blue. There were banners, too, with the inscription: "I have them bottled up. They will never get home."

The dance program was unique because of the dedications of the various numbers. There was a waltz dedicated to the "Admiral," a "Don't Cheer" quadrille, a two-step entitled, "They'll Never Get Home."

Among the officers present were Lieutenant Commander Hodgson, Lieutenants Rush, Doyle, and Simpson, Ensign Grove, Major Murphy and Lieutenant Matthews of the marines, and Chaplain Helms.

One of the picnickers was Pedro Orizar, a 15-year-old boy, who is said to have been a bugler on the Vizcaya, and who ran away from Annapolis, where he was taken with Cervera. Pedro is now employed by a Brooklyn grocer.

At 4:30 the bugler sounded the assembly, and the sailors and their pretty companions crowded in front of the stage in the pavilion. Stephen Donely, President of the Excursion association, called first for cheers for Admiral Schley, which were given with a roar that threatened to raise the roof.

Hear Letter from Admiral.

When the shouts had subsided Chief Boatswain W. L. Hill read the following letter:

"Washington, D. C., July 1.—Dear Mr. Hill: Will you say to the boys of the Brooklyn that I have not been able to obtain release from an engagement made prior to the receipt of their invitation, and that I regret extremely not to be able to have the pleasure of sharing this July 3 with them, as they shared the doings of the past with me.

"I hope that they may enjoy the day to the fullest measure, and, while I am absent in the flesh, I shall be present in the spirit.

"I hope my brave boys will act up to the spirit of my report of last July 3, that there was glory enough for all of us, and the part taken so conspicuously by the Brooklyn on that day gives them a proud right to so enjoy this day.

"Wishing them all the fullest enjoyment, and regretting that I am unable to be with them, I am, with much affection for you all, sincerely yours, W. S. SCHLEY."

Salute of Thirteen Guns.

The shouts that followed the reading of this letter was drowned in the roar of a saluting gun, which rang out thirteen times—the Rear Admiral's salute. Above the crowd the old battleflag of the Brooklyn waved violently.

This was the cry of the Brooklyn men:

One, two, three, who are we?
We are the pride of the new navee;
We were in it, that's no lie,
Brooklyn! Brooklyn! Schley! Schley! Schley!

Admiral Osborne of the Farragut association of Naval Veterans made a speech in which he urged the men to organize at once as veterans of the late war and profit by the lessons learned by the veterans of the rebellion.

He gave many digs at the army, to the amusement of his hearers.

"We never had to eat embalmed beef," he said, and there were loud shouts of "No, no."

Then there was more feasting and more dancing, and before the last jack tar left the glorious Fourth of July had been born.

Observed by Fleet at Newport.

Newport, R. I., July 3.—[Special.]—The first anniversary of the destruction of the Spanish fleet off Santiago was observed here today by the ships of the North Atlantic squadron, by the attachés of the naval stations, and of vessels in the harbor in general.

The celebration began at 8 o'clock, when, at "colors," the warships ran up flags and bunting of many colors. Other shipping and the yachts in the harbor were gaily dressed and in the city the Stars and Stripes were displayed at all points.

At noon a salute of twenty-one guns was fired from all the ships of the squadron and the Constellation and each crew had a special dinner. Sports and races by the several crews, minstrel and vaudeville entertainments on the several ships were features of the anniversary.

On the quarter deck of the New York at 7:30 this evening the officers of the fleet Essex, the War College, and torpedo and training stations gave a dinner complimentary to Rear Admiral Sampson.

Schley Day in Maryland.

Baltimore, Md., July 3.—[Special.]—While Schley day was generally observed as a holiday in Maryland there were no special features. The exchanges and most of the large business houses were closed.

There was a profuse display of flags and bunting in the resident as well as the business sections, and on the vessels in the harbor.

At Frederick City, the old home of the hero of Santiago, there was a noisy celebration, winding up with a big display of pyrotechnics.

SCHLEYS'S FRIENDS AROUSED.

Maryland Republicans Will Protest to McKinley Against Alleged Misuse of Admiral.

Baltimore, Md., July 3.—[Special.]—In the interests of the Republican party, as well as the whole people of Maryland, United States Senators Wellington and McComas and Governor Lowndes will, it is said, go to Washington this week to ask President McKinley for his assistance in putting a stop to what a majority of the people call the persecution of Admiral Schley.

The visitors, it is understood, will protest to the President against the manner in which the Navy department has attempted to belittle Admiral Schley's conduct and standing. They will argue that Admiral Schley is not only a Marylander and dear to the people of the State, but that he comes from western Maryland, which is the citadel of the Republican party in the State.

In addition to this, the Admiral comes from a strong Republican family, the members of which keenly feel the injustice of this controversy, which seems to have been fostered by the Bureau of Navigation. The RESERVES KEEP CERVERA DAY.

Veteran Association Celebrates the First Anniversary of the Naval Battle of Santiago.

The Naval Reserves Veteran association celebrated the first anniversary of the destruction of Cervera's fleet last night with an entertainment in the clubrooms, 106 Madison street. Mrs. I. Shillington, whose son was killed on the Maine, sent a bunch of flowers. Lieutenant W. J. Wilson, President of the association, made the opening address. James Brodie danced the sailor's hornpipe. Professor John Williams gave an exhibition of magic, and a sparring match between Northrup and Mack followed. Addresses on the destruction of the Spanish fleet were made by E. C. Lindley and Captain L. W. Robinson, U. S. N. The officers who were present were:

Lieut. W. J. Wilson, Lieut. C. T. Jacobs,
Lieut. L. W. Statton, Captain A. P. Johnson.
Lieut. B. R. T. Collins,

The anniversary was celebrated at the Chicago Sailors' Home Mission, Clybourn avenue and North Halsted street, with an entertainment for the benefit of the children of the Sunday school, 100 of whom were present. Malcolm McNeil, chaplain of the home, and teacher in the Sunday school, delivered an address on the heroes of Santiago.

NOT THE SLAYERS OF MEIER.

Chicago Officer Satisfied That the Two New York Suspects Are Innocent.

Albany, N. Y., July 3.—[Special.]—Whether the two men arrested at Berne last week on suspicion of being the slayers of Martin Meier in Chicago are the men wanted is still unsettled. Policeman Condell returned to Chicago today without getting sight of the men whom he came a thousand miles to identify. Condell became convinced after hearing a description of the men that they were not Smith or Brower. Learning that they had gone to Schoharie he abandoned the chase.

[Chief Kipley received at 2 o'clock yesterday the following message from Policeman Condell, who was sent to Albany: "Altamont, N. Y., July 3.—Chief Kipley, Chicago: Arrived at Altamont O. K., only to find suspects were released. Have investigated and am positive they are not the men. OFFICER CONDELL."]

Ohio Democrats Attach Local Significance to the Bryan-Thurman Presidential Boom.

Cincinnati, O., July 3.—Dispatches announcing the conference in Chicago yesterday at which a Presidential ticket of W. J. Bryan and Allen W. Thurman of Ohio was suggested caused quite a stir among the Democrats here. It is claimed by the Democratic leaders here that John R. McLean will be the Gubernatorial nominee of the State convention at Zanesville next month and that in any event that he will be the Ohio man presented to the next Democratic national convention. It is thought here that the conference in Chicago was in anticipation of the McLean movement.

FIXES BLAME ON SENATE.

CHARLES EMORY SMITH TALKS OF THE PHILIPPINES WAR.

Postmaster General Tells Omaha Audience That Conflict Would Have Been Averted Had There Been No Delay in Ratifying Paris Treaty—New Army Ready—Prosperity of the Country—Tribute to Soldiers—General Wheeler's Speech.

Omaha, Neb., July 3.—[Special.]—Postmaster General Smith today placed the entire blame for the Philippine war on the Senate of the United States. He said the conflict would have been averted had the Paris treaty been ratified promptly. As an administration utterance, the speech created a profound impression.

General Joe Wheeler and the Postmaster General were the attractions in the celebration of "San Juan day" at the Greater American Exposition, and a large crowd thronged the grounds to do them honor.

The distinguished guests arrived this morning, and were met by President Miller of the exposition and the members of the Reception committee. Shortly before 10 o'clock the Second Nebraska Regiment, commanded by Major Hayward, and preceded by the Indian Band, came in from the Exposition grounds, and the party was escorted to the Auditorium, where the exercises were held.

President Miller introduced Mr. Smith, who congratulated the Western people on the opening of this exposition, "that adds a new wreath of glory to Omaha."

"This intense activity at home," said he, "this universal employment of labor, this great and increasing prosperity go on undisturbed, although we are engaged in a serious conflict, 8,000 miles away. The contest in the Philippines has not affected our unparalleled industrial revival or our matchless prosperity. In truth, the tremendous events of the last year have aided in awakening our domestic activities, or they have lifted the curtain and revealed new outlets for trade and commerce, but this trouble in the Philippines would not have come if the action of the government had been left unhampered and unembarrassed. Its success where it had free hands was unlimited and undenied. Its victory in the war with Spain stands unequaled. You will search the annals of history in vain for a parallel to its swiftness and execution and its completeness of triumph. It was as skillful in making peace as in waging war.

Blames the Senate.

"The treaty of Paris was also negotiated with extraordinary ability, promptness, and judgment. Up to that point there was no flaw in the sweep of success. Had the treaty been promptly and unanimously ratified, as it ought to have been, there would have been no conflict. The treaty was sent to the Senate early in December. Then, and for nearly two months after that time, peace and order prevailed. There was no outbreak till February. The sovereignty of the United States, established and recognized by the treaty, was accepted. But the manifestation of opposition in the Senate incited and emboldened opposition in the Philippines, and the contest of nearly two months at Washington created a new and unnecessary contest around Manila.

"We have no war with the Filipinos. It is the testimony of our commission and of all other authorities that fully 90 per cent of the Filipinos accept and welcome the American flag, which carries liberty and the promise of enlightenment and progress to them. Our conflict is only with the single tribe of Tagals, which, because of encouragement from some of our own people, and because of a misunderstanding of the real American purpose, has broken out in insurrection. That conflict has unhappily continued beyond the hope, and, perhaps, beyond the expectation of the country. It is no fault of the government. It is no fault of the soldiers. Every battle has been a victory. The American arms have never once been defeated or repulsed.

Tribute to the Soldiers.

"No soldiers ever fought more dauntlessly under greater hardships than the heroes who have borne our flag through the jungles of Luzon, and the names of Otis, and MacArthur, and Lawton, and Funston, with their gallant comrades, will ever be inscribed in the brightest records of American valor. There has been no lack of vigorous leadership and no lack of faithful and arduous service in the ranks. The only trouble has been that our numbers have not been great enough to overwhelm the insurgents and crush the revolt.

"Had the volunteers exercised their right of immediate discharge, our army would have been seriously crippled and disastrous results might have followed. But, to their undying honor be it said, they made answer which reflects immortal glory upon the American citizen and the American soldier. They said: 'We are entitled to discharges; we want to return to our homes and families; but, nevertheless, we will stay here and fight on, and we will not leave our posts until the government is ready to put others in our places.' It was a magnificent exhibition of the devotion and patriotism of true Americans.

Big Army Ready for Otis.

"The recruits enrolled under the new army law have numbered more than a thousand a week. Ninety per cent of all who have applied have been rejected because of falling short of the standard; fully 70 per cent of those accepted saw service in the Spanish war of last year. These recruits, with the reënlistments, number all told about 40,000 men, so that now, when many loyal and earnest people, without having understood what has been going on, are asking that volunteers may be called out to crush the insurrection, they awake to find that the army has been quietly reconstructed and that instead of being obliged to raise and hurry forward raw troops the government is able to give General Otis from 35,000 to 40,000 of the best trained and most effective soldiers in the world. With such a force of such quality at his command, when the rainy season is over and the fighting can be resumed the earnest desire of the country for a short, sharp, and decisive campaign will be fully realized."

General Wheeler's Speech.

General Wheeler was presented by General C. F. Manderson, who explained that he had known General Wheeler since an occasion over thirty years ago, when during his own absence General Wheeler captured his baggage train.

General Wheeler said that it gave him great pleasure to stand before an audience composed of the sons of those gallant pioneers who, with ax in one hand and rifle in the other, penetrated the Western forests and built up this empire of wealth and industry.

"It is not surprising," he said, "that the sons of such men won new and fadeless glory for their noble State. It was the people that called the country to arms a year ago, and only one out of every ten who offered themselves could be given the honor of carrying the flag to victory."

General Wheeler called attention to the statement of General Otis that nothing gives so much encouragement to the insurgents as the assurance that the American people sympathize more with them than they do with our boys who are standing on the firing line offering their lives to uphold the honor and prestige of the American flag.

TO PUNISH OFFICERS IN CUBA.

All Implicated in Affair at Cienfuegos to Be Disciplined—Royalist Plan Blighted.

Havana, July 3.—The controversy growing out of the encounter between Americans and Cubans at Cienfuegos is now in a fair way to be settled.

Captain Fenton, the Commissary who was relieved of duty on charge of endeavoring to assist the escape of the three civilian employés of the Quartermaster's department, and Lieutenant Catlin of the Tenth Infantry, who was relieved of the command of the guard of Major Rafferty's pay train on charge of leaving his post without authority, will both be court-martialed. Captain Fenton will also be tried by the civil courts, together with the policemen, rural guards, and other civilians who were implicated in the affair. This action meets with general approval in Cienfuegos.

Royalist Plot Not Serious.

La Lucha's publication today regarding the alleged project for establishing a royalist party in Cuba aroused the indignation of the promoters.

One of them said the attempt might as well be abandoned, as the premature disclosure would render its success impossible.

It appears that the anti-American Cuban officer, the "King-elect," recently collected $500 from merchants at Santiago de Las Tunas. Local opinion seems to be that he is quite a harmless individual, and if left to himself will soon wear out any influence he had.

Differ on Value of Peseta.

Although General Ludlow is not quite satisfied of the advisability of such a course, the regulation as to insurance companies, calling upon foreign corporations to deposit in the island treasury what the law requires, was issued today. A strong fight will undoubtedly be made in all cases as to the value of the peseta. The treasury will be offered American money or securities at the custom-house rate of exchange, which is 12 cents, while the ordinary banking rate is 14 cents.

Fourth at Havana.

At the Fourth of July banquet in the Tacon Theater tomorrow General Ludlow will be toastmaster and the guests of honor will be General Maximo Gomez and Señor Antonio Gonzales de Mendoza, President of the Supreme Court of Cuba. At noon a salute of forty-five guns will be fired, and the military bands will play the American and Cuban national airs, afterward returning to barracks.

Decrease in Fever Deaths.

Santiago de Cuba, July 3.—An increase in the number of new cases of yellow fever and a decrease in the death rate are the striking features of the situation. There have been ninety-four cases up to date, of which only seventeen have proved fatal. There is no fever in the city.

Alter Payment Program.

The program for the payment of the Cuban troops has been altered, owing to the proximity of the disease, and Aug. 6 has been fixed upon as a probably available date.

All other points in the province will be dealt with first. Twelve hundred Cubans have registered at Manzanillo, where payment began today, at a ratio in excess of that originally estimated as necessary.

During the hot weather it is much better to use Fig Rye than any cold drink. At druggists.

PROPOSE TO STOP WAR.

REFORMERS AT BUFFALO RESOLVE TO TAKE LEGAL ACTION.

Appoint a Committee to Co-operate with Senator Hoar and His Associates in Opposing the Administration's Policy—Clash on Professor Herron's Address and Amendments Are Forced—Militarism and Trusts Denounced.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 3.—[Special.]—The National Social and Political conference today decided to take legal action with a view to stopping the war in the Philippines.

Just how Uncle Sam is to be enjoined from his work of suppressing the insurrection the reformers did not reveal, but in all solemnity they passed a resolution by a vote of 97 to 24 "to take such legal steps as may be necessary to stop the Philippine war and to coöperate with Charles Fred Adams, George F. Hoar, John G. Milburn, Edwin D. Mear, and Roderick Smith in that work."

This unique task was placed in charge of a committee consisting of Messrs. Lentz, Jones, Herron, Pingree, and Williams.

It was a day of wrangling, however, and while the anti-expansionists were largely in the majority they had opposition enough to make the session lively. The conference broke up with a good deal of ill-feeling apparent.

Clash Over Prof. Herron's Address.

An address read by Professor Herron, criticising the Philippine policy and the alleged tendency to autocracy, was adopted, but the vote was subsequently reconsidered, after a number of addresses denouncing such action. Pandemonium ensued, as motion after motion followed, and speaker after speaker was heard or suppressed. Finally the address to the public was taken up seriatim. From time to time some delegate would arise in a spirit of desperation, trying to protest against the language of the address.

The first paragraph denounced "the war of conquest and extermination." The word "extermination" was stricken out. The words "lawless and irresponsible" were stricken from the paragraph referring to military control in Idaho.

The address as adopted refers to "the two great evils of militarism and plutocracy, which now menace the existence of the republic."

The former, it declares, is expressed in our war of conquest in the Philippines; in our continued government of Cuba; in the private use of the United States army for the complete and instant overthrow of civil government in Idaho, the establishment of military despotism in the corporate and private use of military force to destroy and terrorize organized labor and in the monstrous public corruptions that have grown out of our Spanish and Philippine wars.

"The nation," the address continues, "that strikes at the liberties of another nation commits national suicide. We cannot too greatly emphasize the fact that the militarism that seeks conquest abroad has for its ultimate purpose the destruction of organized labor at home and the defense of government by injunctions of the federal courts, which have usurped the functions of legislation and have set aside the laws of the land."

An appeal is made to the public to join in the demand for the granting of the liberties pledged to the Filipinos. Militarism is declared to be but the offspring and incident of the greater menace of plutocracy, which has established monopoly government.

Attack on the Trusts.

"By economic force based upon special privileges in law and natural resources, upon indiscreet taxation, and consequent political competition, monopoly is centralizing the wealth of the nation in the hands of enormous trusts, which are becoming irresponsible economic despotisms; which are using legislation, the judiciary, and all the functions of government as the mere instruments of private profit; which are reducing the entire people to economic serfdom or enforced wage slavery.

"Political liberty," the address declares, "is a mockery without economic liberty. Even the further extension of the suffrage, so as to grant political citizenship to women, which extension we urge and advocate, will avail little or nothing without economic freedom to all.

"We, therefore, make urgent appeal to the people to coöperate with us in the institution of such movements and the support of such men as shall propose, first, direct legislation and proportional representation; direct taxation, public ownership of public utilities or monopolies growing out of natural resources and the existence of society; the sole control by the people, through their government of their medium of exchange, and for the upbuilding and enduring establishment of a free, just, and progressive society based on these principles of political and social democracy we offer our services and our citizenship, and appeal to the good will inherent in the association of men for liberty and the common good."

Running Fire of Debate.

"Let's delve into the grab bags of our minds," said another, "and declare against the infallibility of the Pope; that the sun moves and other things we can think of and let's get it all in our platform."

This sarcasm was highly appreciated and applauded.

"I came here with my heart filled with the goodness of some of these reforms. I go away in a spirit of sadness." These words of the Rev. Henry Elliott Mott of Buffalo describe the feelings of a number of the reform delegates.

Mr. Fitzpatrick of Texas said he objected to the statement that we are living under a military dictatorship. "I love our noble Dewey," he said, "who protected the women and children in Manila." There was not a ripple of applause for this remark.

COMBINED TO FIGHT ALGER.

Report That Senators and Cabinet Officers Will Insist on Removal of the Secretary.

New York, July 3.—[Special.]—A dispatch to the Journal from Washington says:

"A change in the Cabinet is expected. Secretary Alger's resignation, should it be tendered tomorrow, would surprise no one here. It is well understood in Washington that the two Michigan Senators, McMillan and Burrows, through the latter, last week requested that Secretary Alger be removed. It is also understood that, representing the McKinley or regular Republican faction in Michigan, they have telegraphed to Senator Hanna in London and to Senator Elkins in West Virginia, Vice President Hobart at Long Branch, and other leaders, that Pingree's coalition with Alger is intended to injure McKinley's chances for renomination and reëlection, and that the 'regular Republicans' of Michigan insist on Alger's retirement as a political necessity.

"The associates of the Secretary of War agree with these views. Not one thinks he should remain in the Cabinet. Secretaries Gage, Hay, and Long, in that order, are regarded as the War Secretary's bitterest foes. For some months it has been known that they agreed with McMillan and Burrows that Alger should retire.

"Secretary Gage, it is credibly reported, intends to file a protest against Alger's retention in the Cabinet because Alger said he was opposed to Gage's financial policy. As Gage's policy is the administration's, Gage's objection is likely to have weight."

COMPLETING FRENCH TREATY.

Work Practically Finished in Arranging Commercial Concessions Between the Two Nations.

Washington, D. C., July 3.—With the return of Ambassador Cambon of France negotiations were resumed today on the Franco-American reciprocity treaty. This probably is the most important of all the conventions under consideration at the present time. Much progress has been made, and but little remains save the determination of the articles on which this government will grant concessions, in return for the entire minimum schedule which France has conceded on her side.

RUNAWAY IN TRANSIT HOUSE.

Bridleless Horse Dashes into the Hotel Lobby and Stampedes Half a Dozen Guests.

A runaway horse ran up the steps of the Transit House at the Stock-Yards yesterday at noon, and through the open doors, leaping into the hotel lobby. Half a dozen guests were seated in the office, and they stampeded as the horse kicked wildly at the clerk's desk, and then made a dash for a full length mirror at the dining-room entrance. Michael Hunter, a stockman, caught the bridleless horse by the mane and led it out of the hotel. The animal belongs to Morris Levi.

CHICAGO HAS A DAY OFF.

Most of the Players, Despite the Rain, Go Out to Harlem to Watch the Races.

The Chicago players were idle yesterday, but during their idleness the management signed a pitcher, securing Garvin, the star twirler of the Reading team of the Atlantic league. Garvin will join the team at Pittsburg, and will make his début in the game against Cincinnati next Sunday on the Chicago grounds.

Garvin bears the name Virgil without wincing. He was born in Navasota, Tex., in 1874, and started his pitching career with the Sherman club of the Texas league in 1895. He had effective curves and good speed and control. The New Haven, Conn., club heard of his excellent work and made him an offer, which he accepted. He was with that team in 1896.

The Philadelphia club secured him in 1897 and farmed him out to the Athletics. Manager Long, then of the Reading club, made a deal with the Philadelphia club by which he was to get Garvin, Carey, and a cash consideration for Shortstop Gallagher. Rogers & Reach, after agreeing, backed out, and the case was taken before the National league and the two men awarded to Long.

Garvin has excellent control, terrific speed, and keeps cool, and he won the best part of his games last season, though Long worked him entirely too hard. After his winter's rest in Texas his arm, which was sore and weak last year, was as good as ever. Chicago paid $1,500 for him.

Last season Garvin pitched more games than any minor league pitcher, having officiated in forty-eight games, winning thirty of them. This season he has pitched seventeen games, winning thirteen and losing four. In the seventeen games pitched he has struck out eighty-four men, and three of his victories have been shutouts. He held the strike out record last season in this league by striking out eleven Richmond batters, and is again holding the record this season by striking out ten of the Wilkesbarre team in a recent game. In the seventeen games pitched he has been knocked out of the box but once, and that was by Richmond, after he had gone in after having only a day's rest.

The players, most of them, were at the races in spite of the downpour, and not one of them won enough to make him independent of baseball.

The St. Louis team arrived last night at 7 o'clock and Tebeau is still full of confidence in spite of the recent bad showing of his club. The syndicate team has been bad since the infield was switched around, but it is always a dangerous opponent, and with Powell and Young pitching today may destroy the hopes of Chicago creeping up into second place, which is more than a possibility should the Cowboys capture both games from St. Louis. The unexpected defeat of Boston yesterday dropped the champions within easy reaching distance. The morning game will be called at 10:30.

The team will leave tonight for Pittsburg for a series of three games and will return for a one day engagement with Cincinnati next Sunday, departing immediately to face Boston, Brooklyn, and New York, in the northeast section of the league.

The following table, showing the successful pitchers of the league so far this year, will furnish several surprises and it will demonstrate the fact that, if Chicago had another winning pitcher to reinforce Callahan and Griffith, the team would even now be close to the lead, for, although Taylor has done extremely well, he has lost games a man of more experience would have won:

COLUMBIA IS READY TO RACE.

New Yacht Has Another Trial Trip Preparatory to Its Contests with Defender.

New York, July 3.—[Special.]—The new cup defender Columbia had another trial trip today in the sound, and, according to Mr. Iselin, it is now in readiness for its first race against Defender off Sandy Hook on Thursday.

Its crew was up at an early hour today, and by 10 o'clock five batteries had been placed in its gigantic mainsail, which is now the most perfectly fitting sail ever seen on a cup defender.

Shortly after 10 o'clock Mr. Iselin, accompanied by Mrs. Iselin, his nephew, Arthur Iselin, and Woodbury Kane, boarded Columbia. Sail was hoisted, and, with its club topsail aloft, Columbia was soon slipping down the sound. It went as far as Oyster Bay and returned to its anchorage off Echo Bay at 4:30 p. m.

The twenty painters completed their work on Columbia on Sunday night, and at 7 o'clock this morning started in to give Defender a second coat. W. Butler Duncan, its manager, came aboard from All View, Mr. Iselin's home, shortly afterward and superintended the work.

The sailors completed the work of shortening Defender's mainsail this morning, and tomorrow they will have an opportunity of testing it. There has been some disaffection between the crew and officers, and as a result eight of the Deer Island men left the boat last week.

A new order was issued by Mr. Iselin this morning concerning Columbia's crew, which for the next six weeks will sleep aboard the boat instead of the St. Michael's. Defender has accommodated its crew since the start.

The final arrangements for the first race between Columbia and Defender, which will be sailed off Sandy Hook on Thursday, are all completed. The course over which the yachts are to race will be thirty miles in length, starting from the Sandy Hook or Scotland lightship. The prize is a $250 cup, offered by the club.

HARVARD MEN READY TO SAIL.

Athletes Who Will Compete Against the English Team Will Embark Tomorrow Morning.

Boston, Mass., July 3.—[Special.]—The Harvard men who are to represent their university in the games to be held in England between Harvard-Yale and Oxford-Cambridge left for New York this afternoon. Some of the men will take part in the games of the Knickerbocker Athletic club, which will be held tomorrow. All of the men sail on the St. Paul from New York on Wednesday morning.

The Harvard team is composed finally of the following men: F. B. Fox and J. W. Hallowell in the hurdles, T. E. Burke, J. T. Roche, and J. F. Quinlan in the shorter distances, H. B. Clark and H. W. Foote in the longer distances, W. Boal and H. F. Brown in the weights, C. D. Daly, A. N. Rice, and C. M. Rotch in the jumps. There is a possibility that J. T. Harrington will be taken to fill out the list of the men in the jumps.

When the whole team is finally made up it will be accompanied by Trainer J. G. Lathrop and by E. J. Wendell and Dr. W. A. Brooks, representing the graduates from Yale. Trainer A. L. Copeland will also go.

When the team arrives in England it will go directly to Brighton, where it will go into training. In the final games the Harvard men will wear their own uniforms and the Yale men will wear theirs, no common uniforms having been adopted for the teams.

Fast Work at Henley.

Henley, England, July 3.—The Canadian eight went over the full course in 7:25 today, and the Canadian four covered the course in 8:07. Goldman, the leading Canadian entry for the diamond sculls, went over half the course in close upon 5:00. The favorite Harmonia four of Hamburg, which will row against the Canadian four, did the full course in 7:45, a wonderful performance. In a race with the Trinity Hall crew during the day the Canadian four covered the full course in 8:18, beating their competitors by a quarter of a length.

Praise for Shamrock.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE NEW YORK WORLD AND THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

London, July 3.—Sycamore, who sailed Valkyrie, inspected Shamrock today. In an exclusive interview he said he considered it the best boat ever built for the task in view. It was apparent no money had been spared, but he believed Lipton got the full value. It has the lines of a fast boat, and is altogether a beautiful craft. He is firmly convinced it possesses the best chance of any challenger so far. Shamrock is entirely bare internally, having no bulkheads and no fittings. The sail arrived yesterday. A trial of its speed is expected Wednesday.

ERNE DEFEATS "KID" LAVIGNE.

Former Lightweight Champion Is Clearly Outpointed in the Fight at Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 3.—Frank Erne of Buffalo met George Lavigne of Saginaw, Mich., in the arena of the Hawthorne Athletic club at Cheektowaga, a suburb, tonight, and after fighting twenty fierce and clever rounds, wrested the lightweight championship of the world from the Western man.

Over 7,000 persons watched the contest, which was brimful of exciting episodes and of hard and and scientific hitting. Lavigne went down to defeat and surrendered his title in a most creditable manner. He was plucky and game to the core, and for the first half dozen rounds more than held his own against his adversary.

In the seventh round Lavigne received a terrible drubbing and was only saved from a knockout by the timely interference of the gong. Erne was looked upon then as a sure winner, but in the subsequent rounds it was seen he had lost some of his steam. Just what was the cause of this was not ascertained until the bout had reached the limit of twenty rounds and Erne had been declared the winner. It was then found he had badly injured his left hand in the seventh round and if this had not occurred Lavigne's undoing might have come in half the time it took the Buffalo man to win.

Both men stripped in splendid condition. Lavigne was the favorite, much money being put upon him at odds of 100 to 90. When the men stripped Lavigne looked to be the more finely drawn. Both were cool and confident. As the fight progressed Lavigne's coolness vanished, while Erne never lost his self-possession for a moment. The Buffalo boy simply battered the title out of his opponent, and, while not escaping a good deal of punishment, he administered a terrific drubbing to Lavigne. Toward the end of the bout Lavigne's guard was useless and nothing but sheer gameness kept the Saginaw "Kid" from going under. Blow after blow fell upon his head and body with relentless force, but he stood the gaff and fought back pluckily as best he could.

Just before the fight started Jim Corbett stepped into the ring and addressed the crowd, saying: "Gentlemen, I am getting into the best of shape and will be ready to again contest for the heavyweight championship with the winner of the Sharkey-Jeffries match."

Dixon Defeats Sam Bolan.

Louisville, Ky., July 3.—George Dixon, champion featherweight, picked up a little easy money here tonight on his way to Denver. He got the decision after three lively rounds with Sam Bolan of New York, before the Nonpareil Athletic association. Bolan was practically out when the round was concluded. The bout was to have gone twenty-five rounds, and a good crowd gathered at Music Hall to witness it. Dixon went right after his man in the first round, but Bolan held his own. The second saw some warm fighting and the beginning of the end of the New Yorker. Dixon opened up in lively fashion, and soon had Bolan going. A left swing sent him to the floor, and he staid down nine seconds. He came up groggy in the third, and Dixon went in to finish him. He sent in a hot right and left on the jaw, and Bolan collapsed. He again took his full time to rise. Dixon was waiting, and a neat swing on the jaw with his left was all that was necessary to put an end to the bout. Bolan went down in a heap, but the gong sounded before the limit was counted. The New-Yorker was out of it, however, and the referee gave the bout to Dixon.

No Fights at Davenport.

Davenport, Ia., July 3.—Two fights were to have taken place at Saengerfest Hall in this city tonight. The most important of these was a go between Harry Harris and Sig Hart. Late this evening it was announced the affair would be postponed until Thursday night on account of inclement weather. What relation the postponement may have to the efforts put forth by several citizens to insure the stopping of the fights is not fully known. The same parties endeavored to prevent the Ryan-Stift match some months ago.

Mahoney Defeats Everhardt.

New York, July 3.—Young Mahoney of Philadelphia was awarded the decision on points over Jack Everhardt of New Orleans at the end of the twenty-fifth round before the Coney Island Sporting club tonight. The New Orleans man fought gamely, but Mahoney was lighter on his feet and a better ring general.

RAIN SPOILS THE RACES.

HORSES FLOUNDER THROUGH THE MUD AND WATER AT HARLEM.

Contests Under Adverse Weather Conditions Prove a Good Medium for Speculation, but Few of the Talent Secure Bargains—On the Back Stretch the Horses Are Hidden by the Mist and Interest Centers in Their Appearance at the Finish.

Three thousand people huddled in the pine sheds at the Harlem Equine Natatorium yesterday afternoon and wagered their money, while out in the pouring rain six races were perpetrated. All that could be seen was a blank wall of mist, a steady downpour, and occasionally some horses floundered into view and wallowed down the stretch in a funeral procession, forming a sad travesty on the sport of kings.

As a medium of speculation the races were successful, but of the 3,000 who went shopping at the track few struck a real bargain. The odds were as weird and strange as the racing itself, for the bookmakers usually offered the same price against each horse at the start, and, as the public invested in each horse in every race, the bookmakers simply made the odds to keep the books balanced.

There was no excitement. The dampened crowd bet, then huddled together until the horses, plastered with mud until they were unrecognizable, hove in sight at the head of the stretch, and, after watching the long drawn out procession splash by, went again to the books and guessed again.

After some sparring Solace and Edinborough were chosen favorites in the opening event at a half mile for beaten maiden 2-year-olds, while Barrett's entry, Zeriba and Mona Murphy, were neglected, although as good as 5 to 1 was posted against it. When the procession floated into view Zeriba was leading and Mona Murphy was second, the two having secured the lead and held it by keeping in the shallow water near the inside rail, and they came home in the same order.

Marietta II. was whispered to be the "good thing" in the second swimming contest at three-quarters of a mile, and, from the time the horses came in sight, she was trying hard to catch Red Gidd, but coming past the stand Seaton hit up the stroke and Red Gidd slopped across the wire and won without much trouble.

There was much speculation on the third event, a 3-year-old benefit at one mile. Lime Water and Springer were heavily backed and pounded down to astoundingly short odds, although Hanlight and Charlo found friends. Lime Water did not mix well with rain water, and, besides, was jarred out of the running on the far turn, and Charlo came down through the shallows an easy winner with Springer following in a furious effort to get up.

Maceo ran away from the field in the fourth with Fred Barr second.

Phallas and Annis Palmer divided the betting in the fifth, although every horse in the race was well backed, but Dick Furber liked the water and won cleverly from Prestome, who pushed him going over the first four furlongs, then stopped.

For some reason Olekma was made favorite in the last event, but Azua won without much effort, for Diana Fonso stopped coming down the stretch and was beaten after seeminly having the race at her mercy.

REALIZATION STAKES TODAY.

Ethelbert Will Be the Favorite—Tragedian Beats Imp and Others.

New York, July 3.—The Realization Stakes, the richest prize of the year in the 3-year-old division, will be run tomorrow at Sheepshead Bay. The promise is of six starters. G. E. Smith's $10,000 purchase, Lothario, carries the top weight, 122 pounds. Then follow Filon d'Or, with 119; Ethelbert, 118; Half Time and The Bouncer, 112 each; and Lackland, 109. Ethelbert will be the favorite. The second section of the Double Event, for 2-year-olds, is another feature of the card.

A good card and fine weather attracted an unusually large crowd to Sheepshead Bay today. The Pansy Stakes was the only feature scheduled. The third race, at a mile and a furlong, was the feature of the day. Every horse had a following. Imp, the Suburban winner, closing a lukewarm favorite at 7 to 2. They broke to a good start, and Imp at once set out to make the running, closely followed by Box. She held the way up the backstretch, with Survivor and Tragedian close up. The same order was maintained into the stretch, when Odom called on Tragedian, who came away and won cleverly by two lengths in record time, Survivor beating Imp a head for the place.

Sadducee, at 1 to 4, won the fourth race by a head, but was disqualified for fouling Montanic as they came into the stretch.

"Steve" l'Hommedieu, the ex-outlaw, who has been eclipsing all the former generation of plungers of late, celebrated the day in great style. It is more than probable l'Hommedieu did not himself know what he had won tonight. He began by clearing up $45,000, it was said, on The Bobby, and then "lumbered onto" Tragedian in great style. According to his own statement he landed $100,000 on the two races, but a close friend and a conservative man said that the amount was at least $65,000, and probably somewhat more. L'Hommedieu was not the only one of the new school of plungers who was playing in luck. The juvenile "Little Willie" also fancied Tragedian and is said to have won $9,500.

ROAD RACE TO PULLMAN.

LIST OF RIDERS AND THEIR NUMBER IN TODAY'S EVENT.

Annual Contest of the Wheelmen Is to Start from the Corner of Van Buren Street and Michigan Avenue at 10 O'Clock—Some Changes in the Course, Which Is Paved Most of the Way, So That It Will Be Little Affected by the Rain.

Numbers which the contestants in the Pullman road race, which starts this forenoon at 10 o'clock, will wear are now in the hands of the riders.

Following is the course: Start at north line of Van Buren street in Michigan avenue, thence south to Sixty-third street, east on Sixty-third street to Rhodes avenue, south to South Chicago avenue, southeast to Cottage Grove avenue, south to Ninety-fifth street, east to Cottage Grove avenue, south in Cottage Grove avenue to One Hundred and Sixth street, west in One Hundred and Sixth street to Fulton avenue, south in Fulton avenue to One Hundred and Seventh street, west in One Hundred and Seventh street to Pullman avenue, south in Pullman avenue to finish.

Everything is in readiness for the contest, and the wheelmen believe that yesterday's rain will have little effect on the race, as the course is over pavement nearly all the way. A big field will probably start, as the numbers were nearly all taken by the entrants.

The course has been changed so that instead of following South Park avenue from Sixty-third street to South Chicago avenue the contestants go three blocks farther east and take Rhodes avenue. At the intersection of Rhodes and South Chicago avenues Chief Checker Johnson will be stationed to catch the numbers of the riders as they pass.

Checkers will be stationed at various points along the route in order to avoid any chance of "ringers." The numbers will be collected also immediately when the contestants finish, and will be checked through after the race.

The numbers and riders follow:

New Amateur Mile Record.

Waltham, Mass., July 3.—At the Waltham track bicycle races today the American one-mile amateur paced record with a flying start was broken by E. E. Ryan of this city. Ryan rode strong throughout and made the distance in 1:40 flat, which is within three-fifths of a second of the world's record. The former American record was 1:43 2-5, made by Arthur Gardner at the Willow Grove track, Philadelphia. Ryan was paced by two quads and three quints. At 5 o'clock Burns Pierce and Frank Waller started on a twenty-four-hour motor paced race.

YALE MEN IN CONSULTATION.

Athletic Leaders Lay Plans to Make the New Haven Teams More Successful.

New Haven, Conn., July 3.—[Special.]—What is the trouble with Yale? Twenty fresh-faced undergraduates met today in historic Dwight Hall to answer the question. The campus was deserted, for Yale men have scattered for the long vacation. There was a time when Yale won everything. Football team, baseball team, crew and track athletic teams all were beaten this year.

The conference was attended by Dan Schweppe, manager of next season's eleven; Stuart Camp, Captain of next year's nine; Captain Allen of this year's defeated crew and Captain of next year's; Manager Dana of the track teams; Reuben C. Twichell, manager of the baseball team; and Dave Twichell, President of the football team.

With these youngsters were three veterans of days when Yale won, Walter Camp, five years a player on victorious elevens; Ray Tompkins, '84, another football crack; and Butterworth, '95, Billy Bull's successor as a star full back. There, too, was Lewis T. Welch, '89, editor of the Yale Alumni Weekly and winner of the junior exhibition prize. He presided.

What is the matter with Yale? Everybody had a different answer. For two hours the discussion went on. Mr. Welch proposed a series of suggestions, and the young Captains and managers debated them. It was decided that Yale must have a professional—following the example of Cornell and Pennsylvania—to have general charge of athletics. Then there will be one general committee—faculty, graduates, and undergraduates—with general supervision. A definite sum will be allotted to each team, regardless of what may be subscribed by graduates and undergraduates for special teams. One financial committee will be responsible for all bills. These are great departures.

"We did little that was definite," said Mr. Welch. "Yale does not pull together now as she did in my day, when she won everything. We hope to start right next season."

Two matches were played yesterday morning in the Chicago Tennis club invitation tournament. John Neely played a strong game against Waidner, winning by a score of 6—3, 2—6, 6—4. The Bond-Neel match was not finished on account of rain. Bond won the first set, 6—4, and the score stands 7—7.

The schedule for today is:

At 10 a. m.—Bond vs. Neel, unfinished; Bond vs. Myers; Neel vs. Neely.

At 2:30 p. m.—Collins vs. Myers; Neel vs. Waidner; Bond vs. Burkert; Neely vs. McQuiston.

Wednesday at 3:30 p. m.—Bond vs. Collins; Myers vs. Waidner; McQuiston vs. Burkert.

All the remaining matches are good ones and are decisive in the assignment of the position of the players.

Oxford-Cambridge Cricket Match.

London, July 3.—The Oxford-Cambridge cricket match today attracted an unusually large crowd of fashionable people to Lord's grounds, although the weather was cheerless and threatening. Oxford was all out in the first inning for 192 runs. At the close of play today Cambridge had scored forty-four runs for two wickets down in the first innings.

Race Meet for Sioux City.

Sioux City, Ia., July 3.—Sioux City is to have a big race meet from Sept. 12 to 16, under the auspices of the Riverside Park Amusement company. Ten thousand dollars in purses has been hung up, the money being already on deposit in a local bank.

Anson Bowling Alleys to Open.

Anson's bowling alleys at 135-141 Madison street will be opened tonight. The feature will be a match between the Illinois champions and a picked team.

General Sporting Notes.

Jacob Schaefer yesterday posted $100 forfeit for a match at cushion caroms with Eugene Carter, Schaefer to concede Carter 15 per cent. Schaefer will not play in a public hall unless a $300 purse is guaranteed.

Schaefer's Billiard Academy will open on Thursday with T. J. Gallagher, John Daly, John Matthews, and William Hatley to assist the Wizard. A combination table, that can be changed from a carom to a pool frame in three minutes, is being constructed and will be used later. Among the pool experts who will appear are De Oro, the champion, and Keough and Eby. Daly will also figure in the pool games.

FOUR YACHTS TO RACE.

FIRST OF THE TRIAL CONTESTS WILL START THIS FORENOON.

Josephine, Prairie, Genesee, and Bald Eagle Will Be the Contestants in the Competition for the Honor of Trying to Bring the Canada Cup to Chicago—Briar Not Yet Finished, but May Qualify in Time for the Preliminaries.

This morning at 11 o'clock four of the fastest little yachts that have been built on the inland lakes will hoist their sails, and, crossing the line at Van Buren street, will engage in the first of the trial races to determine which of them is to meet the Canada boat next month at Toronto.

Each of the boats sailing today has been built expressly for the purpose of going to Toronto to attempt to wrest the Canada Cup from the Canadians, and they represent the most modern and latest ideas of yacht architecture.

The intention of the Chicago Yacht club, which is the promoter and this year the challenger for the Canada Cup, is to sail these races until one of the yachts shall have won three out of five.

The course is the triangular one, starting at the gap at Van Buren street, and swings around the two cribs located farthest south and north, the entire course being in nautical figures twenty-one knots, making seven knots to each leg of the course.

Accompanying the yachts will be Pathfinder, which has been selected as the judges' boat, while the guests of the club will witness the race from a steamer selected for that purpose.

The four boats which will sail today are Josephine, Prairie, Genesee, and Bald Eagle. The following statistics give an idea of the three types of boats, one of which is to settle the all-important question:

Briar is the only boat that has not been completed in time for the first race, but George R. Peare hopes to have it done in time to get a chance at qualifying. Of the other boats Genesee is the only out of town yacht, the Rochester Yacht club having organized a company and built it for the race. Genesee is the only centerboard in the lot. It was built on Buzzard's Bay by Hanley, the celebrated designer, and will be sailed by C. G. Davis, a prominent yachting authority. Genesee measures 45 feet over all, has a 27-foot water line, and an 11-foot beam. Its depth is 5 feet.

Prairie, owned by F. W. Morgan and C. H. Thorne, is an improved cutter, and was built at Ogdensburg, N. Y. It measures 45 feet over all, is 28 feet at the water line, has a 9-foot beam, a 7-foot draft, and carries 1,500 square feet of canvas. It has a 35-foot boom, a 24-foot gaff, a 22-foot hoist, a 45-foot mast, while it has fourteen separate sails for use in all kinds of weather.

Bald Eagle, the last one to be finished, was brought down from Racine on Sunday. It is owned by George Warrington, F. K. Bull, R. T. Robinson, and Fred Robinson. It is 46.6 feet over all, has a 9-foot beam, a length of 27 feet at the water line, a hull draft of 18 inches, a total draft of 5 feet, and carries 2,000 square feet of canvas. Its fin weighs 5,500 pounds, being in the fin keel class.

A syndicate headed by Burt Whitely built Josephine. It is of the same type as Prairie, and has shown great speed in practice. Its lead water line is 27 feet, its beam is 10¼ feet, its sail area 1,500 square feet, its racing measurement 34.94 feet, its draft 6 feet, tonnage 8 tons, and the length over all 45 feet. It carries five tons of lead.

This brings together in one race three separate types of yachts—fin keel, cutter, and centerboard. All of them will be thoroughly tested, and the one that makes the best showing in the opinion of W. R. Crawford and John B. Berryman, the Canada Cup committee of the club, will go to Toronto.

PLACATES THE CAR MEN.

ROSSITER SATISFIES BROOKLYN RAPID TRANSIT EMPLOYES.

President of the Road Meets a Committee of Workmen and Promises to Consider Their Grievances — Now Little Likelihood of a Strike—Rumor Again Selects Mrs. Ladenberg as a Wife for Ralph Ellis—General News of a Gotham Day.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, New York, July 3.

When President Rossiter of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company met a committee of five of his employés today the first question he asked was whether they came to him as representatives of labor unions or as employés of the road.

Rapid Transit Employes Meet Rossiter.

Three of the five said they were sent by District Master Workman Pines. Mr. Rossiter said he would treat with them only as employés of the road, and the men yielded. When General Master Workman Parsons and Mr. Pines learned of this they were much chagrined.

Mr. Rossiter agreed to look over the time schedule and reduce the hours of labor if possible. The $2 a day rate and 20 cents an hour for trippers will be maintained. The committee asked that two-thirds of the men should earn full pay. President Rossiter said the pay rolls showed that 60 per cent of the men were on full pay, and the committee seemed satisfied.

After the conference President Rossiter said:

"We have talked over the grievances, and everything now is satisfactory. I am always glad to see any employé. I've told these men that if any one is discharged within a year by a superintendent for him to call on me and I would take care of him."

Secret meetings of the railroad men were held tonight. The committee told the results of the conference, and the report was declared satisfactory. There is now little likelihood of a strike.

"Jimmy" Oliver, "Prince of Paradise Park," "Duke of Cherry Hill," and Sergeant-at-Arms of the Democratic National committee, started for the Klondike today. Several hundred of his constituents followed him about the East Side while he made his farewells and completed his preparations for the trip.

Rumor once again predicts the marriage of Mrs. Adolph Ladenberg, the widow of a rich Wall street broker, to Ralph N. Ellis of New York and Newport, and master of the Meadowbrook hounds.

Mrs. Ladenberg May Marry Ralph N. Ellis.

Mrs. Ladenberg is in England, where, in this year's London season, she has been much admired by the Prince of Wales and fêted by his set. She met the Prince on the continent. The rumors of her approaching marriage with Mr. Ellis have been believed by the circle of mutual friends of both several times since Mr. Ladenberg's mysterious death in February, 1896. They began before the first year of her widowhood was over. Mr. Ellis had been and has continued to be devotedly attentive.

Mr. Ladenberg either fell overboard or committed suicide by jumping from the steamboat Niagara on its voyage from Nassau. On Feb. 23, 1896, the vessel arrived after a stormy voyage, and reported the loss of Mr. Ladenberg. A steward's man saw him last lying in his bunk, seasick. When he returned some hours after the servant found the cabin empty. Mr. Ladenberg apparently had gone on deck at some time in the night. His clothes were hanging in his stateroom.

Mrs. Ladenberg is of the dashing type of small dark women, with beautiful hair and eyes, and an athletically graceful carriage. Her marriage to Mr. Ladenberg was a much talked of event in 1885.

By Mr. Ladenberg's will all his property, estimated at $7,000,000, was left to her as sole executrix.

The naphtha launch Dandy, with twelve persons on board, which was reported missing last night, was found today stranded near Rockaway Beach. All on board were safe. The launch was towed off by an oyster sloop.

There arrived in this city today copies of the New Era, a prominent Catholic journal of London, of June 24, containing an interview on "Americanism" with Archbishop Ireland in Paris.

Archbishop Ireland on "Americanism."

The Archbishop is now in London, and it is expected he will sail for this country in a week or so. The interview is particularly noteworthy from the fact that in interpreting the Pope's recent letter on "Americanism" Archbishop Ireland differs widely from Archbishop Corrigan. Archbishop Ireland expresses the belief that no theological errors in the Catholic Church in America were condemned by the Pope's letter, for none exist here, he says.

Archbishop Corrigan, on the other hand, in a letter to the Pope last March thanking the Holy Father for his encyclical, describes the errors condemned by the Pope as "the monster which, in order to acquire the rights of citizenship among us, assumed to itself the fair name of 'Americanism.'"

In his interview Archbishop Ireland does not hesitate to pay his respects to those foreign Catholics who have assailed him and his friends. He says:

"If by Americanism we are to understand theological errors condemned in the Pope's letter, there has been and there is no such thing in America. The letter proclaimed truths, always held and firmly believed. The only thing that created a ripple of excitement in the United States was the insult offered to America by certain men in France who designated such errors as 'Americanism.'"

"Why they even made us shovel snow last winter," complained Joseph Keating, late of the Waldorf-Astoria, tonight. This partly explains why some of the Waldorf's housemen have struck. Manager Hilliard says only ten men have left. The men say they number twenty-five. "I got worse food than I did when I was with the Sixty-ninth New York at Chickamauga last summer," said William Lawler, one of the strikers. On this point Manager Hilliard of the Waldorf-Astoria dissented strongly.

Plans are in preparation for a model tenement-house that is expected to revolutionize the tenement-house system of this city. The architects are acting under the direction of Professor C. J. Fairchild of Hartford Theological Seminary, and Professor Fairchild's son, Walter, is at present in this city in connection with the scheme.

Plans for Model Tenement House.

Professor Fairchild has made a special study of tenement-house conditions. The new scheme is to build one house on an entire block. It will be eleven stories high, and constructed of steel and other fireproof material. Its main feature will be an immense court roofed with glass, with elevators in the center.

There will be no hallways or stairways in the house, excepting one spacious hallway leading from the street to the elevator system. A balcony will run around the inner court on each floor. Bridges will converge from each balcony to the central elevators. Each flat will have its entrance on the balcony, so that in this way absolute privacy to each family is assured.

Two large or three small rooms will constitute some flats, and others for large families will take up the space of two ordinary flats. In the basement there will be baths, laundry, and heating and lighting plants. There will also be a cold storage plant to supply refrigerators set in the kitchen of each flat.

William J. Bryan will not be present at the Tammany Fourth of July celebration at the Fourteenth street wigwam tomorrow. Neither will ex-President Grover Cleveland nor ex-Senator David B. Hill.

Prominent Democrats to Be Absent.

It was said at the Democratic club that both Mr. Bryan and Mr. Cleveland have neglected to acknowledge the receipt of invitations sent them. All of the out-of-town speakers who have been scheduled for long and short talks arrived today, and dined at the Democratic club tonight. Judge A. A. Van Wyck will be boomed for the Presidency on the new Tammany-Southern Democracy platform.

J. M. Cascanova, who says he represents the Cuban government, was at the office of the Cuban Exposition and Trading company, 11 Broadway, today, having just returned from Washington, where he saw Secretary Alger on the subject of refunding Havana's public debt.

Cascanova Confident of Success.

Mr. Cascanova says that a New York syndicate has promised to lend Havana $25,000,000, of which $13,000,000 will be used to redeem the city's outstanding bonds and the remainder expended on public works. He says he is confident of placing all the bonds here at 5 per cent.

From delivery boy to special partner is the record for business achievement established by Albert C. Bostwick, who is now but 22. He started in to make his way in the world by taking the position of delivery boy with the firm of stock brokers, Walter C. Stokes & Co., 68 Broadway.

From Delivery Boy to Special Partner.

On Aug. 1 Mr. Bostwick will be a special partner, a place that will cost him in the neighborhood of $100,000. John A. Bostwick, the young man's father, is a multi-millionaire, and until last December Albert C. Bostwick had no business cares, but it was then he obtained the place of delivery boy and settled down to work in earnest. In June, 1898, Mr. Bostwick married Miss Marie E. Stokes, a daughter of Henry B. Stokes, President of the Manhattan Life Insurance company. He is a member of the Meadowbrook Hunt and the Meadowbrook club. His $10,000 four-in-hand, Lord Chester, Lord Chumly, Lady Flavia, and Lady Ursula, took the blue ribbon in the 1898 horse show.

"I am sorry for the 'blonde,' but the popular taste has turned from her. Audiences won't have blondes. The theatrical blonde had better realize at once that her only road to salvation is to buy a pot of black hair dye."

Public Turns Against the Stage Blonde.

Thus spoke Manager George W. Lederer of the New York Theater, while rehearsing his new play, "Wild Oats." Within the last few weeks he has dropped ten blondes from his company. In "Wild Oats" out of seventy women there are only three blondes—Miss Susie Drake, Miss Irene Bentley, and Miss Chase. Of these Miss Drake is the only one whose hair, it is said, comes naturally by the hue it wears.

"It isn't my fault," went on Mr. Lederer. "You know what the public is. When you find you've got a Jonah aboard you must pitch him into the water. A theatrical manager has to do as the public says, and I'm afraid that one genuine blonde and two chemical ones will be even more than they can stand in this show."

The discovery made by Mr. Lederer that the blonde is not now in season has been remarked by others. Theatrical men say that bleached blondes have brought about the revulsion.

A move of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company made at Bridgeport, Conn., today reveals the fact that war has been begun against that company.

Hartford Line Buys Bridgeport Water Front.

This is highly significant in view of the newly acquired control by the Vanderbilts of the Boston and Albany, the consolidated roads' most important rival, and the reports that this was preliminary to acquirement of the New York, New Haven and Hartford. The New Haven road has purchased the water front at that place owned by the People's Steamboat line. This gives control of the only available wharf property at Bridgeport. The Boston and Albany road, just before it became a Vanderbilt property, had obtained control of the New Haven Steamboat line, thus anticipating an attempt to absorb the latter.

All Manhattan avenue is terrified. For a fortnight past there has not been a night when some house or apartment has not been robbed. Every house between One Hundred and First and One Hundred and Second streets has been entered.

Whole Block Is Raided by Burglars.

The first robbery took place two weeks ago when burglars broke into the apartments of H. F. Strong, 21 Manhattan avenue. They got two gold pins, a monogram pin valued at $75, two gold bracelets, two sets of gold cuff links, and a score of silver trinkets. The house next door, No. 23, was robbed next day. There the Hunt family lost clothing, silverware, bric-à-brac, and jewelry valued at $1,000. A week ago 46 Manhattan avenue, across the street, was robbed of $1,500 worth of silver and jewels. And so it went on down the block.

Philip Sidney, a negro, who was one of the leper inhabitants of the North Brother Island lazaretto, walked into Bellevue today, apparently entirely cured of his leprosy.

Negro Apparently Cured of Leprosy.

Drs. W. S. Stone and A. H. Mandell examined him. "He certainly is cured, as far as I can see," said Dr. Stone last night. "I examined him when he was here as a leper, and all of the symptoms he then had are gone. He is a new man in a normal condition." Sidney's case is the wonder of the doctors who examined him. Sidney says the drug which cured him comes from India.

Police Search for Missing People.

The police have been asked to aid in the search for William Bohn, 66 years old, who last Friday disappeared from his house at 8009 Vincennes avenue, and later was seen on the Ninety-second street bridge over the Calumet River, also to help find Mrs. Lena Leshner, 91 McHenry street, who left there on Sunday with her two children, after threatening to drown herself.

Those swell man tailored suits and costumes, the acknowledged fashion leaders, at prices never equaled before. Chas. A. Stevens & Bros.' great annual clearance sale commences Wednesday. Read their advertisement in the morning.

FOURTH OF JULY IS HERE

CHICAGO SURRENDERS TO PATRIOTISM, PLEASURE, AND DIN.

General Celebration of Greater Proportions than Usual Expected—Estimate That $100,000 Worth of Fireworks Will Be Burned in the City—Dewey Has a Long Lead as Favorite in the Designs—On the Campus and in the Parks.

Chicago today surrenders to the Fourth of July and the observance of the anniversary of national independence. With oratory and patriotic music, mass-meetings in parks and halls, the closing of shops and factories, and the din of cannon and fireworks, patriotism will commemorate the event of 1776 and celebrate the victories which have come during the last year. The pyrotechnic bombardment began before midnight, and until the small hours of tomorrow morning the noise will reverberate from suburb to suburb.

Today's celebration is on a greater scale than those which have marked former years. Picnickers will gather by thousands, special holiday events of all kinds have been arranged, and from the morning salutes by the Lake View Light Artillery, fired in Lincoln Park near the captured Spanish cannon which a year ago yesterday belched out balls from the Maria Teresa toward Sampson's fleet, until the city goes to sleep in the smoke of fireworks and the glow of red fire, the noise and ceremonies of Independence day will continue.

Fireworks Bill, $100,000.

Chicago will burn up fireworks aggregating a total value of $100,000, according to the estimates of dealers, while the bill for the whole United States is expected to reach near $3,500,000. Though the municipal foot has been put down on the cannon cracker, these explosives have been widely purchased. The blunderbuss and revolver also will seek to dodge the eyes of the police and add to the racket. The small boy will be in evidence the day through, as the sale of fireworks this year has been larger than ever before. The heroes who have arisen during the last year will figure prominently in the displays which will blaze throughout the city and country.

Dewey Leads All.

"Admiral George Dewey is the most popular man in the United States today," said one of the prominent dealers in fireworks. "Every city in the country which has arranged a formal display wants a set piece of Dewey. We've sent 'Deweys' from Maine to California and can't keep up with the orders. They have grabbed for the 'Olympia,' too—a set piece which shows Dewey on the bridge of this vessel. George Washington isn't in it this year. We've sent out a few 'Washingtons' and 'Grants' and a number of 'McKinleys,' but Dewey is so far in the lead that the others are simply not running, so far as fireworks are concerned."

The Sampson-Schley contest has been actively revived by purchasers of the "Santiago boomers," a firecracker in a coat of Spanish yellow bearing the photograph of either of the two naval officers.

"Give me a Sampson bunch," said one purchaser, "as I'll greatly enjoy blowing his features into bits." And the Sampson supporter bought the Schley firecrackers for a similar reason. Others bought the "Manila boomer," from which the features of Dewey peer under the assurance that "Dewey did it."

In Chicago alone it is estimated that 7,500,000 Roman candles will bombard the heavens, together with 3,750,000 rockets. Pinwheels are expected to swirl out their showers of sparks in equal number.

Order on Giant Crackers.

Dealers state "officially" that few dynamite crackers have been sold, and in some instances charge that police officers in their eagerness to enforce the city ordinance harmed trade by condemning explosives made in the usual way of black powder. Chief Kipley insists that the firing of cannon firecrackers of a length greater than five inches will result in arrests, but the twelve-inch crackers went home in the bundles of thousand of citizens to swell the storm of noise today.

"If the ordinance is properly observed," said Mayor Harrison, "there need be no decrease in the enthusiasm and enjoyment. The small boy will find it much more agreeable to keep his arms and legs than to explode a few of the 'big ones.' I am having my own troubles over that proclamation, for one of my neighbors states that he has secured the largest firecracker in the market and will explode it before my residence. If I arrest him I suppose we'll have a family quarrel, and we don't want that. I'll have to solve the problem some way."

In the Parks.

When the Lake View Light Battery, which is soon to become a part of the National Guard, fires the sunrise salute the new flag presented by Park Commissioner Dunton will be thrown to the breezes from the staff which has been erected in Lincoln Park. At Humboldt Park Troop A of the First Illinois Cavalry will furnish the military feature. A model of the battleship Kearsarge, constructed by Egbert R. Dull, will be anchored in the lake near the platform built for the exercises. The little boat is twenty-five feet in length and has a full armament, being propelled by steam and carrying three men.

At Chicago University.

Patriotic services will be held at the University of Chicago and will include an address by President Frank W. Gunsaulus of the Armour Institute at 10:30 a. m. in Kent Theater. In the afternoon at 4 President A. H. Strong of Rochester Theological Seminary will deliver an address on "The Progress of Theological Thought in the Last Fifty Years." This will take place on the campus. In the evening from 5 to 7 o'clock a reception will be held on the campus for the incoming students.

The stage on which a dozen variety performers will entertain today the 500 prisoners in the County Jail has been erected in the north corridor of the old jail. It occupies the corner in which the scaffold is always placed. There will be a full cornet band and a dozen variety performers, headed by "Bobby" Gaylor, to entertain the prisoners. "Ben" Harris will be stage manager, Jailer Whitman general director, and a score of guards will act as ushers. Bert Morphy will sing topical songs.

Asks Pity for the Sick.

Commissioner of Health Reynolds has made an appeal on behalf of the sick persons in the city who will be disturbed today by the noise of the celebration. He asks that residents near the hospitals be considerate of the inmates of those institutions in the discharge of explosives. The Health department records show each July an increase in the death list for the week of the Fourth of July, and say this is due largely to the effect of the explosives on those who are suffering from disease.

The department heads estimate there are thousands of persons on sick beds throughout the city, and believe if the neighbors would be more considerate of those the harm would be decreased.

Chief of Police Kipley has sent out instructions to the department to watch districts carefully for violations of the orders sent out. Chief Swenie of the Fire department is ready to do his share to make the celebration as little destructive as possible. The heavy rain yesterday brought relief to the Fire department, the statement being advanced that the record of 140 fires established a year ago will not be equaled by half.

At Lincoln Park, through the action of the Park Commissioners, the firing of firecrackers on the grounds or boulevards has been strictly prohibited.

Six Boys Hurt in Explosion.

Six boys were hurt yesterday by the explosion of a can of gunpowder. They were:

Marach, William, 16 years old, 45 Fay street, burned about the face and hands; removed to County Hospital.

Koberowski, John and Frank, aged 15 and 16 years respectively, 36 Fay street, burned about the face; removed to their home.

Rokowski, John, 14 years old, 36 Fay street, face and arms burned; removed to his home.

Ryttewicz, Stephen, 15 years old, 32 Fay street, face and hands burned; removed to his home.

Berkil, John, 16 years old, 17 Fay street, burned about the face; removed to his home.

Only Young Marach is seriously injured. His burns are severe. All the boys suffered intensely. The boys found a small can and purchased a quantity of gun powder, which they placed in it. Marach was carrying the can and all the boys were smoking cigarets. A spark fell into the can and there was an explosion. Young Marach was thrown to the ground, screaming, his face black with powder marks. His companions were close to him, and all of them received marks of the powder in their faces.

The boys say they purchased the powder from a stranger, and he is being sought for by the police.

Firecrackers Wreck a House.

The "Fourth" was ushered in at 323 Chicago avenue last night by the collapse of two floors of the three-story building in course of erection at that point. Small boys and giant firecrackers are said to be responsible for the accident, which occurred shortly before midnight. The building is the property of William Bush, 247 Chicago avenue. It was damaged to the extent of $300.

Residents in the neighborhood were aroused by the crash as the floors fell. Just previous to the collapse the explosions of two giant firecrackers sounded, and it is thought these were fired in the basement of the building, the concussion shaking the walls so that the floors collapsed. The police of the East Chicago Avenue Station made unsuccessful efforts to find the persons who set off the firecrackers.

A. W. THURMAN, WHO MAY RUN WITH BRYAN.

At Sunday's Sherman House conference Allen W. Thurman of Ohio was favorably spoken of as a candidate for Vice President on the Democratic ticket in 1900.

W. GOODSMITH IS DEAD.

MANAGER OF THE NEWBERRY ESTATE EXPIRES AT HIS RESIDENCE.

Financier Associated with W. H. Bradley and E. W. Blatchford, the Trustees of the Great Property, Since 1869—Takes Part in Many Leading Events of the Century—Came to Chicago in 1861—Funeral to Be Held Tomorrow.

William Goodsmith, for thirty years the manager of the Newberry estate, which gave to the North Side the Newberry Library, died yesterday afternoon at his residence, 959 North Clark street, aged 76 years. The funeral will take place tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the residence. Interment will be at Rosehill.

Born in Baltimore, Md., in 1823, Mr. Goodsmith participated in many leading events of the last half century. He was a "'49er," and spent four years at the California gold mines. He returned to his native town with a fortune. In the beginning of 1861, after the confederate troops had burned the bridges, he fled from Baltimore with his family and settled in Chicago. In the same year he became connected with E. W. Blatchford as agent for the Sanitary commission, and was at the front during many of the battles of the civil war.

In 1869 he became manager of the Newberry estate and was associated with William H. Bradley and E. W. Blatchford, the trustees. In the big fire of 1871 Mr. Goodsmith saved the valuable records and papers of the estate from destruction.

Though a financier during the greater portion of his life, Mr. Goodsmith was not educated for a business career. He began life as a portrait painter, and before the days of the daguerreotype made his living as an artist.

Mr. Goodsmith had been a Methodist for fifty-four years, having joined the old St. John's Church, New York, when a boy. He was trustee of the Wesley Methodist Episcopal Church, Chicago, for many years, and had been connected with the congregation since 1868.

He was married in 1846, his wife dying two years ago. He left three sons and two daughters—E. S. Goodsmith, bookkeeper of the Newberry Library; Dr. W. P., and Dr. H. M. Goodsmith, Mrs. George Forster, and Mrs. John Braidwood. They all live in Chicago.

Monkeys Reach the "Zoo."

Fifteen monkeys marched into the Lincoln Park "Zoo" yesterday and registered as guests of Keeper Cy De Vry. These animals are a part of the order recently placed by the Park Commissioners, and were secured from Hagenbeck's Gardens at Hamburg, Germany. One member of the party died during the trip to the United States. Within a few days other additions to the park menagerie are expected.

Fines Two Garbage Collectors.

For violations of the clean street ordinance William Bucholz and John Cook were fined $1 and costs each by Justice Prindiville yesterday. They were garbage contractors, and were arrested in the down-town district by the Central Station police.

Open all day July 4. Stevens' photo studio, McVicker's Theater Building.

Failure of Anecdote Psychology. In the current number of the Monist Professor Whitman says that many of the modern students of comparative psychology are too impatient of the laborious methods of Darwin to weigh the facts and test their thoughts and inferences over and over again, but prefer to reach the heights of their science by a few hours of parlor diversion with caged animals. He investigates several cases of alleged feigning in animals furnished in a recent volume of Animal Intelligence by Mr. Mills of McGill University, and shows that the observations indicated no feigning at all on the part of the animals, and that the Canadian scientist failed to get reliable data at just the most critical points. "Any attempt to soar to the nature and development of animal intelligence, except through the aid of long schooling in the study of animal life, is doomed to be an Icarian flight. The subject of animal intelligence has scarcely yet emerged from the mythical state."

The Brevity of Fame. The St. Paul Dispatch says that "Secretary Alger might take warning by the experience of a former Secretary of War—William M. Stanton—who finally left a Cabinet when he had to." "How soon we are forgot when we are gone." There was a Secretary of War named Edwin M. Stanton, who played no mean part a third of a century ago. He was much hated by some and much admired by others, and his name was familiar to all. Today a prominent journal is ignorant of his baptismal name. Nor did Mr. Stanton leave a Cabinet "when he had to." He remained in the War department in spite of President Johnson's efforts to get him out until the impeachment proceedings resulted in failure. Had he chosen he could have kept his place until Johnson's term expired. He withdrew voluntarily. If, thirty-one years after Mr. Stanton ceased to be Secretary of War, a paper calls him "William," how many years will elapse after General Alger ceases to be Secretary before papers will begin calling him "Robert" or "Richard" instead of Russell?

The Fayerweather Will Case. The Fayerweather will is now to go through the United States courts and to be decided finally by the Supreme Court at Washington. The will of 1884, which made generous bequests to twenty colleges, has already been approved in the New York courts and these colleges have received their shares. Of the original six millions of the estate there remains undistributed only $671,000, but if the will of 1884 should be decided against in the court of last resort the fortune will have to be recollected by long, tedious, and expensive legal processes. From the attorneys' standpoint there is nothing objectionable in all this, as it means a harvest of fees, but from the standpoint of those who have a simple sense of justice it will seem little less than scandalously unjust that a case can be dragged on in this manner years after a testator is dead. Time enough has elapsed since Mr. Fayerweather's death to have settled a dozen such estates, but no one can say how or when his estate will get out of the courts. It is safe to say it will not get out so long as it has any pickings for lawyers.

Nietzsche's Uebermensch. In the current number of the Monist Drs. Goebel and Antrim trace the acceptance by the German people of the philosophies of Hegel, Schopenhauer, and Nietzsche to the demands of the age that gave them birth. In the fifties the pessimism of Schopenhauer was welcomed by the German people, who had lapsed into hopeless despondency on account of the political tyranny which followed the revolution of 1848. After the Franco-German war this despondency gave way to unparalleled enthusiasm and jubilation, and the philosophy to meet their changed condition was supplied by Friedrich Nietzsche. In the eighties he introduced "the ideal of a more highly developed, superior man, the Uebermensch," to the world with subtle and irresistible eloquence. The right of the individual to obey absolutely all the instincts and impulses of his nature, to make his will regnant, whatever opposes it, to free himself from the habits and customs of our decadent age, to exalt self and the few who can rise, and degrade the many who must succumb that the few may rise the higher—this is Nietzscheism.

Secretary Alger and Trusts. Secretary Alger is an anti-trust candidate for the Senate. He says that the trusts are "corrupt and unscrupulous," that they "threaten the foundation of the government," and that he is going to "make every effort to drive them out of existence." These are cheering utterances. But some Western papers are printing an opinion rendered by one of the Michigan Supreme Court Judges some years ago in which it is said that "it appears from the testimony of General Alger that the organization of the Diamond Match company was in a measure due to his exertions." That company is not technically a "trust," though often spoken of as such. It is a consolidated concern which has secured a practical monopoly of the manufacture of one of the necessaries of life. When Secretary Alger says he is the deadly foe of trusts, does he mean that he is opposed to all such monopolistic affairs as the Diamond Match company, which he is charged with helping to build up? If so, when did he come to the conclusion that it was his duty to drive out of existence combines like the one he had assisted in creating? When did he learn that, like another Frankenstein, he had created a monster? These are interesting points concerning which the Secretary should enlighten the Michigan voters.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

Americans have more solid reasons for celebrating the advent of Independence day in 1899 than in any of the previous 123 years of our national history. This Fourth of July brings more cause for rejoicing than the last, though the battle of Santiago and the destruction of Cervera's fleet had then just passed into history. Within the intervening year the full promise of those two victories and of Dewey's crashing blow at Manila has been realized. Spanish sovereignty has ceased in the western hemisphere, and the American flag floats over the lands in the Orient and Occident which Spain forfeited through its intolerable misgovernment. The United States is larger, stronger, greater, and more universally respected than ever before in its history. The eagle has every reason to scream.

A year ago Toral was still in the trenches at Santiago and Blanco was still behind the fortifications at Havana. The final blow of the war had been struck, but nobody could yet know this for a certainty. Not till July 14 did Toral surrender Santiago and not till July 26 did Spain sue for peace. Aug. 12 brought the protocol, Dec. 10 the signing of the peace treaty, Feb. 6 the ratification by the Senate, and April 11 the final exchange of ratifications that inaugurated peace. The grand total of the war's results belongs to the year of independence that has just closed, and the thought may well fire all patriotic hearts with new pride in the greater America.

Doubtless the majority of the men and women who welcome the day are thinking more of picnics than of patriotic historical data, and the state of the weather is a more vital question than the Declaration of Independence, or the surrender of Cornwallis, or the text of the Spanish peace treaty. The small boy is more interested in the number of firecrackers and rockets he is to have than in the number of guns fired at Manila and Santiago. But only the austere and shallow moralist will regard these cheerful superficialties as indicating any lack of real patriotism. The merry-makings of the American people today will be the best of proofs that they appreciate the security and blessings founded on the nation's great past. Though not one person in ten may recall the fact that the Fourth today has a meaning to Porto Ricans and Cubans which it never had before, and that loyal Filipinos are celebrating the day as well as themselves, yet joy over the outcome of the war will be a large factor in all the day's activities. Would the day be the same if the war with Spain were still undecided?

Though the original significance of the Fourth of July arose from the signing of the Declaration of Independence, the day has constantly been gathering new glory with the growth of the nation. Just as the Stars and Stripes now stand for a far greater nation than in the days when Washington first raised a national emblem over his regiments, so the Fourth stands for all the added power and domain that have come to the nation. This is the first year in which the United States has been recognized as a world power among the other great nations of the world. In this sense it is the year of a new declaration of independence, and today is more than ever a "glorious Fourth," to be celebrated in all the worthy ways that Yankee ingenuity can invent.

BICYCLE RACING WITHOUT HANDLEBARS

In yesterday's TRIBUNE the unique feat was reported of a Milwaukee man who rode fifty-two miles in three hours and twenty-seven minutes on a bicycle without handlebars. This is a speed of approximately fifteen miles an hour. It will probably be imagined that this speed could be increased merely by an increase in the muscular energy of the bicycle rider, and that a man with greater strength and more endurance will be able to break this record. This, however, is not so. The dynamical conditions which determine the stability of the motion of a bicycle without handlebars are entirely different from those of an ordinary wheel.

Most bicycle riders must have noticed that if they attempt to ride their wheel with their hands off the handlebars it is almost impossible to do so whenever the speed falls below a certain amount. On the other hand, it is possible to ride a wheel with the hands on the handlebars with almost any degree of slowness. When the speed is moderately great the cyclist can ride with ease without grasping the handlebars, and he is apt to imagine that on increasing his speed to any extent this stable equilibrium is maintained. This, however, is an error. In the Quarterly Journal of Mathematics for March Mr. Whipple of Trinity College, Cambridge, investigated the condition that a bicycle could be ridden without holding the handles. He found that there are four critical velocities connected with the stability of the motion. Taking the case of a typical machine, he found that for velocities greater that 12.2 miles per hour the motion is unstable, but may be rendered stable by a rider who turns the front wheel towards the side on which he is falling, or who moves his body away from that side. The force he has to exert in the former operation is comparatively great, whereas the distance he has to move his body in the latter case is small.

For velocities between 12.2 and 10.4 miles per hour the motion is stable, even when the rider does not use his body and makes no use of the handles. For velocities less than 10.4 the motion without handles is unstable, but between 10.4 and 8.5 it is stable for a rider who moves his body through a small distance in the same direction as the fall is carrying him. This distance is one-twentieth of the distance he is moved by the swaying of the machine. For velocities between 10.4 and 7.4 the motion is stable for a rider who keeps the motion of the handles as small as possible. For velocities below 7.4 a rider who combines the two methods and uses both his weight and his hands may be successful. The balance at such low velocities is not automatic, but is a feat which requires conscious attention.

Mr. Whipple considers that the second velocity mentioned (10.4 in the bicycle he considered) is the most important factor in determining the ease of riding, but unfortunately its calculation for any given machine is not easy. The value of the limiting velocity is fairly definite for each machine, and depends on the dispositions of lengths and weights, which vary in all bicycle types.

The fact that Mr. Bottolfson, the Milwaukee rider, attained an average speed of fifteen miles an hour shows either that he has a specially constructed bicycle, whose limiting velocity is abnormally high, or that he was specially skillful in giving his body that lateral movement which is requisite for equilibrium at that high speed.

If bicycle racing without handlebars becomes popular its conditions will resemble those of yacht racing rather than those of ordinary bicycle riding. Two kinds of skill will be requisite—the skill of the bicycle designer, who must contrive to have the limiting velocity as high as possible, and the skill of the rider, who must contrive to get the most out of his machine.

Northwestern Track Elevation. The Northwestern road has elevated fifteen miles of track. By so doing it has done away with 150 grade crossings. This means a saving of time by pedestrians, street car passengers, and teamsters. The value of the time thus saved cannot be figured out, but it is considerable. This means also a saving of life and limb, for in spite of all precautions there will be accidents at grade crossings. This elevating has cost the road eight million dollars, which at 4½ per cent is an annual charge of $360,000, and yet the investment, large as it is, is a profitable one for the road. There will be no more damage suits. The services of an army of watchmen can be dispensed with and in addition better train service can be secured. As a result of elevation the Northwestern is putting on more suburban trains and is running them at a higher rate of speed. As a consequence it will do more suburban business and add to its profits from carrying passengers. Thus track elevation is a double blessing. It benefits a railroad and all who travel on the streets the road crosses. Nor should it be forgotten that a large part of the eight millions was paid out as wages to men who would otherwise have found it hard to get employment.

A MUGWUMP CALUMNY.

Mr. Charles J. Bonaparte, a Baltimore lawyer, delivered the Phi Beta Kappa oration at the recent commencement at Harvard. Mr. Bonaparte is an anti-expansionist of the Edward Atkinson sort and a political pessimist of the Professor Norton sort. Naturally his address, which was devoted to national affairs, was one which gave delight to the mugwump faction at Harvard and which equally disgusted all robust Americans.

So far as Mr. Bonaparte's pessimism is concerned, no one will care except the little American crowd. It is characteristic of them to think that the country is going to "the demnition bowwows" whatever happens. All people outside their little circle are degenerates who are incapable of maintaining a popular government. The ark of the covenant is in their keeping. Like other fanatics they are not satisfied with the slow but sure processes of evolution. They wish to reach the highest ideals of government at a bound. Being so ideally perfect themselves they have no patience with the imperfections of the rest of the world. This, however, counts for nothing. The people have become accustomed to this kind of pessimism.

But Mr. Bonaparte went much farther than this. He chose the occasion of the most conspicuous gathering at the commencement of a great university, where he was sure of having an unusual audience, to make a dastardly charge against President McKinley. He said:

> It ought to be, but I do not think it, incredible that a resolution of Congress actually or virtually declaring war may be one day signed by a President who himself believes war "contrary to the best calculations of policy" for this country, but has been led to think it also, and perhaps to think it falsely, necessary or advisable to assure his party's victory at the polls, possibly to assure his own reëlection to office. I say this, fully recognizing the moral obliquity involved in his act. A heavier weight could hardly rest on any man's conscience, a more formidable indictment could hardly await any man at the bar of history, than must fall to the lot of one who knows he has bartered the lives of his fellow-countrymen, the security of his country, the peace of the world for partisan advantage to gratify personal ambition. Washington may have reasonably believed that no man capable of such conduct would ever sit in the chair he first filled; for us, this belief is, to my mind, no longer reasonable.

Put into plain English, this is an accusation by Mr. Bonaparte that President McKinley plunged this country into the war with Spain merely for partisan advantage to his party and to expedite his own chances for reëlection. This accusation was not the outcome of ignorance. Mr. Bonaparte is too well posted to make a mistake. It was a reckless, willful, malicious perversion of the facts of current history in keeping with the policy of the anti-expansionists. He knows that President McKinley waited with infinite patience for Spain to relieve the situation in Cuba. He knows that while the rest of the country was clamoring for war, and the capital resounded with protests against his hesitating policy, the President refrained from giving his assent to war measures, hoping that Spain would guarantee peace and order. Even after the treacherous destruction of the Maine he still hoped war might be averted. It was only when the situation became "intolerable" and the whole nation rose in its indignant wrath that he assented to war. No man struggled harder for peace than President McKinley. To accuse him of making war to subserve his personal ambitions is an atrocious calumny, which will not help the anti-expansionists. It shows them in their true light.

ANTOINETTE STERLING DEFENDS MAN.

A voice has been lifted in defense of man. It was not the voice of one crying in the wilderness. It was a voice which has been heard and admired by many thousands—the voice which has so often celebrated the quest for "the Lost Chord." In the International Woman's congress, which has now been in session many days, there are women from twenty-six nations, and until Saturday last no word was heard advocating the cause of man, but on that day arose Antoinette Sterling, and with that mellifluous voice which has charmed great multitudes of listeners she eloquently pleaded for man. It required courage, for May Wright Sewall and Sarah Hackett Stevenson were sitting near her, and Susan B. Anthony was looking at her, but she did not flinch from delivering her message. She knew that she was regarded by the assemblage as a lost soul wandering in outer darkness, but she had the courage of her convictions.

Antoinette Sterling notified her sisters they ought to recognize the existence of man in the universe, not merely the rights but the existence of man, and that they should disabuse themselves of their prejudices so as to see all sides. The remark implies that the new woman has been ignoring the existence of man. Starting from this great truth, she enunciated one principle after another in rebuke to her sisters, who must have regarded her as having taken leave of her senses. But how sane Antoinette was! She told them "men are like the belt in a machine that keeps all the wheels in running order"—a scientific statement confirmed by the reckless way in which the feminine wheel runs when the masculine belt slips off. She told them that intelligence and true love were without sex, which was as much a plea for woman as for man. Evidently she has no use for sex. The rights of woman do not exist for her. It is the rights of the human being for which she pleads. Neither sex has a monopoly of intelligence or of love. These qualities have no gender. Then the speaker uttered her final heresy, which aroused a storm of disapprobation. "Men are just as noble as women. The only difference is one of conduct." Such a sentiment as this in an international congress of women was like a bolt out of a clear sky. She clearly was regarded as a lost soul, as one who has wandered from the faith, as a pitiable victim of masculinity, cherishing the heel which has crushed her.

It required courage for Antoinette Sterling to take this position, but those who know her know she has courage. Courage has no sex. She is a broad, progressive woman. She has progressed farther than the other delegates to this congress. She is a woman of the world. To her there is but one country for men and women, "God's country." There is but one creed, "Love your neighbor as yourself." There is but one church, "the great church invisible." A larger measure of emancipation will be needed before these women reach Antoinette Sterling's high plane of freedom. But how all men will admire and love the sweet singer who spoke so courageously for them! And when these other women notice it they will be sorry, if not jealous.

BRYANISM IN THE SOUTH.

One of the men who are to speak at the Tammany Hall Fourth of July celebration is Mr. Willett, the President of the Alabama State Bar association. As he is a representative of intelligent Alabama Democrats who are not professional politicians, some statements made by him in an interview are worth notice. They show that the free silver delusion is dying out in the South as well as in the West, and that the likelihood of its being a live issue in the next campaign is decreasing.

Mr. Willett says silver has many friends in the South, but "there are thousands of voters who do not believe that silver can win." Even the friends of silver have to admit that with a Senate which will be Republican for six years to come, a successful free silver campaign would be barren of results. According to Mr. Willett, "the Democrats in the South have no confidence in the Democracy of the West." That section was allowed to make the platform and name the candidate three years ago. The West has swung back, however, to its old Republican position. Therefore "we of the South are in favor of going back to the old alignment of New York, Connecticut, and Maryland if we can." Of course, to do that "16 to 1" will have to be dropped and the Democrats will lose some Populist votes. Mr. Willett seems to be resigned to the loss. The platform he favors is an anti-tariff and an anti-trust one.

What he has to say about candidates will give Mr. Bryan a chill. He observes that that individual has "a great many friends in the South—friends of the kind that every defeated candidate has." But, on the other hand, "there are thousands of Democrats who would not be sorry to see some other candidate nominated." The statement is made that Judge Van Wyck, who has been spoken of as the Tammany candidate, is popular at the South.

It is apparent that the intelligent Democrats of that section are drifting away from Bryan and free silver. They may drift quite a distance before the convention meets.

A Foolish Exhibition. It is possible that Mrs. Irene Brush of New York may receive the plaudits of some thoughtless persons for having made a 400-mile cycle run, and may plume herself upon having broken the record of female cyclers. In the end, however, she will have little compensation for this act of folly. No woman can make such a demand upon physical endurance without suffering from it. The description of the woman as she came in, "exhausted in body and mind, her eyes glaring, her cheeks hollow, and her flesh ten pounds lighter than when she started," indicates the suffering which is in store for her. Nature always takes revenge for such outrages. Reasonable exercise with the wheel is unquestionably conducive to bodily vigor, but such exhibitions as this and that of Murphy in his race against time, paced by a locomotive, should be forbidden by law. They answer no good purpose, and only offer the temptation to others with more brawn than brain to outdo them, and inflict serious injury upon themselves.

THE COFFIN COMBINE.

The National Casket company—"casket" is a more elegant and less repellant word than "coffin"—has taken in a number of other concerns which manufacture the same necessary but unpleasant article. Thus there is to be a great coffin combine and the dead as well as the living must pay tribute to a trust. It should be said, however, that the head of a Chicago company, which is one of those absorbed, denies that this is to be the case. The objects of the combine, he says, are economy and education. These are excellent objects when not attained at the expense of others.

The economic features of the combine are those dwelt on by all promoters of trusts. The cost of making and distributing goods is to be reduced. The people are to be educated by the opening in all the large cities of finely equipped storerooms for the display of coffins and all kinds of burial goods. It is assumed that men and women will visit these melancholy storerooms and thus be "educated up to good judgment in the selection of burial goods, matters about which the average man now knows little."

This is a subject concerning which most men and women do not want to be instructed. They know that to this conclusion they must come at last, but they do not wish to think about the matter any more than they can help. It is true that some persons—Sarah Bernhardt is one of them—have bought their coffins in advance, and perhaps have made better selections than their heirs would have made for them, but these provident individuals will not have many imitators. Undertakers and coffin-makers are hardened by their trade. It may seem natural to them that husbands, wives, or children, anticipating the death of life-partners or parents, should familiarize themselves with the price and quality of burial goods, so that when the inevitable hour comes they can do their burial "shopping" intelligently. But those who are not in the funeral business will not take kindly to the idea. They will feel that "where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise."

The "finely equipped storerooms" for the display of coffins will not be popular resorts. People will not visit them "to learn something about the trade and get an idea of comparative values." The educational feature of the casket combine will be an utter failure. As for the economies of that combine it is doubtful whether the purchasers of its goods will share in them. The natural inclination of the consolidated concern will be to raise prices and make death a little more expensive than it is now.

SOUTHERN BID FOR MANUFACTURING.

Dixie, a publication from Atlanta, Ga., evidently devoted to the promotion of Southern manufacturing, makes a naïve suggestion—without explicit words—to Northern capitalists that they would do well to locate their manufacturing plants in the South. The basis for the suggestion and for the confident assurance that "the manufacturing center of the United States will one day be located in the South" is the assertion that the negro, being "a fixture," "stands as a permanent and positive barrier against labor organization in the South."

There is a twofold difficulty with this appeal. In the first place, it is not high-minded, and in the second place it is probably not true. That "inducements" should be urged upon manufacturers to transfer their enterprises from one location to another is of course entirely within the code of legitimate "business," even though this may mean leaving behind silent mills and hands without employment. But that manufacturers should abandon their Northern locations in order to plant themselves amid the cheap labor of the South, and that the negro himself should thus be converted into a menace to the employment and standard of life of the "Northern laborers," who lately shed their blood for the black man, not only violates our sentiments but happily runs counter to the dominant laws of industry. A few capitalists have made such a change, but in the main manufacture must remain with the skill and energy of the North.

That labor organization involves problems of the gravest import we fully recognize. That it will not follow manufacture into the South, however, or that the South is to escape its share in working out those problems, is as unlikely as it would be unfitting. A certain amount of manufacturing naturally belongs to that part of the country, and the amount is increasing. The negro, however, in his present generation at least, lacks the skill and application requisite to supplant the Northern worker, and that his incompetence should be exploited by Northern manufacturers to avoid labor organization is as impossible as it would be ungallant. The problem of organized labor is as ubiquitous as industry, and the negro will hardly afford any short-cut solution.

IN A MINOR KEY.

The Way of the World.

"O, it's such a grand thing," exclaimed the enthusiast, "to be a young man, with the whole future before him!"

"Yes," said the cynic. "What interests us in the case of a man is his future. All we want to know about a woman is her past."

In the Fourth Grade.

"Give me some familiar proverb about birds," said the teacher.

Tommy Tucker raised his hand.

"The early bird——"

He paused a moment, and tried it again.

"The early bird——"

"Yes," said the teacher, encouragingly. "That's right."

"The early bird gathers no moss."

His Narrow Escape.

"George Ferguson," sharply exclaimed his wife, after the visitor had gone, "I wouldn't for worlds be as big a hypocrite as you are!"

"In what way," he demanded, "have I been acting the hypocrite?"

"You know well enough. When Cousin Jerry showed us the picture of the young woman he is going to marry you said, 'She's as pretty as a picture!' and you know she is homely enough to loosen the paint on a brick wall."

George scratched his chin and reflected a moment.

"Mrs. Ferguson—madam," he said, "don't accuse me of hypocrisy. She is as pretty as a picture—her own picture."

Even then it did not occur to Mrs. Ferguson to retort that this explanation didn't help him any, as the photograph surely was retouched.

And an opportunity for crushing a husband, once lost, never turns up again.

Sad Affair.

The West Side mother whose boy is the proud possessor of a young goat was dining out.

"Dear me!" she said, as a familiar sound came to her ears from somewhere out of doors, "whose kid is that?"

After a horrified silence the dignified hostess replied that it was one of those noisy children living next door.

All unconsciously, however, the West Side mother has acquired a reputation for slanginess she will never be able to live down.

Not Unlikely.

"Hello, Major! You look as if you had been sick. I haven't seen you at lodge meeting for a long time. You didn't give me the right grip, either, by the way."

"Probably not. The grip I've had at home for the last month has made me forget all my other grips."

On the Corner.

"How are you, Simms? How are you? How are you? What's new with you? How are you getting along?"

"Not very well, Jordan. I've been suffering for several weeks with rheumatism in my right knee. It hurts me worse in the morning than at any other time of the day, though sometimes it keeps me awake at night. The pain seems to be right in the middle of the joint, as a general thing, but once in awhile it hurts just below the knee. Sometimes it's in front and sometimes behind. Never can tell when the twinge is going to come. No medicine I can find seems to do it any good. I bought a new lawnmower last week. Cost me $4.25. Used it once, and it got disabled. Had to take it to a repair shop. It needed a new screw put in and had to be overhauled in every way. I am having rather bad luck with the repairs on my barn. It rained the other day when I was having a lot of reshingling done. Spoiled some of the things in the barn and put me back a day or so. The shingles didn't prove to be as good, either, as I thought they were, and—what are you yawning and looking so restless about, Jordan? If you didn't want to know how I was, what was new with me, and how I was getting along, what did you ask me for?"

Suggestions by a Kicker.

Run up the flag!
We are due for a patriotic jag.
Unfold the starry banner,
Play "Yankee Doodle" on the grand pianner,
And take a long enough vacation
To read the Declaration—
If you have the inclination.
Breathes there the man with soul so dead,
Who wants to lie and snooze in bed
On this tremendous morning?
If such there be, go mark him well
And serenade him with a yell
To serve him as a warning.
Proud bird of freedom, thou
May'st screech thy loudest now
And higher soar.
Thy brood is larger than it ever was before.
And all ye boys,
Turn on your noise!
Whoop, howl, and shoot.
Heed neither man nor brute,
Throw firecrackers in the air,
Or anywhere.
Burn, destroy,
With patriotic joy,
And have no fear,
For this great land
Can stand
One day of anarchy in the year!

Unique Name for a Dog.

"I don't know what to call my new dog," said a Memphis man yesterday.

"Call him Schley," suggested one of his friends. "Call him Dewey," said another.

"I don't like to call him Dewey," said the owner of the purp, "because nearly every dog in town is named Dewey now."

"If you want to give him a name that no other dog in town will have," observed the baldheaded man, "you had better call him Sampson."—Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S WHAT.

HOW MEMBERS OF THE ENGLISH PARLIAMENT GET OUT OF OFFICE.—There is an unwritten law to the effect that no member of the English House of Commons shall resign his office. At frequent intervals, however, a member of the House wishes to leave office for one reason or another. In such cases an interesting legal fiction is utilized. Two or three centuries ago the range of chalk cliffs which pass through England from east to west through Buckinghamshire were the abode of a band of desperate outlaws. So daring were they that the crown appointed an officer, called the Steward of the Chiltern Hundreds, whose duty it was to protect the inhabitants from their outrages. The outlaws have long since passed out of existence, but the office still remains, and the man who holds it is paid 20 shillings annually by the crown. The English law provides that no man holding an office of profit and honor from the crown shall be eligible to the House of Commons. Accordingly, when a member wishes to resign he applies for the Stewardship of the Chiltern Hundreds. It is always given to him, and with his acceptance of the office his membership in the House ceases.

IF DEWEY WORKED AT DAY WAGES.—Admiral Dewey's salary amounts to $37.50 a day; President McKinley's is equal to $131 a day; Cabinet officers, the Vice President, and the Speaker of the House get $22.22 a day; Senators and Congressmen, $13.90; and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court $29 a day.

AMERICAN MINISTER OF WAR IN COREA.—For the last eleven years an American soldier has been the Minister of War in the far off Hermit Kingdom of Corea. It was in 1888 that General Dye, who was formerly Major of Police in Washington, went to Seoul, the capital of Corea. Soon after his arrival he was put in charge of the army of the King. Under his direction Remington rifles and other modern weapons were introduced from the United States. General Dye was given as a residence a house immediately adjoining the royal palace, because he was the only man in whom the King had complete confidence. After the invasion of the country by the Japanese General Dye still stood loyally by the royal family, and was several times threatened with assassination. Now, after his long service, he is on his way home to visit his family, who reside in Muskegon, Mich.

ANOTHER CHURCH WHERE PROTESTANTS AND CATHOLICS WORSHIP IN COMMON.—A correspondent referring to the recent description in "The Tribune" of the church in Heidelberg, Germany, which is occupied jointly by Protestants and Catholics, calls attention to the chapel at the National Military Home near Leavenworth, Kas., in the upper rooms of which the Protestants worship, while on the ground floor the Catholics, at the same time, hold services. He states that this joint occupation of the building has never been the cause of the slightest friction.

BIRDS DRINK OUT OF "OOM PAUL'S" HAT.—In the public square of Pretoria, south Africa, stands a statue of "Oom Paul" Kruger, President of the Boer republic, with which England is just now hesitating on the brink of war. The thrifty Boers, recognizing what the old man has done for them, determined not to wait until after his death to honor him with a monument. Accordingly they had plans drawn for a statue showing their hero in the old black coat and stovepipe hat which he had worn to church every Sunday morning for years. The completed sketches were shown to Mrs. Kruger for her approval. She had only one suggestion to make. It was her idea that the top of the hat should be made hollow and left uncovered, so that the rain would fill it and it could be used as a drinking trough by the birds. Her suggestion was adopted, and today in the public square of Pretoria there is always a flock of birds fluttering like a halo about the top of the statue.

HIGHEST FLIGHT OF STEPS IN THE WORLD.—Heretofore travelers have boasted of climbing the steps leading to the top of the Bunker Hill monument, which contains more than 400 steps, or of the Washington monument, which is a little higher. Now, however, Philadelphia has set a new mark. The stairway leading to the tower of the Philadelphia City Hall will surpass them all. It contains 598 steps, and is said to be the tallest continuous stairway in the world.

ITALIAN SPY IMPRISONED IN FRANCE.—The picture is from a drawing from life of General Gilletta, the Italian army officer who was caught near Nice, France, with plans of several French fortifications and other important military information in his possession. At his trial last week at Nice it developed that Gilletta had abused French hospitality, as he had been the guest of several officers, and had taken advantage of the opportunity to gather the secrets of the French War office. He was sentenced to spend five years in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $1,000. Almost every government of Europe maintains a spy system for the purpose of keeping track of the military plans of its fellows. If one of these spies is caught, as was General Gilletta, he is left to depend on his own resources, as, of course, no nation could recognize publicly its connection with a spy.

SKIES OF JULY.—Yesterday the earth was in aphelion. That is, it was at its greatest distance from the sun. It was 3,000,000 miles further away than it was six months ago and will be six months from now. The reason why it is hottest when the earth is farthest from the source of heat is, that in the summer the sun's rays strike the earth at a less oblique angle, and are also felt for a greater length of time each day than in winter.

PRETTY GIRL DRUGGIST WHO STUDIED IN CHICAGO.—Three years ago Miss Evelyn Williams was one of the prettiest students at the Chicago College of Pharmacy. After her graduation she went back to her home in Minnesota and entered the store of her father in Minneapolis. She showed such interest and intelligence in her work that before long it was recognized by the druggists of the State. Now they have elected her one of the Vice Presidents of the State Pharmaceutical association and next year her friends predict that she will be advanced to the Presidency. She has won her position solely on her merits. There is no suspicion that the druggists of Minnesota, though the most gallant of men, have been moved by anything but her fitness to preside over them.

ATTORNEY GENERALS TO THE FRONT.—In Ohio former Attorney General George K. Nash has been nominated for Governor. In Kentucky a majority of the delegates to the Republican State convention have been instructed to vote for W. S. Taylor, the present Attorney General. In Massachusetts H. M. Knowlton, the Attorney General, was given the support of many counties in his candidacy for Governor. Attorney General A. J. Montague of Virginia is a candidate for Governor, as is D. R. Blackburn, the present chief law officer of Oregon. There seems to be a general disposition to make the position of Attorney General a stepping-stone to the higher office of Governor.

FATHER OF HIS COUNTRY AS A PRIZE FIGHTER.—It is a patriotic pleasure on the Fourth to remember that the measurements of George Washington, which have been preserved, show him to have been a bigger man than even Champion Jeffries. William Blaikie, the authority on things athletic, has calculated that with a little preliminary training the Father of His Country would have had no difficulty in disposing of Mr. Jeffries in about two rounds. Jeffries is six feet and one inch tall; Truthful George was an inch taller; the champion weighs 204 pounds in training; Washington, without an ounce of superfluous flesh on him, weighed 230; Jeffries measures forty-three and one-half inches around the chest; George measured an inch more. Where the conqueror measures twenty-four and one half inches about the thigh the Father of His Country measured twenty-five and a half inches. It is on record that Washington could lift a horse, throw a stone across the Potomac, and jump twenty-three feet. In all these feats he surpasses any prize fighter that ever put on the gloves. It will probably be a lasting regret to sporting men that Washington had retired to Mount Vernon before pugilism became the national sport.

COMIC OPERA IN A WHALE'S MOUTH.—One of the most unique attractions at the Pan-American exposition, which is to be held at Buffalo, N. Y., in the summer of 1901, is to be, if the plans of its projectors are carried out, a summer theater in the interior of a gigantic whale, which is to be anchored in the shallow water near the shore of Lake Erie. The whale is to be built of iron and steel. Little launches are to carry visitors out from the shore, and the ticket office is to be located in the whale's lower jaw. The theater is to be given up to comic opera and vaudeville. In addition to the novelty of the scheme it is thought that the location of the theater is such that it will always be cool and comfortable, even in the hottest weather.

FOURTHS OF JULY.

Not all the nations have anniversaries which are quite so important datemarks in the world's history as the Fourth of July. Many of them, however, have days which hold a somewhat similar relation to their own annals that this date does to the political life of the United States. France will have a celebration on July 14, which will be observed by Frenchmen all over the world, and be participated in by many persons who are not Frenchmen. On that day, in 1789, the old political prison, the Bastile, the most hateful emblem of Bourbon tyranny, which had confined within its walls at one time and another Richelieu, Voltaire, Latude, the Man in the Iron Mask, and many other personages who figured in a conspicuous or inconspicuous way in the history of France, was destroyed in a rising of the Paris populace. "It is a revolt," exclaimed Louis XVI., when the tidings were carried to him in Versailles. "No, sire," said the Duke of Liancourt, "it is a revolution." From that day dates the beginning of the French revolution, the most sweeping political convulsion of the world's annals. The "deluge" which Mme. Pompadour predicted forty years earlier had come.

The Swiss celebrate Aug. 1, and rightly so, for on that day in 1291 the representatives of the cantons of Uri, Unterwalden, and Schwyz entered into the league and covenant against the Austrians, from which dates the beginning of their confederation and their present republic, the oldest of the republics of today. Sept. 12 is another great datemark in Swiss history, for on that day in 1848 was established the first federal constitution which Switzerland ever had. France, the other European republic, does not celebrate any day in connection with the history of its present governmental system, but if it should do so an appropriate day would be Sept. 4, on which day in 1870 Napoleon III. was deposed, the second empire overthrown and the third republic proclaimed. The birthday of the present kingdom of Italy is Oct. 2. On that day in 1870, the City of Rome then being occupied by the troops of Victor Emmanuel, the people of the Papal States decided by a large majority to unite themselves with that monarch's other dominions, and Italy, which had previously, in the words of Metternich, been merely a geographical expression, became a concrete fact.

Most appropriate of all the days for England's Fourth of July would be June 15, the day in 1215 on which the Barons extorted the Great Charter from King John—the patent which, in connection with the petition of rights of Charles I.'s days, the habeas corpus act of Charles II.'s time, the bill of rights of William and Mary, and the act of settlement of William III., forms the foundation of the British constitution. When, on Dec. 4, 1870, the King of Bavaria, in a letter to the King of Saxony, nominated the King of Prussia, the grandfather of the present William II., for Emperor of Germany, the movement began which, culminating with the coronation of that monarch in the hall of Louis XIV.'s palace in Versailles, on Jan. 18, 1871, brought the present German empire into being. In Spain's long and picturesque history there are a few dates which stand forth conspicuous as great datemarks in its annals. Jan. 2, 1492, the City of Granada surrendered. This marked the final extinction of Moorish power in Spain, which had lasted seven centuries. A greater datemark in Spanish history even than this was Oct. 18, 1469, when Isabella of Castile married Ferdinand of Aragon, the whole of Christian Spain became united, and the history of that country as a modern state began. A still greater day in Spanish history—one of the greatest days in the world's annals—was Oct. 12, the day in 1492 on which Columbus got his first glimpse of the Western hemisphere, and which made, for several centuries, the annals of Spain the history of the world. That day is Spain's real Fourth of July.—Globe-Democrat.

Bread Is Unfashionable in St. Louis.

"I am so glad to see that you are still eating bread," said the hostess, as her guest buttered a thin slice, and gave it a little twisting roll.

"Yes, but why?" asked her friend.

"You surely are aware of the fact that it has been voted plebeian to eat bread, are you not?"

"Well, I can't say that I was aware of the fact a moment ago; and who is authority for the statement?"

"I visited a friend in Cabanne, for a few days, and she politely but firmly informed me that, as the best society had decided that the custom of bread eating was plebeian, it could not have a place upon her table. But that if I insisted upon eating the vulgar stuff the maid would procure some for me, and it would be placed upon my plate, where she desired that I would keep it out of sight as much as possible. Of course, I declined to put any one to the trouble of getting it for me, and, to tell you the truth, I nearly starved to death while I was there. Another plebeian thing is to eat potatoes at any meal except dinner."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

SECRETS OF WAR HISTORY

NEWS OF SCHLEY'S VICTORY SUPPRESSED FOR FOURTEEN HOURS.

Colonel Allen's Dispatch Disbelieved and Washington Officials Await Report from Sampson Before Making Public Information of Cervera's Defeat—Extension of Rural Free Delivery—Bids on Postoffice Annex Opened—Luzon's Long Rainy Spell.

WASHINGTON BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Washington, D. C., July 3.

One year ago tonight was an anxious time for the President and his Cabinet. Soon after the fleet of Cervera had been destroyed by Schley and his fighting machines Colonel James Allen, in charge of the signal corps, heard the news from Cuban scouts and telegraphed it to Washington. Schley had been superseded when the New York arrived on the scene, and of course could make no direct report. Sampson was apparently busy concocting his remarkable dispatch in which he attempted to hog the victory Schley had declared was "great enough for us all." Thus it happened that Colonel Allen's dispatch stood alone for fourteen hours.

Secrets of War History.

It was so remarkable, so unexpectedly glorious, that the President and his Cabinet advisers were afraid to give it to the country without verification. Colonel Allen was called by General Greely, and promptly replied that the news was correct. Still the White House authorities waited for direct news from Sampson. No one slept that night, and for fourteen hours the secret was locked within the anxious breasts of the men who were directing the course of the war. Then came Sampson's vainglorious message and a matter of fact report from Watson, and then and not till then was the country informed of the glorious news.

Colonel Allen was the officer who secretly discovered the presence of Cervera's fleet at Santiago, and that dispatch, too, was scoffed at by the Board of Strategy. It was a curious coincidence that he should have reported both the arrival and the destruction of the Spanish fleet, and should have been disbelieved in both cases.

Professor Willis L. Moore, chief of the Weather bureau, who not so many years ago was only a humble forecaster at Chicago, is now Acting Secretary of Agriculture, during the absence of Secretary Wilson.

Extension of Free Delivery Service.

Within two weeks quite an extension of the rural free delivery service will be made throughout the country. Illinois and Indiana will be given a number of additional routes. Plans for this extension are almost completed, and before the expiration of this month many new routes will be in operation.

There has been considerable opposition to this system because it worked to the disadvantage of some fourth-class postmasters, but now there is a general clamor for the service, and the department officials say it has passed beyond the experimental stage. In Illinois alone there are enough applications for the establishment of th's service to exhaust the entire appropriation of $300,000, and the department is at a loss to choose the localities where the largest number of people will be benefited.

On account of this extraordinary demand the department will select the country where the system can be operated most successfully and economically. With this purpose in view, the routes will be established where the population is dense and the roads are good. Letters are constantly being received by the Postmaster General commending the service, as it not only enables farmers to get their mail promptly, but they also get the daily newspapers almost as soon as the residents of the suburbs.

From the best information obtainable, allowing for the usual delays, it will be at least Oct. 15 before all the volunteers are landed in the United States from Manila. The Iowa regiment, 995 strong, is at the bottom of the list and will be the last command to arrive unless new arrangements are made.

Bids Opened for Building Postoffice Annex.

Bids for the construction of the annex to the temporary postoffice at Chicago have been opened by Supervising Architect Taylor, and the Congress Construction company of Chicago was the lowest bidder. Its bid is $33,483 and it wants two months in which to complete the structure. The next lowest bid was made by Henry W. Schleuter, at $40,997, and the E. F. Gobel company was the highest bidder, at $45,943. A slight mistake was made in the bid of the Congress Construction company, as two amounts were given. The amount written out was $33,483 and the figures were $33,473. As there is no bidder between these two figures, it is likely the Congress Construction company will receive the award and the amount given in writing, $33,483, will be accepted as its bid, as this is the lawful interpretation when such errors occur. Supervising Architect Taylor will take up the matter of awarding the contract in a few days, and the annex will be completed long before the holiday rush begins.

Gen. H. G. Otis Tells of Luzon's Rains.

Talking of the military situation in the Philippines, General Harrison Grey Otis said: "It is a mistake to suppose that the rainy season lasts only a few months. I have seen statements in the newspapers over here that the rainy period will end about Sept. 15. That is untrue, and such statements will tend to cause dissatisfaction among the American people, who will not understand why active operations are not resumed at that time. The rainy season lasts from May 1 to Dec. 1, but there is a short period after it begins when the suspension of operations is not necessary because the ground has not become sufficiently soaked. Last year the rainy season stipped off suddenly on Dec. 1. We had a heavy rain on the last day of November and a slight shower on the next day. Then the rain ceased. The country dries quickly, and in a few weeks the roads are as hard as can be.

"During the rainy season the whole of the Island of Luzon is a bog. Even the mountain tops are marshes. The year in Luzon is divided into about three-quarters rain and one-quarter dry. A hundred inches of rain falls in the wet season. One year they had 130 inches. The year they had only seventy inches was called exceptionally dry. I obtained these figures from the Manila observatory."

South Wants Recognition in New Army.

Congressmen Bankhead of Alabama and Adamson and Griggs of Georgia called on President McKinley this morning to see how the South is to be treated in the matter of appointments in the volunteer regiments that are to be raised. "President McKinley told us," said Mr. Bankhead, "that besides the three regiments which are to be filled up in Manila eight more will be raised in this country. He also said he should make the appointments of officers without regard to politics. He wanted the people of the whole country to feel that it was their war and should endeavor to have all sections represented."

Natives to Run the Postoffices.

"No more Americans are to be sent out for the postal service in Cuba and Porto Rico," said Assistant Postmaster General Heath, "and the natives will be permitted to run their own postoffices. We are now making every effort to reduce the expenses of the service in those countries, and, with that in view, the Postmaster General has cabled the recall of all Americans sent to Porto Rico on detail from the various branches of the postal service in this country, and it is likely that a number of Americans who were sent there some time since will be withdrawn.

"This is to be done, not only in the interest of economy, but to carry out the original design of the department. When we assumed control of the postal service in the new countries named everything was in chaos. The service was discredited upon every hand and it became necessary to install new men, Americans of the highest type of character, in order to reorganize the service and place it upon a basis which would have the confidence of the patrons. Now that the service in each of these countries has been thoroughly reorganized and placed upon an American basis, we can safely withdraw most of the Americans detailed or appointed from civil life and gradually transfer the work to natives."

Cigar Dealers May Be Reimbursed.

Cigar dealers of Illinois and other sections of the country who lost money through the operations of the gang of counterfeiters at Lancaster, Pa., will undoubtedly be reimbursed. Secretary Gage will ask Congress for an appropriation for the relief of the innocent holders of the cigars of the Lancaster concern, upon which they were compelled to pay what was practically a double tax.

These cigars were seized and released upon the payment of a tax equivalent to the counterfeit stamps which had been placed on them. While it is true the cigars were purchased at a lower rate than the regular one, it is almost certain those who bought them will be reimbursed to the amount of the tax paid. The government is responsible for the sale of many of these cigars as it knew that counterfeit stamps were being used but delayed arresting the makers so as to give Chief Wilkie an opportunity to arrest the counterfeiters of the $100 Monroe silver certificate, which was the most dangerous, bogus note ever put in circulation.

Invites McKinley to Quincy.

Representative Marsh of Warsaw called on President McKinley this afternoon and invited him to visit Quincy while in the West. Colonel Marsh assured the President there was no intention to make political capital out of his visit, but said all the people of that city desired to see him regardless of their political affiliations. The President said that as no plans had been made for the trip, and as there was still some doubt about his going, he could not make a definite promise at this time, but if it could be arranged he would stop at Quincy on his way back from the West if the trip is made.

The department sums up the situation as outlined by General Otis in the following statement:

"To meet the requirements of the returning volunteers, the Quartermaster's department reports that there are now in Manila the transports Sherman, Warren, and Grant, with a capacity of 199 officers and 4,824 enlisted men. That there are now on sea en route to Manila the Zealandic (due July 20), Sheridan (due July 21), Valencia (due July 26), and Pennsylvania (due July 29), with capacity for 161 officers and 4,200 enlisted men. There are now in San Francisco the transports City of Para, which will sail July 12, and the Tartar, to sail July 20, with capacity for 55 officers and 2,300 enlisted men.

"There are now en route to San Francisco the following transports, with capacity for 200 officers and 4,654 enlisted men: Ohio, Newport, Indiana, Hancock, Senator, Morgan City, and Relief (hospital).

"The department confidently believes that the transportation has been so well arranged by the Quartermaster's department that the last of the volunteers will leave Manila not later than Sept. 10, and it is expected that they will all be away by the 1st.

"The recruits required for the regular regiments in the Philippines are estimated at 6,388.

"The number of recruits now at sea are 1,507; number of recruits now at San Francisco are 3,284; a total of 4,791, leaving 1,547 yet to be provided for.

"The large number of vacancies existing in the Fourteenth, Eighteenth, and Twenty-third Infantry is due to the fact that these regiments went with General Merritt's original expedition to the Philippines and were not filled to the maximum; also that the men in these regiments who enlisted for the war are just now being discharged; the men enlisting for the war in the other regiments were discharged before the regiments left this country; and the vacancies are due to the increase of the companies from 106 to 128 men.

"At the rate of enlistments for the last few weeks the entire number will be enlisted by the close of the present week."

MRS. SOPHIA L. JENKS DEAD.

One of the Few Old Native Residents of Chicago—Born in 1830 Near Fort Dearborn.

The death of Mrs. Sophia L. Jenks removes one of the few old native residents of Chicago. She was born in this city in 1830. Her father was Thomas B. Tucker, who manufactured the first barrel ever turned out in Chicago. His shop was at La Salle and South Water streets. The Tucker residence was in Michigan avenue, near the old Fort Dearborn. Mrs. Jenks well remembered the Indians of that time and how they used to take her among them. Mrs. Jenks' first husband was Tyler A.

MRS. SOPHIA L. JENKS.

Smith, who opened the first dry goods store on the North Side in 1844 at Michigan and North Clark streets. Some years after his death she married Craigie P. Jenks. Her only son is Del S. Smith, 20 South Ada street, at whose residence she died on Sunday evening. Mrs. Jenks was one of the charter members of the Old Settlers' society and attended all the annual reunions of that body. SISTINE MADONNA AT DRESDEN MAY BE COUNTERFEIT.

Great Painting, Long Believed to Be One of the Most Celebrated in Existence, Now Declared by Dr. Ludwig Jelinek to Be a Poor and Probably Unfinished Copy by an Unknown Bungler — History of the Picture.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE BY D. S. MACGOWAN.]

Berlin, June 21.—For nearly 150 years art lovers and artists from all parts of the earth have journeyed to Dresden to see the Sistine Madonna. It has come to be recognized as the most celebrated painting in existence. Before it learned and unlearned, lay and professional, stand silent with bared heads and worship. This painting was brought to Dresden in 1753 by King August the Strong of Saxony, who found it in a cloister chapel at Piacenza. It did not occur to King August to doubt that he was purchasing the original altar picture painted by Raphael for the nephew of Pope Sixtus IV. This doubt is raised by an art historian at Dresden, who does not scruple to rob the world of one of its most prized treasures.

Dr. Ludwig Jelinek has just published a brochure in which he declares not only that the Sistine Madonna is a counterfeit but says it is a poor and probably unfinished copy by an unknown bungler.

What have the critics done with their eyes, he asks, that they have failed to observe that the Dresden Madonna squints with the left eye, that one of the angels lacked a wing until a kind-hearted restorer supplied the deficiency a few years ago, and that the draperies of the saints are as stiff as lead?

Which Is the Original?

But the painting was found at the altar, where it had always hung. Dr. Jelinek answers that the original altar did not exist in 1753. There is today a supposed copy of the picture in the same church which is in some respects different from the Dresden Madonna, and another copy is in Rome. Which is the original, or are all copies of the no longer existing original?

The Piacenza Madonna has a lunette above the figures in which two angels are shown holding a crown. Dr. Jelinek thinks it less likely that a copyist would add to rather than omit a portion of a master's work. That is for him and the critics to decide. But supposing the original painting did have the additional features of the "copy" now in the Italian church, what did it represent? The Dresden picture always has been accepted as the apotheosis of maternal love, the deification of the purest and holiest feeling known to humanity. Not at all, says Dr. Jelinek. The picture was painted to order, Cardinal Riario, the grandnephew of Pope Sixtus, furnishing the theme. It was designed to glorify the establishment by Pope Sixtus of the theological dogma of the Immaculate Conception. If the critic is right some will be inclined to rejoice that the copyist responsible for the Dresden Madonna managed to discover a human motive. But might not the matter have a different explanation?

The artists and historians will have to answer it. It would not be the first celebrated "old master" at Dresden that has proved to be a mere copy. The Holbein Madonna has been shown in recent years to be a rather late copy of the original at Darmstadt.

For Chinese Packets.

Germany is preparing to compete actively for the river and coastwise carrying trade of China. Six fast steam vessels are under construction in the Geestemuend shipyards which, when completed, will be placed in service as coastwise freight and passenger packets on the Yangtse Kiang. Two vessels will ply between Shanghai and Hankow, one between Hankow and Jitshang, two between this point and Shungking, the entire distance being 1,500 miles. So far there are no vessels on the Yangtse Kiang sailing under the German flag. The river steamers will resemble Mississippi River packets.

To Survey Spitzbergen.

A short time ago the Swedish gunboat Svenskusnd steamed from Stockholm with the last installment of a scientific company bound for the icy North on a mission of great theoretical and practical interest. The party comprised the expedition under the auspices of the imperial Russian Spitzbergen committee and the Royal Swedish Polar committee. The primary object of the expedition is to carry out a series of triangulations on the coasts of Spitzbergen. The result will give astronomers and geographers a more accurate idea of the shape of the earth than they are able to form from existing data. This work was undertaken as far back as 1861, when Professor A. E. von Nordenskjoeld made a number of surveys. Interest on the part of Russia is largely due to the chief of the astronomical staff at the Pulkowa Observatory. Various scientific observations will be made at the same time.

The expedition includes the following groups:

Swedish astronomical geodetic expedition on board the Svenskusnd, consisting of Lector Jaederin and five assistants.

Swedish meteorological and physical expedition aboard the Boris, including the University Docent Bestman and Lector Solander, as observer of magnetic currents.

Russian astronomical and geodetic division aboard the Ledokol, comprising an astronomical staff of four men.

Russian meteorological and physical division directed by Dr. Stelling of the physical observatory at St. Petersburg.

Russian reconnoitering expedition to the Storfjord. It is rumored this party will report secretly to the Czar on the suitability of various parts of Spitzbergen for a Russian settlement. This, however, may be a German invention. At all events the results of the entire expedition will be of use to nations desirous of annexing arctic territory for whaling stations.

Botanical and zoological division, composed of both Swedish and Russian scientists.

The Russians directed their course to the Storfjord in Spitzbergen, where the icebreaker Ermack will be prepared to render any needed assistance. The Russians and Swedes expect to establish winter quarters on the north and south coasts of Spitzbergen, separated as far as possible in latitude. The preparations for meteorological and magnetic observations are especially complete.

Harsh to Social Democrats.

It did not require the bill against strike excesses and intimidation to show that the doctrine of equality of all classes before the law is accepted here with considerable reservation when Social Democrats are concerned. It may be of interest to give one or two illustrations.

First, a recent instance in which the Supreme Court of one German state was solemnly charged by a Superior Court in another German state with having announced openly that it measured offenses with a special yardstick when Social Democrats happened to be the accused. It came about in this way:

A jury in Lobtau, Saxony, returned a verdict against a number of workingmen which was criticised generally for its severity. The Vorwärts, the Berlin organ of the Social Democratic party, in discussing the case last February, said:

Saxony is the classic battlefield in the struggle between the proletariat and the party of reaction. There are no traces of a free thinking middle class in Saxony. In the fight for law and liberty the workingmen have no support from any higher class. The ruling class governs with brutality and trickery clothed in the forms of politeness and condescension.

The Prussian Conservatives under Von Stumm and Von Klinckoatroem regard the social politics of Dresden with envy. Well known, too, are the juristic conceptions of the Supreme Court of Saxony, which often has declared openly and above board that the members of the workingmen's party are not entitled to the same measure of legal protection and the same treatment in court as other citizens.

The entire article evidently was written as a vehicle for this accusation against the Dresden Supreme Court. The Prussian authorities began proceedings against August Jacobey, editor of the Vorwärts. The case was tried in the Criminal Court in Berlin, and Jacobey was acquitted last Saturday. Jacobey, in defense, offered to prove the truth of his statements, and the court rather surprised public opinion by expressing its readiness to decide whether the decisions of the Saxon court justified the harsh criticism of the Vorwärts. A number of cases were discussed, and the court held that in three at least the Supreme Counrt of the neighboring kingdom had expressed openly its partisan sentiments, and had displayed prejudice against Social Democrats, and had declared that they were to be punished more severely than other citizens for equal offenses, and were to be punished for actions which, when committed by members of other political parties, would not be punishable at all.

Specimens of Rulings.

In one case the police began proceedings against a man who, without securing police permission in accordance with a regulation of the police President, undertook to make a collection of Social Democratic party funds. The matter went to the Supreme court, where the appeal of the defendant was dismissed. The decision said in part:

The efforts of the Social Democrats are notoriously directed toward undermining the monarchical form of government in Saxony and other German States. In this case the collection was for the purpose of supporting the Social Democratic party. Consequently the proceedings against the man responsible for it were just and proper.

In another case of the same sort, the court said the fact that the law directed especially against Social Democrats was no longer in force did not prevent the police from continuing to guard the state against their dangerous plans. It declared:

On the contrary, the police are still authorized to exercise their discretion and forbid money collections for Social Democratic purposes, and to that end may require police permission for any proposed public collection, and, when they are convinced that the aim of the collection is to support the Social Democratic party, to refuse to grant permission for it to be taken. Therefore an appeal for funds published in the Social Democratic press cannot be regarded as a harmless affair without danger to public order and peace, when the aim of the collection is considered.

In other cases Social Democratic party workers were punished for distributing printed matter during election times, though it was shown they followed the usual custom and proceeded in precisely the same manner as workers for other parties. The Saxon court said the contents of the printed matter made the difference.

The Prussian Minister of Education in August, 1898, issued a "rescript" declaring that, as Social Democrats were not recognized as worthy of appointment to positions of authority, the election of the Social Democrat, Singer, as a member of the School commission was not permissible. The Berlin "magistrat," or executive, was directed to withhold its approval of the election which had taken place in the Berlin Assembly two months before.

CRACKERS FOR THE CRACKER JACKS.

MEIKLEJOHN IN THE RACE

DECLARES HE WILL RUN FOR THE SENATE FROM NEBRASKA.

Assistant Secretary of War Defines His Position as the Would-Be Successor to John M. Thurston—Talks of the Philippine Situation — Thirty-first Ward Republican Factions Line Up for Tanner Fight—Seek the Convention for Chicago.

First Assistant Secretary of War George D. Meiklejohn is a candidate for United States Senator from Nebraska to succeed John M. Thurston, whose term expires on March 4, 1901. Mr. Meiklejohn said at the Auditorium Annex last evening that he would be guided by events.

"Mr. Thurston has stated that he is not a candidate for Vice President or any other office, and that he expects to resume the practice of law," he said. "I believe there is no doubt that Nebraska will swing back into the Republican column next year. We have a Republican Legislature now. But the Legislature that selects Mr. Thurston's successor will be elected in 1900."

Mr. Meiklejohn came to Chicago direct from Washington, and is on his way to inspect the Fox River improvement work in Wisconsin.

Talks of Philippines.

Speaking of the Philippine situation the Assistant Secretary said:

"By the time General Otis' request has been fulfilled he will have an active army of 40,000 men. Under the President's last order we will recruit ten full regiments and send them to Manila so they will reach there about the time the rainy season is over. They will be recruited from the country at large, officered in the higher ranks by regular army officers, but in the lower ranks by men who served in the Spanish-American war. There is no truth in any of the reports that General Miles or General Brooke will be sent to relieve General Otis."

Mr. Meiklejohn said that it will not be the policy of the administration to accept any organized body of men. He refused to discuss the possible resignation of Secretary of War Alger or his alliance with Governor Pingree.

Line Up for Tanner Fight.

Thirty-first Ward Republicans are lining up already for the Tanner and anti-Tanner fight. Hostilities have been opened anew by Charles W. Nothnagle's appointment to an administration job. When in Chicago getting ready to go West Governor Tanner made him a member of the State Board of Architect Inspectors. This was done at the request of the Noble-Mallette faction and has been accepted as a rebuke by the Vail crowd.

For a long time E. J. Noble, State Grain Inspector, and Charles W. Vail have been contending for the leadership of the ward. At the last primaries the Vail people elected a majority of the delegates to the city convention, and he was chosen committeeman. At the ward club election, however, the Noble-Mallette faction came out ahead with their man as President, so declared by the machine. Up to this time Mr. Vail has been counted as a Lorimer man. But he is opposed to Governor Tanner's renomination and has joined forces with Charles S. Deneen and Roy O. West of the Thirtieth Ward, who also refuse to stand with Lorimer in support of Tanner. This means a long and bitter struggle.

The Vail people claim that the sentiment against Tanner is so strong in the ward that they expect to win at least fifteen of the nineteen delegates to the State convention. The Noble people say they will carry every district in the ward.

Want the Convention.

Charles G. Dawes and the so-called McKinley Republicans of Chicago want the next national convention held here. Having heard that Denver is also a candidate, they have started a movement to get it. The Chicago Coliseum people, who are building a new Coliseum at Wabash avenue and Fifteenth street, have been asked to submit terms and accommodations at an early day. It is understood that Mr. Dawes wants this information in Washington, where he can use it to good purpose.

Word has been sent along the line that Chairman Hanna probably will call a meeting of the National committee as soon as he returns from Europe. T. N. Jamieson, National Committeeman for Illinois, said last night he thought the committee would meet early in the fall. He favors Denver for the convention.

"I believe it would be a good thing for the party," he said. "We might win back the Electoral vote of Colorado by giving its people a chance to see Republican leaders from all parts of the country."

Senator Wolcott has written to every member of the committee urging it to redeem Colorado by sending the convention to Denver.

It is understood that so far as the organization Republicans of Chicago are concerned they will make no effort to bring the convention here. But General McNulta, William P. Williams, Postmaster Gordon, and others want it. They say the Eastern and Southern States prefer Chicago.

Alderman Gunther said the Coliseum would be completed in ample time for holding both the Republican and Democratic conventions in it. Its seating capacity is placed at 15,000, and there will be committee-rooms, telegraph and press rooms.

Congressmen in Conference.

There was a secret conference at the Grand Pacific during the day between Congressmen Henderson and Hepburn of Iowa and Cannon, Hopkins, and Lorimer of Illinois. While it is understood the Speakership and matters pertaining to reorganization of the House committees were discussed, the Congressmen refused to give out any information. It is believed Congressman Cannon has been assured that he will retain the chairmanship of the Committee on Appropriations.

JESTER IN JAIL AT MEXICO.

Man Charged with the Murder of Gilbert Gates Now Within the Jurisdiction of Missouri Courts.

Mexico, Mo., July 3.—[Special.]—Alexander Jester, the alleged murderer of Gilbert Gates, was placed in jail here last night. He denies the crime, but he is identified almost beyond doubt. He certainly admits it in an interview. His trial is expected to come up at the September term of the Audrain County Court. A telegram from John W. Gates at Chicago congratulates Melson on landing his prisoner.

At the county jail Jester's attention was called to some false interviews printed about him, and he said he would make a true statement.

"Did you ever kill anybody in Kansas or Missouri?"

"No; God knows I am no murderer."

"Then you are not the Alexander Jester wanted?"

"There is some mistake."

"How could your sister conceive of such a letter as she wrote accusing you of the murder?"

"You will have to ask her. She got mad at me."

"How can you account for all of the corroborating evidence pointing to you as the murderer?"

"There is money back of it."

ARGUE THE PLANKINTON CASE.

Wisconsin Supreme Court Hears Judge Johnson's Answer to the Charges of the Creditors.

Madison, Wis., July 3.—[Special.]—Judge Johnson of the Milwaukee Circuit Court today made a return to the Supreme Court's order citing him to show cause why he should not vacate his orders in the assignee proceedings of the Plankinton Bank case. The return was argued until late this evening by counsel representing the Judge and the assignee on the one hand and the 2,300 creditors on the other.

The creditors contend that they have been unable to get justice in Judge Johnson's court; that they have been unable to examine the assignee, William Plankinton, under oath as to his final report, and have been denied other constitutional rights.

Judge Johnson answered that no proper foundations for such an examination have been made by the petitioners. The court announced that it would pass on the matter on Wednesday morning.

FOURTH OF JULY ACCIDENTS.

Moweaqua, Ill., July 3.—[Special.]—While preparing to celebrate the Fourth Millard Shrader, son of Henry Shrader of Niantic, Ill., shot himself fatally with a toy pistol.

Benton Harbor, Mich., July 4.—[Special.]—Mr. Geiss of Chicago while lighting a cannon firecracker had his hands nearly blown to pieces. The hands have been amputated.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., July 3.—[Special.]—S. L. Dows Jr., while handling a revolver this evening, accidentally discharged the weapon, the bullet striking his brother, W. G. Dows, late Colonel of the Forty-ninth Iowa Volunteers. The bullet passed through his hand and lodged in the thigh.

STRANGE PRANK OF STREET CAR

Rolls Down a Fifteen-Foot Embankment Full of Passengers and Not One Is Hurt.

Cincinnati, O., July 3.—[Special.]—A southbound Mill Creek Valley car rolled down a fifteen-foot embankment at 11 o'clock this morning without breaking a pane of glass or injuring any of the ten passengers.

The car ran along on the dirt for forty feet, then pitched down a fifteen-foot bank, turning nearly half way over in its descent. Neither the motorman nor the conductor deserted his post.

The passengers, most of whom were women, had no chance to get out, as the company is still operating winter cars.

GOOD STORY OF ARMY POST LIFE BY HELEN HAWES BROWN.

Under the Title, "A Civilian Attache," She Gives a Graphic and Stirring Picture of Soldier Life on the Plains—Helen Stuart Thompson's "Windy Creek" Describes Colorado Rural Life—Professor Adams' "European History."

A FIRST-CLASS story of life at a frontier army post has been written by Helen Hawes Brown, and is published by the Scribners under the title, "A Civilian Attaché." The scene is laid at a fort in a desert region not far from the Grand Cañon of the Colorado, and the descriptions of the natural scenery are graphic and beautiful to an unusual degree. In its healthy and spirited life it ranks with the best of Captain King's army post novels. It is full of a fresh and vigorous enthusiasm that is delightfully contagious.

Adèle Kincaid is the civilian attaché, and Captain Hugh Gracie is the one who in due time becomes attached to her. Some of the scenes amid which the pleasant process of attraction takes place are vividly suggested by this bit of word painting: "But the desert is so complete. It is so harmonious—every little animal to match—little, pale green lizards, comical little sand-colored prairie dogs, and the little, scurrying coyotes, like yellow mud; and when you get a dull brown Indian with a red calico shirt on a dull brown pony with a red saddle blanket he seems a part of the landscape." Another touch that clings to the memory is the question: "What is there behind that inscrutable Indian face? Is there everything or nothing? Could one ever get at an Indian woman's heart?"

The story shifts to Chicago, and utilizes the Debs strike for its dénouement. It makes one realize what a boon such a disturbance is to the novelist and to the soldiers stagnating in some out of the way army post. The emptiness of the post life and the eternal waiting for something to happen are well portrayed. It is an army view of things, and naturally Captain Gracie gets a chance to become the hero of the Chicago situation and to meet the charming ex-attaché in the process. The story is full of life. Its characters are natural, and it closes with a clever romantic touch. It is an ideal bit of vacation fiction.

The object of Helen Stuart Thompson's "Windy Creek" (Scribner) is to depict rural life in the far West, and incidentally to set forth the harm of emotional religion. The scene is laid in a Colorado village, and there is merely enough plot to furnish an excuse for introducing the denizens of Windy Creek and for describing their home life, their amusements, their religious beliefs, and their love affairs. The narrative shows a skillful hand and much careful observation. The characters are real, but, like the same sort of people in everyday life, they frequently wax dull with their interminable gossip. Yet they say and do enough funny or tragic things to redeem and make them humanly interesting.

There is a Campbellite preacher who is descended from Sophocles on his mother's side, and a Free Methodist preacher who tells the women how high hats will keep them from entering the gates of heaven, and how the lord will "give bald heads to them as wears crimpin' pins." There is a sect of "come-outers," on the salvation Army plan, and their vagaries show a great deal of genuine human nature. The romantic thread is furnished by Rose Rooney, whose marital errors lead to a final love tragedy. The story is well told, and the glimpses of the people have a fair share of both fun and pathos. The author has succeeded well in showing the narrowness of these people's lives in the narrowness of their religious ideas. Her success would have been greater if she had devoted less space to description and more to the revelation of character through dramatic action.

In the writing of history for scholars there has been a marked advance during the last generation. But in the writing of history for pupils there has been little improvement in either method or execution. This fact is made clear by the "European History" (Macmillan) which George Burton Adams offers as a school textbook. It is dry and tedious. The author boasts that he has omitted the familiar anecdotes of earlier textbooks. Yet there is nothing to take their place. Those brilliant, almost epigrammatic, sentences that sum up the character of a man or an era in a word, familiar in Duruy and other French historians, are lacking. Nor has the book the thoroughness and scientific method which characterize the work of the recent German writers.

Mr. Adams has as a subtitle to his history, "An Outline of Its Development." This promises much, but is little more than pretense, for the latter-day method of treating history as an organic whole is lacking. The author may be commended for the advance he has made over Anderson, Barnes, and Swinton in not dividing his book into centuries, as the old schoolbook writers thought was necessary. But the same old cuts that adorned those books are here, even if they are not printed from the same blocks. The best feature of the book is the bibliography preceding each chapter, but the author, though professor of history at Yale College, seems to have made little use of it. He mentions Clerke's "History of Astronomy During the Nineteenth Century," but in the chapter there is nothing whatever about astronomy in the nineteenth century. He mentions Wallace's "Wonderful Century," but was so little impressed by Mr. Wallace's excellent panegyric on the conservation of energy, which the codiscoverer of evolution regards as even more important than that of evolution itself, that he merely mentions conservation of energy among "other things." There is nothing to show that he used Sach's "History of Botany" or Meyer's "History of Chemistry," for, though mentioned in the bibliography, there are only a dozen words that relate to either of these sciences.

There are a dozen schoolbooks covering the same ground that are quite as good as Mr. Adams' work. For pleasure no one would read it when Duruy's book is accessible.

Fresh Literary Notes.

A new novel by Mrs. Humphry Ward is to appear in Harper's Magazine next year. The title is "Eleanor."

F. Marion Crawford's new novel is said to deal with Italian secret societies and to bear the title of "The Anarchists."

It is to be expected that a book like H. G. Wells' "When the Sleeper Wakes" would appeal especially to the countrymen of Jules Verne. It has been translated into French.

Winston Churchill's "Richard Carvel" is now in its fifth edition, yet the publishers make the curious complaint that St. Louis, the author's birthplace, has not ordered a single copy.

Fräulein Benigna Kant, a grandniece of Immanuel Kant, the author of the "Criticism of the Pure Reason," died recently at the poorhouse at Mittau, in Kurland, aged 72, destitute and without friends.

Marion Harland has, it is said, put a good bit of autobiography into her new book for grandmothers and grandchildren, to be published by the Lothrop Publishing company. She gives it the unique title, "When Grandmamma Was New."

Clement Scott, the veteran dramatic critic, whose writings for so many years appeared in the columns of the Daily Telegraph of London, is correcting the last proofs of his "Reminiscences," which the Macmillan company will bring out as soon as completed.

One of the literary finds of the year is a story by Sir Walter Scott, which has never been included in his published works. It was found in the files of an old Scotch magazine, published almost eighty years ago. The sketch appears in the current issue of Literature.

The July Critic prints M. H. Spielmann's attack on the authenticity of the Thackeray papers and illustrations now being published in that magazine. In the same number is the reply of Mr. Dickson, who is the collector and editor of this collection of Thackeray's contributions to Punch.

"The Enchanted Typewriter" is a machine, and not a woman. It is of antiquated make, and its owner finds it turning out copy on its own account, with no visible manipulation. Investigation shows that it is being used by Boswell and Xanthippe, who are the editors of a Sunday newspaper in Hades. "The Enchanted Typewriter" is the latest book by John Kendrick Bangs, and will appear in Harper's Weekly during the summer months.

P. F. Dunne, the author of "Mr. Dooley," has arranged to write a series of articles on English life, to appear periodically in England as well as in this country. In an interview with a London Chronicle representative, Mr. Dunne told the story of the evening paper in which "Mr. Dooley" first made his appearance—an ill-fated sheet, which the gods loved. One day, just before the end, a funeral passed the office, with a band playing the "Dead March" in "Saul." The editor and Mr. Dunne watched it with emotion and fear. "Can it be," they whispered, "our subscriber?"

G. P. Putnam's Sons will publish in the early fall a work by Charles Neufeld, entitled "A Prisoner of the Khaleefa; Twelve Years' Captivity at Omdurman." Mr. Neufeld set out from Cairo in 1887 on a trading expedition to Kordofan, but was betrayed by his Arab guides into the hands of the dervishes, and carried by his captors to the Khaleefa at Omdurman. There he was thrown into prison, loaded with fetters, led out for execution, and threatened with instant death unless he would embrace the tenets of Mahdism, but was spared for reasons of the Khaleefa's own, and kept a close prisoner until the arrival of Kitchener.

SHORT STORY OF THE DAY.

Happiness Restored

IT is evening. The hot and pitiless August sun which all day has poured its sultry rays with utmost violence upon the smothered city of New York has hidden its face in the curtains of night.

Twinkling stars glimmer silently forth in the pale blue sky, and the tall trees in the park cast long shadows across the grass into the avenue as the mellow light of the street lamps fall upon them.

Nurses in caps and aprons of snowy whiteness have long since left the refreshing shade of the park, and have hurried home with their dainty charges.

The evening wears on and one by one the idlers turn their faces homeward, until at length the park is deserted.

Deserted, did I say? No, not deserted, for a young girl with a pale yet beautiful face and large sorrowful eyes, has entered the park unseen, and is crouched in a secluded corner, her face buried in her hands.

"O, Ralph," she moans, "how can I live and know you love another?" Then sobs again shake her slight frame, and she bursts into a low wail in the agony of her grief, for Constance Goodwin is a girl with a deep and loving nature.

A bell in a neighboring church tower arouses her, and as it tolls the hour of 11 she slowly rises and wends her way out into the street.

"Shall I go home or shall I go away to another place and seek employment, and try to down my sorrow?" she asks herself hurriedly.

Her mind is all confusion, and she cannot control herself sufficiently to weigh the matter carefully; whether she had better return to her loving parents and her beautiful home or trust herself to the cold mercies of the busy world.

Once more the awful truth comes before her with crushing force. Once more she sees her betrothed lover, Ralph Chapman, in company with a beautiful young woman, of whom, gossips say, he is proud. "Can she also be his betrothed, and does she not know he is already engaged to me?" Constance thinks wildly to herself.

"They say she is an heiress and handsome, and—" but her reverie is interrupted, for she hears the sound of horses' hoofs upon the pavement and the merry laugh of young voices near at hand. As she turns to look, two splendid carriages dash by, each drawn by a noble span of horses.

At a glance she recognizes the occupants of one of the carriages. It is her Ralph, and with that other lovely woman!

She gives a faint cry and staggers to the fence for support. A few moments and she recovers herself sufficiently to realize that the hour is late and that she is in the public thoroughfare without a protector.

She must return home. There is nothing else for her to do, in her weak and nervous condition. Upon reaching her boudoir she throws herself upon a couch, but sleep does not come to refresh her troubled mind, and she passes the night in feverish restlessness.

The following afternoon she is seated in the library gazing leisurely out of the window and now and then carelessly turning the leaves of a book of travels which lies in her lap.

She is dressed in pale blue muslin with white ribbon at her throat and waist, and despite the troubled look in her dark blue eyes she presents a pleasing and striking picture.

A servant enters bearing a beautiful bouquet with a card attached in familiar handwriting. A note accompanies the bouquet in which the writer asks if he may call that evening and introduce his cousin, Gladys Bertrand, who is visiting his parents. The note is signed "Ralph Chapman."

Constance trembles visibly as she hands a perfumed note to a servant a few moments later addressed to Mr. Ralph Chapman and containing an invitation of welcome for that evening.

That evening, arrayed in a gown of purest white muslin, with red roses in her belt and in her hair, Constance looked charming as she rose to receive her lover and his cousin.

A formal introduction followed, and as Constance raised her eyes to meet those of Miss Bertrand's, her cheeks grew pale and then flushed alternately, as she recognized the beautiful woman whom she had seen Ralph with several times.

Recovering her natural grace and composure, Constance welcomed her guests, and the time passed so quickly and pleasantly that they did not notice the arrival of a carriage until a servant entered to inform Miss Bertrand that her barouche was at the door.

Miss Bertrand explained that she was to attend the opera that evening with one of Ralph's friends, and soon took her leave, promising to call again soon.

Once more alone with her lover, Constance poured out her recent troubles to Ralph, who comforted his darling by telling her she was the only one he could ever love.

"Wasn't it foolish of me to grieve over so small a thing?" she asked, looking up lovingly into his face.

"No, darling," he answered, "It only shows how much you really love me."—Boston Post.

MARQUISE DE FONTENOY'S LETTER.

[Copyright, 1899, by the Marquise de Fontenoy.]

Only two of the twelve newly created Cardinals belong to the nobility—namely: Mgr. del Drago and the Nuncio at Madrid. The latter, Mgr. Nava de Bontife, is a Sicilian Baron and a cousin of the Cardinal Secretary of State, while Cardinal del Drago is a Roman patrician and a Marquis. He belongs to that old Roman aristocracy known as the "Conscript Roman Patriciate," which in the sixteenth century was inscribed in the Golden Book of the Eternal City, only those families being included in the volume which already at that time could show 200 years of noble descent free from any plebeian strain.

The mother of the new Cardinal was a member of the illustrious Barberini family, to which Urban VIII. and other Roman Pontiffs have belonged. He formed part of the household of Pius IX., but was relegated to the background by Leo XIII. as soon as he ascended the throne. Nor is it likely that he would have been promoted had it not been for the influence exercised on his behalf by the patrician houses of Rome, which, until his elevation to the purple, were without representation in the Sacred College. He is exceedingly rich, and has announced his intention of dispensing with the salary of $10,000 payable by the Vatican treasury to the Cardinals of the Curia resident at Rome.

Cardinal Cassetta is the son of a Roman laboring man, who, beginning life as a carpenter, died as a multi-millionaire contractor, leaving his entire fortune to his only son. Cardinal Cassetta has been until now the chief almoner and treasurer of the Holy Father.

The promotion that most nearly concerns the United States is Cardinal Clasca, who also is of humble origin, and who, after serving for a time as librarian-in-chief of the Vatican, is today Secretary General and practically the sub-prefect of the Propaganda, that is to say, of the papal department intrusted with the spiritual supervision of the Catholic Church in the United States. Cardinal Clasca was originally an Augustin monk, and the manner in which he first attracted the notice and good-will of Leo XIII. is worthy of being placed on record.

It seems that in the early part of the century the Pecci family took advantage of the sale of ecclesiastical property ordered by the first Napoleon to purchase the monastery of the Augustins at Carpinetto and converted the place into a residence. Leo XIII., as soon as he became Pope, at once took steps to restore the monastery to the Augustin order, and even placed at the disposal of the latter a sum of about $10,000 to be employed in putting the buildings in proper repair for the monks. Father Clasca was at the time Procurator General of the Augustin order, and, as soon as the repairs had been completed, he asked for an audience of the Pope and restored to the latter a sum of $3,000, informing the Holy Father that he had been so fortunate as to have the repairs effected at a cheaper rate than estimated. The Pope, who is exceedingly scrupulous and exact in money matters, besides being extremely economical, was so much pleased with this behavior on the part of Father Clasca that he shortly afterwards attached him to his household, and has always treated him with marked favor ever since, constantly employing him in confidential missions where exactitude and scrupulous integrity were required. At the same time it is only right to add that the new Cardinal, like so many other extremely honest men, is far from polished or gentle in his manner or speech, and, in consequence of this, he is the reverse of popular with the prelates of the Vatican.

As for the new Cardinal Richelmy, Archbishop of Turin, he is a man of singular tact and cleverness. For he has accomplished the extremely difficult task of being on the best of terms with both the Pope and King Humbert at one and the same time. Although at times he delivers violent speeches in behalf of the rights of the Holy Seat that have been usurped by the Italian government, yet, on the other hand, he, as a native of Piedmont, is loyal while at Turin to the reigning house of Savoy, officiates at the baptisms and other religious ceremonies of the reigning family at Turin, and takes part in all the court festivals at the latter place. At Rome he gives his allegiance to the Pope, at Turin to King Humbert, and is an equal favorite with both Pontiff and monarch, being a man of the most genial and cheery disposition.

Colonel Arthur Paget, who has just been appointed to the command of the crack regiment of Scots Guards, is the fortunate possessor of a beautiful and popular American wife in the person of that Mrs. Arthur Paget, daughter of the late Paran Stevens of New York Fifth Avenue Hotel celebrity. Colonel Arthur Paget was one of the earliest scions of the British aristocracy to contract one of those now so frequent international alliances, and for the last twenty years his wife has been a conspicuous figure in London society and a prominent member of the Marlborough House set.

Without being permanently attached to the household of the Prince of Wales, Colonel Paget has frequently done temporary duty as gentleman-in-waiting and equerry to his future King, who is godfather to his two boys. In between times Colonel Paget has smelt powder and seen active service in Egypt, South Africa, and Afghanistan. He is a son of Lord Alfred Paget, an elder brother of that Almeric Paget who makes his home in New York, and is married to the daughter of W. C. Whitney, whose racing stable, by the bye, is under the direction of another of the Paget brothers—namely: Sydney. The head of the house of Paget, as every one knows, is the young Marquis of Anglesey, who, following the example of his father, grandfather, great-grandfather, and great-great-grandfather, has separated from his wife.

In response to an inquiry which reaches me from Chicago, it may be stated that the only son of that Count Francis Fugger, who married in 1870 a girl of the name of Elizabeth Roth at Chicago, cannot inherit his father title, nor has he any share in the entailed estates of the house of Fugger, which are quite large. For the union between Count Francis and the Chicago girl is regarded at the courts of Europe as a morganatic alliance, and the son who constitutes the issue of the union was compelled to bear his mother's name of Roth until the year 1893, when he obtained from the Hungarian government a special decree authorizing him to assume his father's name of Fugger, but not his title, or even his nobiliary particle of "von." The Würtemberg government subsequently created him an ordinary noble, giving him the right to use the nobiliary particle of "von" in conjunction with the name of Fugger, and now Leo XIII., who had already invested him with the honorary office of Chamberlain of the Cape and Sword, has created him a Papal Count. This, however, does not in any wise improve his position in Germany, where he still continues to be regarded as the issue of a morganatic alliance. He cannot use his father's predicate of "Erlaucht" or "Serene Highness," nor inherit his seat in the Bavarian House of Lords, nor yet the family estates, which, together with the chieftainship of the family, will pass at the death of his father to the latter's younger brother, George, who, married to Countess Montgelas, has a little boy of the name of Hans.

There is a Prince Fugger who is a grand dignitary of the court of Austria. But he is only chief of a junior branch of the house, and it is the Count wedded at Chicago who is the head of this ancient and mediatized family.

In olden times the Fuggers, hailing from Augsburg, were celebrated as the richest family in Europe, occupying much the same position as the Rothschilds do today. The fortunes of the Fuggers are derived from banking. But they were ennobled about the time of the discovery of America, and long before the Napoleonic wars, at the beginning of the present century, had by dint of money and intrigue secured a place among the petty sovereign families of Germany, one of the most famous scions of their house being the celebrated Cardinal Fugger. Today the Fuggers rank among the mediatized houses of Europe, and as such figure in part II. of the Almanach de Gotha.

The Fuggers are of Jewish origin, but, unlike the Rothschilds, renounced the Hebrew faith centuries ago, and now profess the Catholic religion. A portrait of the present Prince Fugger figures in the Almanach de Gotha of 1894. Count Francis Fugger, the head of the family, with his American wife and his only son, make their home at the picturesque old castle of Kirchberg in Würtemberg, besides which they have a town house at Augsburg.

NEW COURT BEGINS WORK

JUDGE TUTHILL DISPOSES OF THE FIRST JUVENILE CASE.

Henry Campbell Arraigned on Complaint of His Mother and Sent to His Grandparents in New York—Officers Attached to the Tribunal Are All Present to Receive Instructions—Attorney W. A. Condon Files a Petition.

The new juvenile court opened yesterday in Judge Tuthill's chambers on the third floor of the County Building, when Henry Campbell, aged 11, was brought in on complaint of his mother, Mrs. Lena Campbell, 84 Hudson street, charging him with larceny. Mrs. Campbell, with tears in her eyes, said: "Judge, Henry isn't a bad boy at heart, and I know he has been led into trouble by others. We don't want to have him sent to any of the institutions, and his grandmother, who lives at Rome, N. Y., will take him and keep him."

The father, Frank Campbell, joined in his wife's plea. Judge Tuthill questioned the parents closely and agreed that the boy should be sent to his grandmother.

Following the settlement of the Campbell case, the presentation of the first formal petition to the court was made by Attorney William H. Condon. It set forth that four young boys, Johnny Host, Thomas McNally, Antonio Polo, and Leslie Coleman, were in the county poorhouse at Dunning, which, the petitioner declared, was an unfit place for them. Judge Tuthill set the hearing for Wednesday afternoon.

Judge Tuthill's chambers were filled with the probationary officers detailed by the police Captains. Representatives from the societies which now aid in looking after children were present. Judge Tuthill conferred with the probationary officers, explaining the nature of their duties.

"Kindness and love for the children must be used in this work," he said. "If we would hope to receive the benefits which we should from this court, from which so much is expected. The burden will rest mainly upon you who will gather the cases for the court. I especially desire that in making your report to me you should go into detail and give all the information possible. The bringing of the child before the court should be only as a last resort."

On Wednesday morning Judge Tuthill will take up the hearing of the case against Louis Scholsky, an 11-year-old boy, who was brought before Justice Hamburger at the East Chicago Avenue Station charged with taking newspapers from doorsteps.

Loot A. M. Rothschild's Coop.

A. M. Rothschild's flock of sixty-nine prize chickens has been stolen from the coop. Some time during Sunday night some one broke open the door of the poultry-house in the rear of the Rothschild residence, 3725 Michigan avenue, and extracted from it three full-grown hens, all with long pedigrees, and sixty-six young chickens. The theft was not discovered until 7 o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. Rothschild has offered a reward of $100 for the return of the fowls.

Tired Homing Pigeon Seeks Shelter.

A carrier pigeon, with a tag marked "M. K. 996," flew into an open window in Maas, Baer & Co.'s clothing store, Milwaukee and Chicago avenues, yesterday afternoon. The bird had been buffeted about by the storm, and was nearly exhausted. If it is not called for by its owner it will be released when sufficiently rested to continue its journey.

Dr. G. A. Wallace Makes a Correction.

The theme of the sermon preached at Pilgrim Congregational Church Sunday night by the Rev. Dr. George A. Wallace was "Theodore Roosevelt and Jay Gould," and not "The Terrible Teddy and Jay Gould—Two American Citizens," as was reported in "The Tribune" of yesterday.

LITTLE BUSINESS IS DONE

EXCHANGES IN THE PRINCIPAL CITIES ARE CLOSED.

Barely a Basis Left for Even a Curb Quotation—Banks Alone Are Open—Local Clearings Reach a Total of $28,490,000, Largely Due to Deposits on Account of July 1 Interest and Dividend Payments — Produce Receipts Heavy.

In financial and commercial lines yesterday was almost a close holiday. The closing of all the exchanges here and at other market centers left barely a basis for even a curb quotation. The banks alone were open. Clearings for the day were $28,490,000, rather larger than Saturday. The increase was largely due to deposits on account of July 1 interest and dividend payments.

Grain cables were from ½@⅝c higher, but everything around the local Board of Trade was dead. Wheat was called nominally 75¼c for September early, but declined to 73⅝c asked later in the day. For September corn 34½c was bid.

Bank Clearings.

Clearings at the larger cities yesterday were:

New York	$176,099,311
Chicago	28,490,000
Boston	26,943,506
Philadelphia	31,596,102
St. Louis	4,051,292

CONDITION OF THE TREASURY.

Statement Showing the Available Cash Balance and the Gold Reserve.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 3.—Today's statement of the condition of the Treasury shows: Available cash balance, $280,310,237; gold reserve, $241,536,520.

IN THE FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

General Tendency of Cash and Securities at London, Paris, and Berlin.

NEW YORK, July 3.—The Commercial Advertiser's London financial cablegram says: The markets here were irregular today, there being less confidence about the Transvaal. Investment stocks were good on the cheapening of money. Americans were buoyant throughout, closing at the best. Business in them was unexpectedly large, New York obviously taking a hand, particularly in Northern Pacific common. Favorites here were Chesapeake and Ohio and Eries. Spanish 4s were 59⅝, ex-dividend. Tintoes were 45⅝@45¾. Anacondas, 11 bid. The bank bought £140,000 in gold bars and £661,000 in eagles. Fifty thousand pounds sterling in French coin was sold. Money was slack. Calls, 1½; fixtures, 1⅝; bills, unchanged and neglected. Berlin discounts were 3⅝; Paris steady. Copper stocks for the fortnight were 673 tons up; supplies 277 tons down.

LONDON, July 3.—4 p. m.—American securities opened in sympathy with the improved tendency noticeable in Wall street Saturday, and there was a general rally in quotations here today. The settlement absorbed the attention of members. At the close the market was firm. Spanish 4s closed at 58¾ ex-interest. Gold to the amount of £810,000 was taken into the Bank of England today and £50,000 was withdrawn. The former amount was received from the United States. The Exchange will be closed Saturday, July 8.

Consols for money, 107 13-16; consols for the account (August), 108. Canadian Pacific, 101; Erie, 14¼; Erie 1st pfd, 38¼; Illinois Central, 119¾; North Pacific pfd, 79¼; St. Paul common, 135; New York Central, 145; Pennsylvania, 70¼; Reading, 10⅝; Union Pacific pfd, 81; Atchison, 20¼; Louisville, 73⅞; Grand Trunk, 8; Anaconda, £11. Bar silver steady, 27 11-16d per ounce. Money, 1¼ per cent. The rate of discount in the open market for short bills, 1¼ per cent. The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills, 1⅞@2 per cent.

PARIS, July 3.—Business on the bourse today opened dull on less encouraging Transvaal news and rumors of difficulties in the settlement, which caused sales of foreign securities. The latter were seriously affected by the reports of the riots in Spain. This was principally the case in Spanish 4s. Rio Tintos relapsed and Kaffirs were weak.

BERLIN, July 3.—On the boerse today prices were firm, being encouraged by the end of the strike and the firmness shown by the Vienna market. Foreign securities were irregular. Spanish 4s were easier on Paris advices and Turks hardened.

The weekly statement of the Imperial Bank of Germany shows the following changes: Cash in hand, decreased, 92,660,000 marks; treasury notes, decreased, 3,480,000 marks; other securities, increased, 82,340,000 marks; notes in circulation, increased, 200,480,000 marks.

PRODUCE RECEIPTS ARE HEAVY.

Enormous Quantities of Stuff on the Street and Sales Active.

All commission houses in street produce lines were unusually busy yesterday, receipts of all vegetables and fruits being on an enormous scale. Shipping orders, however, were in volume to make satisfactory inroads on the large supplies. There was no let up all through the day in the conditions of activity. Tomatoes were slightly easier because of the free consignments from States all the way between here and Tennessee. Today practically nothing will be done except in a small local way, few if any houses being open after 10 o'clock. Prices were slightly easier on berries and some of the vegetables.

BOLT STRIKES A TROLLEY CAR.

Mrs. Delevan D. Randall Thrown Out and Hurt—Fuse Blown Out on Union Loop.

During the thunder-storm yesterday afternoon, a bolt of lightning struck a trolley car speeding west in Harrison street, near Desplaines street, throwing Mrs. Delevan D. Randall, 413 South Oakley avenue, ten feet out into the street, dislocating her left wrist and bruising her body painfully. The shock produced temporary prostration, rendering the victim unconscious for a time. She was taken into the office of Sprague, Warner & Co.'s refinery, and there revived. Later she was removed home. Her daughter, Miss Randall, was sitting beside her in the car at the time, but was unharmed, as were other passengers. The car took fire and burned for a time before the flames were extinguished. It was then towed to the barns. Dr. R. J. Dunn, 262 South Halsted street, attended Mrs. Randall.

The passengers on a Lake street L train were almost thrown into a panic by the blowing out of a fuse just as the train left the Madison street station at 5 o'clock. There was a blinding flash, followed by a loud report, then the flash was repeated, and the report following echoed louder than before. The women screamed, and one of them, who afterward left the station, fainted.

Motorman Charles Hayes did not leave his post, but turned off the current and stopped the train. Smoke was seen issuing from the side of the car, and a fire alarm was sent in, and a chemical engine put out the flames with slight loss. Traffic on the loop, and so on all of the elevated lines, was suspended over an hour. No one was hurt.

Storms developing over the western and middle Mississippi States last night are likely to reach Chicago today and cause a continuation of yesterday's rain. The weather prediction for today is "Showers and thunder-storms, with variable winds." The storm precipitated the greatest rainfall of the season, the precipitation between noon and 5 p. m. being one and one-half inches. The storm in Chicago was greater than anywhere elese in the country.

STREETER HELD TO TRIAL

CLAIMANT OF NORTH SHORE MADE LAND UNDER CRIMINAL CHARGE.

The Captain and Thirteen of His Followers of the "District of Lake Michigan" Are Accused, in the Decision of Justice of the Peace Hamburger, of Conspiracy to Meet in Unlawful Assembly—Ownership of Property Not Passed Upon.

Without giving any opinion as to the ownership of the land that Captain George Washington Streeter and his followers claimed last May as the "District of Lake Michigan" and theirs, Justice Hamburger yesterday held Streeter and thirteen of his fellow-colonists to the Criminal Court under bonds of $300 each, which were furnished.

The charge on which the men are held is that of conspiracy to hold an unlawful assembly. The men affected, besides Captain Streeter, are:

Peter Cohen,	William Jordan,
Jerre Trombley,	David Proctor,
Edward James,	James Burns,
Harry N. James,	George Kent,
Edward Pierson,	Peter Boyle,
G. W. Ward,	William Kane.
Herman Stahl,

The ruling closes one incident of the struggle for possession of nearly 200 acres of valuable land formed by accretions along the shore, between Huron and Michigan streets, and which is claimed by Streeter and his colleagues on the one hand, and by N. K. Fairbank, J. V. Farwell, and the Newberry Library, on the other.

Says He Will Have the Land Yet.

Trials of the men on the criminal charge, Captain Streeter says, will have no effect on the final outcome of that struggle. Previous to the reading of the decision, he stated that no matter what ruling the court made he soon would have possession of the "District of Lake Michigan" again, by reason of civil actions which he would commence. He said he would take possession and begin the erection of buildings within a short time.

The courtroom was crowded with the defendants, attorneys, policemen, and spectators when at 3 o'clock the justice rapped for order and began reading his decision. As the trend of the decision became evident, Streeter began to stroke his red beard nervously and Harry N. James to look serious. When the end was reached they set about securing bonds for all the defendants.

Points Covered in the Decision.

In his decision Justice Hamburger disposed of the question of his own jurisdiction by saying the defendants waived their right to plead against it when they took a change of venue from the court of Justice of the Peace Kersten to his own. Further, the decision was in part as follows:

The question having been raised by the defendants as to the venue, claiming said tract of land was no part of Cook County or the State of Illinois, is thoroughly answered in the cases of the People vs. Kirk, 162 Illinois, 138; Revell vs. The People, 177 Illinois, 478; and the Illinois Central railroad company, 146th United States. See also act of Congress ceding territory to comprise and form the State of Illinois, passed April 18, 1818.

The law is certain that all accretions, if any, that take place by the act or acts of water of the lake become a part of the original soil and under the jurisdiction of the shore county where such accretions are made. The question thus resolves itself: Was the offense charged in the complaint sufficiently proven, and is there such probable cause that would justify me in holding the defendants to the Criminal Court?

Justice Hamburger then took up the conspiracy charge, holding that it was clear from the evidence on the hearing that the men had seized by violence property held in the names of others, which, if they claimed it, they should have got by process of the civil courts; that they had gone there armed, and had threatened to resist by force any effort to dispossess them, and that their assembly there was unlawful.

The charges of carrying concealed weapons and of rout and riot were dismissed.

Of the fourteen defendants, Kane, Boyle, Burns, and Edward James were not in court and their former bonds were forfeited.

BECKER RETRIAL IS BEGUN.

Mrs. Augusta Schuettle of Milwaukee Testifies That the Missing Wife Was Christened Rachel.

With twelve new jurors in their seats and the former indictment remedied, rapid progress was made yesterday in the case of Albert August Becker, charged with the murder of his wife, Rachel, otherwise called Theresa. On the opening of Judge Stein's court Assistant State's Attorney Pearson outlined the case for the State.

Mrs. Augusta Schuettle of Milwaukee, a sister of Mrs. Becker, testified that the missing woman had been christened Rachel. Mrs. Lillian Manthey, who lived next door to the Beckers, told of Mrs. Becker's fear that she might meet death at the hands of her husband. Charles Sanna, a milkman, testified that he found Becker scrubbing the floor of the house on the day after his wife's disappearance.

Captain Lavin of the Stock-Yards Station quoted Becker as saying first that his wife had gone to Milwaukee with a man named "Mike," later as admitting that he killed the woman by forcing her into the lake, and afterwards as avowing that the murder had been committed in the house.

George Sutterlin told of Becker's wooing of his daughter, Ida, and the Rev. A. A. Freytag detailed the incidents of the marriage ceremony.

Armstrong, Whitworth & Co. Ask Damages for Alleged Infringement on Patent.

Washington, D. C., July 3.—Sir W. G. Armstrong, Whitworth & Co., limited, of New Castle-on-Tyne, the well-known makers of English ordnance, today filed two suits at law against United States naval ordnance officers for an aggregate of $30,000 damages for an alleged infringement of patent on trunnion bearings for heavy guns. Admiral Charles O'Neil, Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance of the Navy department; Captain Alex. H. McCormick, commandant of the Washington Navy Yard; and Commander Edwin C. Pendleton, Superintendent of the naval gunshops at the yard in this city, are named as defendants.

NEWS OF THEATERS.

Fra Diavolo.

An opera in three acts, by Auber, presented at the Studebaker by the Castle Square Opera company.

THE CAST.

Zerlina	Laura Millard
Fra Diavolo	Reginald Roberts
Beppo	W. G. Stewart
Giacomo	Frank Moulan
Lord Allcash	Charles W. Meyer
Lady Allcash	Bessie Fairbairn
Roberto	Maud Lambert
Matteo	C. P. Fitzroy
Lorenzo	Harry Davies
Francesco	Walter Ware

A decade has passed since "Fra Diavolo" was last presented in Chicago, and the presentation it then received—it was at the old Chicago Museum on the North Side, if memory serves—was anything but satisfactory. The promise of a revival of Auber's delightful work, was among the pleasant statements contained in the Castle Square company's announcement at the commencement of the season, and last night this promise was made good, and made good in highly satisfactory manner.

The performance was a highly creditable one, and before the week is ended bids fair to be among the best productions the hard-working organization at the Studebaker has offered. Of Auber's bright, melodious music it is unnecessary to speak, for although the opera in its entirety comes as a novelty to the majority of amusement patrons, its melodies are familiar to every one by virtue of constant performance as band and orchestral selections. Last night, given in their integrity, they exerted the power that has been theirs for the last seventy years and pleased the opera-goers of today, as they did those of one and two generations ago.

The major portion of the work rests upon the Fra Diavolo of the cast, and last night this rôle was in capable hands. Mr. Roberts makes a dashing and attractive bandit-gallant, lending to the part much of the romantic, and a sufficient suggestion of diablerie. Vocally he seemed somewhat fatigued last night, but won an encore for his singing of "Young Agnes," and in the concerted music, in which he had frequent part, he was reliable and satisfactory as ever. The air and rondo for him at the beginning of the last act was left out—an omission to be regretted—for the number is an effective one. Miss Millard made an attractive Zerlina, singing the Cavatina in the second act unexpectedly well and doing admirably discreet, yet natural, acting in the famed disrobing scene.

Mr. Stewart and Mr. Moulan made good bandits, although the former rather overdid his pathos business in the last act. Mr. Meyer and Miss Fairbairn were satisfactory as Lord and Lady Allcash, and Harry Davies as Lorenzo won a hearty encore for his singing of the song in the last act. A. J. Lynam, who was announced on the program in the part of Matteo, was taken ill shortly before the performance began, and Mr. Fitzroy assumed the rôle.

REJECT DRUG TRUST'S PROFFER

Western Wholesalers Decline to Go into a Combination to Control the Trade of the Country.

Kansas City, Mo., July 3.—[Special.]—To formulate some plan of fighting and if possible evading the grasp of the National Drug company, known as the drug trust, representatives of the leading wholesale drug concerns in and west of Chicago are in session here. Twenty-six concerns in Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Memphis, Louisville, Nashville, Omaha, and Denver are represented in person or by letters binding them to abide by the decision of the meeting. The sessions are being held behind closed doors, but it was given out tonight that the trust proposition had been rejected.

Charles S. Weller of Omaha said before the conference that "the plan is to form a corporation to be known as the National Drug company. It will be composed of all the wholesalers and jobbers. The company would thus have charge of the distribution of drugs. If we were organized as is proposed we could say to the manufacturers: 'You can sign a contract with us to sell your goods through us or we won't handle them at all.' If they refuse then we would open a big central laboratory, manufacture the goods we need, and fight for the survival of the fittest."

["No drug trust will ever get Chicago in its grasp," said a member of the wholesale drug firm of Humiston, Keeling & Co. last night. "The conditions that exist in this jobbing trade make it almost impossible to form a trust that would stick in this city, let alone in the country. A New York promoter has been quite active for several months to bring about a combination or consolidation of the wholesale drug houses of the country. Large cities outside of Chicago may have been represented at a meeting to form a combine, but I think that it will be found that the principal Chicago drug firms are not in the list. The trust scheme has been generally discredited by the Chicago drug trade. Under no circumstances would our firm be a party to any combine."

"Whatever other cities may be doing for a drug trust," said a representative of Morrisson, Plummer & Co., "it is safe to say that it will get little assistance in Chicago."]

DOES NOT GET LAPINER REWARD

Miss Ferriss Returns to Ohio with $100 from Chief Kipley, but No Cash from Gerald's Father.

"I made Miss Ferriss a present of $100 out of my own pocket," said Chief of Police Kipley last night, in speaking of his money transaction with the discoverer of little Gerald Lapiner. "She came to my office in company with her brother this morning and told me that the latter had lost his position because of coming to Chicago to testify in the kidnaping case. She said she had not received one penny reward.

"I said to her: 'You are a good woman and are entitled to every consideration at the hands of the parents of little Gerald and the community in general. The City of Chicago never offered any reward and I am not authorized to pay any. The best I can do for you is to give you $100 of my own money as a slight testimonial of my esteem for you and the humane act you have performed.' I gave her ten $10 bills and that is all there is to it.

"As for the expenses attending the hunt for the missing boy, the City of Chicago has paid them all. Mr. Lappiner never paid one cent of the expenses incurred in sending detectives about the country in search of the boy. All of that was paid out of the police contingent fund.

"I am not in a position to criticise the acts of Mr. Lapiner or express an opinion regarding his dealings with Miss Ferriss. He has passed through a great sorrow, but the woman to whom he owes his subsequent happiness is certainly entitled to every consideration, and it seems to me that money could but feebly express the gratitude of the happy parents."

SEPARATE LODGE IS REFUSED.

Petition of Illinois Scandinavian Good Templars Denied by International Supreme Body.

Toronto, Ont., July 3.—[Special.]—The Supreme Lodge of Independent Order of Good Templars today had a long discussion over the proposal to grant a separate charter to the Scandinavian lodges of Illinois. The Grand Lodge of Illinois was opposed to a separate charter, while the Scandinavian Templars in the State made a strong appeal for a separate lodge. The vote was 75 in favor and 48 against, the motion being lost owing to the lack of the necessary two-thirds.

The appointive officers were announced as follows:

R. W. G. Chaplain—The Rev. F. B. Boyce, New South Wales.
R. W. G. Marshal—John Fox Smith, south Africa.
R. W. G. Deputy Marshal—Charlotte Gray, Germany.
R. W. G. A. Secretary—D. C. Cameron, New Zealand.
R. W. G. G.—P. Svendsen, Norway.
R. W. G. Sentinel—George Irving, Prince Edward Island.
R. W. G. Messenger—Sister E. Lindguist, Sweden.

A motion brought up to refer the request of the Scandinavian lodge of Illinois to the executive was defeated by 44 to 43 votes.

It was decided not to change the title of the International Supreme Lodge from International to Right Worthy Grand Lodge. The next Supreme Lodge will be held in Stockholm, Sweden, in July, 1902.

TAKE STREET CAR LINES.

PRESIDENT SPALDING AND OFFICERS OF NEW COMPANY IN CHARGE.

Directors of Old Corporations Will Resign Next Week — Employes Are Wondering Which of Them Will Lose Their Places — Traction Corporation, It Appears, Is Back of the Effort to Lease the Drainage Canal Power and Not the Diamond Match.

President Jesse Spalding and the other officers of the Chicago Union Traction company took possession yesterday of the North and West Chicago Street railway systems. The old management will not go out of existence until the coming week, when, it is expected, President Yerkes and the directors of the old companies will resign.

President Spalding, who is taking a great deal of interest in the reorganization of the lines, spent most of yesterday at the offices, 444 North Clark street, making a thorough inspection of the cable plant and conferring with his subordinate officers as to the personnel of the main office when it is located down-town.

"I found the North Side plant in splendid condition," said he at his home, 1637 Prairie avenue, last evening. "Everything is running smoothly. I cannot say just how soon we shall consolidate the North and West Side traction system offices under one roof. A few clerks will have to be left on the West Side, anyway, to look after business that cannot conveniently be handled in the main office. Down-town offices for the company have not as yet been selected, but they will be central."

The meeting of the Chicago directorate of the Union Traction company which had been announced was postponed until next Thursday to allow the directors to keep out-of-town Fourth of July engagements.

General Counsel John P. Wilson, who is spending the Fourth at his summer home at Charlevoix, Mich., is expected to reach Chicago tomorrow afternoon.

Clerks, bookkeepers, and other employés of the old companies fear the loss of their positions. The combining under one head of the main lines and branches and feeders also brings with it the centralizing in some convenient locality of the down-town district of the executive offices of the new company. The consolidation will mean certainly the dropping of a number of employés from the pay roll. Just how many will be affected has not yet been decided upon, but it is estimated that 150 men will lose their places. To offset this reduction there will be an increase in the number of motormen and gripmen on the lines where the service is at present inadequate, so that the total number of employés will not be materially reduced.

It is now understood that the men who succeeded in putting through the traction deal are behind the proposition to lease the water power privileges of the drainage canal for ninety-nine years. The name of the Diamond Match company was freely used as the corporation wanting the franchise, but later developments have put the proposition in different colors. Expert opinions have been given to the effect that there is enough water power to generate sufficient electricity to operate all the street car lines in Chicago from this source.

NEWS OF THE RAILWAYS.

SUIT TO PLACE THE "MONON" IN A RECEIVER'S HANDS.

Action Begun in the Federal Circuit Court at Indianapolis in Behalf of the Kentucky National Bank—Fraud Is Alleged—Names of the Defendants—Statistics of the Baltimore and Ohio Receivership—Shipments Last Week.

Suit to place the "Monon" road in a receiver's hands was begun yesterday in the United States Circuit Court at Indianapolis. Colonel St. John Boyle, in behalf of the Kentucky National Bank, made the application. The complaint alleges that the recent reorganization of the "Monon" was brought about for the purpose of preventing the collection or enforcement of the guarantee of $600,000 of Beattyville bonds, and that the decree of sale was obtained by a fraudulent agreement for the purpose of cutting out the debts held by these guarantee bondholders, and that the United States Circuit Court at Indianapolis was misled and deceived in granting the decree. The bill alleges that the sale was wholly unnecessary. The complaint prays, after citing the Supreme Court on the subject, that the decree be set aside and a receiver appointed.

The defendants named in the bill are:

Louisville, New Albany, and Chicago railway company, Farmers' Loan and Trust company, and John H. Barker, trustees; Central Trust company of New York and John H. Stotsenberg, trustees; Central Trust company of New York and James Murdock, trustees; John T. Mills Jr., Frederick P. Olcott, Henry W. Poor, Henry C. Rouse, and the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville railway company.

The present owners of the "Monon" claim that they are in no way responsible for the Beattyville debt, which amounts to about $1,250,000. What is known as the Beattyville road, a short line in Kentucky, was purchased under the Carson régime of the "Monon," and Mr. Carson personally, it is understood, guaranteed the bonded indebtedness of the Beattyville line, which was of no particular value to the "Monon" railway system. The "Monon" is perfectly solvent, but it could not afford to settle the Beattyville claim without serious embarrassment.

Baltimore and Ohio Statistics.

The receivership of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad was remarkable in many ways. Messrs. Cowen and Murray did not follow precedent, but went ahead and placed the property in first-class shape instead of attempting to maintain it in the condition they found it.

During their administration the receivers purchased 15,350 box cars, 6,751 wooden gondola cars, 6,000 pressed steel cars, 310 miscellaneous freight cars, postal, express, and dining-car equipment, at a total cost of $17,000,000. The 216 locomotives cost nearly $2,500,000. The steel rail purchased amounted to 123,000 tons, costing $2,142,132, and there were bought over 3,000,000 cross ties, costing $1,200,000, and 750,000 cubic yards of ballast, amounting to $525,000. The new steel bridges aggregate in value $750,000 and fully as much more was spent in improving the several terminals, erecting new buildings, reducing grades, and changing the alignment. The maintenance of way pay roll or the amount paid directly to men employed in making improvements on the tracks, etc., in three years was nearly $12,000,000.

The total amounts to about $35,000,000, of which about $15,000,000 was secured by the issuance of receivers' certificates, and the rest through car trusts, earnings from the property, and from the reorganization managers. Most of the purchases of equipment and rail were made when material was low in price. Steel rails are worth now from $6 to $9 a ton more than when the receivers made their purchases and locomotives have advanced from $2,000 to $3,000 in price. The equipment alone, if purchased today, would cost $5,000,000 more and the other improvements $1,000,000 more. President Cowen is authority for the statement that the new company intends spending $10,000,000 more in improvements in the next year or two.

Shipments Last Week.

Export and through shipments of flour, grain, and provisions from Chicago to Atlantic seaboard points by all-rail lines last week amounted to 95,157 tons, against 83,764 tons for the week previous and 31,435 tons for the corresponding week last year. The increase in tonnage is due to the large reductions made in export rates last week. Flour shipments last week were 12,032 tons, against 2,357 tons last year; grain, 63,053 tons, against 17,529 tons; provisions, 20,072 tons, against 11,549 tons. The percentages carried by the various roads were as follows: Baltimore and Ohio, 9.05; "Big Four," 10.6; Chicago and Erie, 10.9; Grand Trunk, 4.7; Lake Shore, 23.3; Michigan Central, 14.3; Nickel Plate, 7.3; Pan-Handle, 5.02; Fort Wayne, 8.4; and Wabash, 5.8.

Santa Fe's Kansas City Line.

Kansas City, Mo., July 3.—A story that the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé railway company will build a line from Kansas City to St. Louis is in circulation. The Santa Fé now owns a sixty-mile road running out of St. Louis, known as the St. Louis, Kansas City and Colorado, and the plan is said to be to extend west from the latter's Union, Mo., terminus on the south side of the Missouri River, tapping a country of heavy timber, coal, lead, and zinc, not now reached by railroad.

General Railway Notes.

Owing to the Christian Endeavor meeting at Detroit the railway ticket offices in this city will be open today as usual.

Anthony Sneve has been appointed General Freight Agent of the Colorado Midland railway, vice A. P. Tanner, resigned.

Gross earnings of the Rock Island system for May were $1,629,530, a decrease of $63,743; net income was $502,451, a decrease of $32,474.

Business to Los Angeles on account of the National Educational association convention is not nearly as large as was expected. It now looks as if the total number of tickets sold for that occasion will not exceed 5,000.

The Union Pacific has filed a claim of exemption to Rule No. 4 of the Western Passenger association, which applies to the sale of through party tickets between Colorado and common points of twenty or more, and also from the rules governing the mileage ticket bureau and the interchangeable credit system.

Harvey Middleton, now General Superintendent of Motive Power of the Baltimore and Ohio, will be Mechanical Superintendent in charge of all shops and the construction of and repairs to locomotives and cars. David Lee, Engineer Maintenance of Way, lines west of the Ohio River, will be Superintendent of Maintenance of Way, Transohio division, and D. A. Williams will be Superintendent of Stores.

Charles Kennedy, General Eastern Agent of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific, has been appointed Assistant General Passenger Agent, vice E. E. McLeod, elected chairman of the Western Passenger association. W. J. Leahy, Passenger Agent middle district at Philadelphia, goes to New York to take Mr. Kennedy's place as General Eastern Agent. Hal S. Ray, Passenger Agent at Pittsburg, takes Mr. Leahy's place at Philadelphia.

RECEIVER FOR LOAN SOCIETY.

People's Association of Bloomington Reported to Be in a Bad Condition Financially.

Springfield, Ill., July 3.—[Special.]—Cassius F. Shinkle was today appointed receiver of the People's Building and Loan association of Bloomington. The appointment was made on the application of Andrew Marshall of Indiana, a stockholder. Shinkle qualified as receiver by giving bond in the sum of $50,000. Mr. Shinkle has been acting as secretary of the association. The other officers are, Dr. E. C. Hewett, Normal, President; Dr. H. G. Gabel, Aurora, Vice President; J. A. Miller, Bloomington, Treasurer.

The liabilities of the association are scheduled at $218,551. The assets are estimated at $165,000. For several years the association has made loans in other States and these have not proved profitable. On this account the business continued to decline until the directors decided to place it in the hands of a receiver.

Daniel Doyle Inquest on July 12.

The inquest on the body of Daniel Doyle, who was shot in the saloon of P. Loftus, at 159 Division street, Saturday night, was begun yesterday, and an adjournment until July 12 taken. By that time the East Chicago Avenue police expect to have found all the men who entered the saloon with Doyle. All the men arrested have been released except John Miller. He will be arraigned tomorrow on the charge of assault with intent to kill. Captain Revere does not claim that Miller shot Doyle, but thinks he was in the crowd.

B. WURMSER SHOOTS HIMSELF.

Family Who Lived with Him at Hotel Turner Thinks It Was an Accident.

Bernard Wurmser, a retired capitalist, 80 years of age, killed himself last night at Hotel Turner, Wabash avenue and Thirty-third street. The family thinks his death was accidental. He had been a sufferer for many years, and three months ago underwent an operation at Michael Reece Hospital. Temporary relief followed, but with it came seasons of despondency.

Mr. Wurmser came to Chicago two years ago from Kansas City, where he had resided with a daughter, Mrs. Wertheimer, and a son, A. C. Wurmser. He lived in Kansas City nearly eight years and was well known there. Previous to that time he was in business for twenty or more years in Cincinnati, where he was head of the firm of B. Wurmser & Co., wholesale seed dealers. He had many acquaintances in Cincinnati and New York City.

Since coming to Chicago Mr. Wurmser had been at Hotel Turner with a daughter, Mrs. Sarah Loeb, and a grandson, James I. Loeb, who is a special insurance agent with an office at 189 La Salle street. For some time he had not been so active as usual, but that was seldom remarked. Yesterday late in the afternoon he went to his room. About 7 o'clock his grandson, as was his custom, went up to the room to bring him down to dinner. He knocked on the door, but no response came. He repeated this without getting an answer, and finally went in. He found his grandfather lying near the end of the couch with a bullet hole in the right temple. A pistol was lying near his right hand. It was evident that life had been extinct but a short while.

An inquest will be held this morning at the hotel.

WAS M'CULLAGH MURDERED?

Physician of the St. Louis Editor Requests an Investigation of the Circumstances of His Death.

St. Louis, Mo., July 3.—[Special.]—Charles H. Hughes, the physician who attended Editor Joseph McCullagh of the Globe-Democrat, wrote a long letter to Chief of Police Campbell today asking that an investigation be made of McCullagh's death, which occurred on Jan. 31, 1896. McCullagh's body was found in the yard underneath his window. Theories of suicide and accident were advanced, but the mystery never was solved.

Dr. Hughes states that the position in which the body was found, the manner in which it struck the wall opposite the window, the injuries on the head, and other circumstances make the murder theory plausible enough if a motive can be furnished. He further suggests McCullagh was greatly attached to his adopted daughter, Gladys, whom he promised frequently to provide for well. He died without leaving a will. "Could any prospective heir," asks Hughes, "have been so wickedly interested in the death of McCullagh without his leaving a will as to have brought about his death intestate?"

Chief Campbell probably will begin an investigation, but is not prepared to say what form it will take.

LEW WALLACE FOR M'KINLEY.

Is the President's Friend, but Thinks He Should Find an Attorney General Outside New Jersey.

Crawfordsville, Ind., July 3.—[Special.]—General Lew Wallace is desirous that no one gather from his recent interview on trusts that he is antagonistic to President McKinley. He today made the following statement of his feeling toward the President:

"I am President McKinley's friend. As such I helped give him the solid vote of Indiana in the St. Louis convention; as such his Electors had my vote at the polls; as such I have criticised him in connection with the multiplication of trusts. That is a question which he cannot, as a candidate for reelection, afford to overlook. In my judgment, the best thing he can presently do is to find an Attorney General of capacity to help him in that investigation, and not to find him in New Jersey."

EXPLORING PARTY MASSACRED.

Three Americans, Three Englishmen, and Their Companions Reported Murdered by Indians in Brazil.

Asheville, N. C., July 3.—A family here has received from the Secretary of State at Washington intelligence of the massacre by Indians of the persons composing the expedition ascending the Xingu River in the interior of Brazil the first of the year. The expedition was headed by W. E. Williamson Jr. of Asheville, who was employed by an American company in the rubber industry. There were three Americans and three Englishmen in the party and the remainder are supposed to have been Brazilians. The name of only one other of the Americans is given, and it is Brownly, a native of California. The Secretary of State received his information from the representative of the Belgian government in New York, who received a letter from a Belgian written from Cujaba, Brazil, March 23.

ORGANIZE WESTERN DIVISION.

Members of the Union of Swedish Singers of America Elect Officers and Plan Festival.

The Western division of the Union of Swedish Singers of America was organized yesterday at a conference of representatives of various singing societies of the Western States held at the clubhouse of the Swedish Glee club of Chicago. Tentative plans for a big song festival at Rockford, Ill., next year were drafted. The following officers were elected:

President—F. Shelain, Rockford.
Vice Presidents—Fred Franzen, H. Hagg, Chicago.
Corresponding Secretary—Charles Lonnerblad, Chicago.
Treasurer—Frank Long, Rockford.

Elmer Hollem of Rockford was named as Secretary of the Festival committee.

KAPPA ALPHA IN CONVENTION.

College Fraternity Begins Its Twentieth Biennial Session in Lexington, Ky.

Lexington, Ky., July 3.—[Special.]—The Kappa Alpha fraternity's twentieth biennial convention met here today. One hundred and fifty delegates are present. Knight Commander Hardiman of Macon, Ga., called the convention to order. Charles W. Miller delivered the address of welcome. Commander Hardiman made the response. There was a ball tonight. A series of entertainments has been planned for the delegates.

PLAN OF CURRENCY COMMITTEE

Members Gather at Narragansett Pier to Confer on Money Problem.

Narragansett Pier, R. I., July 3.—Four members of the Senate Finance committee, empowered by Congress to sit during the recess for a conference on the currency question, have arrived and expect to begin their deliberations tomorrow. Those already here are Senators Thomas G. Platt of New York, J. C. Burrows of Michigan, W. D. Allison of Iowa, and Nelson Aldrich of Rhode Island. The party has secured cottages at Little Casino.

SKIRMISH WITH TRACKLAYERS.

City Authorities of Waukegan Have More Trouble Over Route of Elgin, Joliet and Eastern.

Waukegan, Ill., July 3.—[Special.]—The city authorities had another skirmish with the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern tracklayers tonight, and a short stretch of newly laid track on the lake front was torn up. The track was not laid where the company had the right of way, but where they want to lay it. The city will change the route when the railroad gives a satisfactory deed to a piece of land.

INSURANCE TAX IS LIGHT.

MORE THAN HALF THE COMPANIES SCHEDULE EXCESS OF LOSSES.

They Claim Exemption of Everything but Their Office Furniture from Assessment—South Town Books Will Be Delivered to the Board of Review Monday—Estimated That the Revenue Will Be Two and One-Half Times as Large as Last Year.

If the schedules of personal property of the insurance companies doing business in Chicago are approved by the Board of Review as passed upon by the Board of Assessors, less than half of the companies will pay taxes on anything but their office furniture. Of 200 of the wealthiest companies 123 report that their losses for the year ending April 30 are in excess of their profits, and that therefore they are exempt from taxes on the property represented in their Chicago business.

The insurance companies are required by the new law to pay taxes on one-fifth of their net receipts. They must make a sworn statement of their gross premiums, losses paid in Cook County, and net receipts. There is no provision made in the schedule for net losses, and the Assessors are in doubt as to how to report net losses to the Board of Review.

The Greenwich Insurance company of New York reports that its Chicago office was run during the year at a loss of $6,100. The American Insurance company of Baltimore says it lost $7,890. The Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance company of Liverpool reports net taxable receipts at $35,460.

Returns of Insurance Companies.

The following schedule returns of insurance companies for their business done in Cook County for the year ending April 30 are picked at random:

Adding the Penalty.

The personal property of John R. Walsh who failed to file a schedule, has been valued by the Assessors, and, with a penalty of 50 per cent added, has been fixed at $100,000. Mayor Harrison scheduled his property at $5,500. W. D. Kerfoot scheduled $2,775. The personal property of Norman B. Ream, who failed to schedule, has been arbitrarily valued and increased 50 per cent, the total amount being $750,000. Last year Mr. Ream payed a tax on $75,000 of personal property. The personal property of P. D. Armour and G. F. Swift, who have not filed schedules, has not yet been assessed. Arbuckle Bros., who paid on a valuation of $30,000 last year, schedule $175,000 worth of personal property this year.

The Board of Review will begin revision of personal property schedules on Monday at 9 o'clock. The board anticipates that the first cases it will be called upon to hear will be those of wealthy persons who object to the imposition of the 50 per cent penalty.

South Town Books on Monday.

The complete books of the South Town will be received by the Board of Review on Monday. It was estimated by one of the clerks that the total fair cash value of personal property of the South Town as shown by the schedules would be five times as much as last year, when it was approximately $139,278,740. This would increase the revenue 2½ times, or from $167,132 to $417,836, a net increase of $250,702.

If John C. Richberg, attorney for the Board of Assessors, is sustained in his opinion, all church parsonages will be subject to taxation.

ILLUMINATION AT PIKE'S PEAK.

Red Fire Display Visible for Two Hundred Miles—Preparing to Welcome Volunteers.

Pike's Peak, Colo., July 3.—[Special.]—The public here had a Fourth of July celebration tonight that was intended as a preliminary for a gorgeous illumination on the return of the First Colorado from Manila. A ton of red fire had been hauled to the summit of the peak, and after waiting for storms that had persistently clung to the Peak all day to clear away, the management found a good opportunity and touched off the stock of fire.

An operator kept in communication with Denver and Cheyenne, 70 and 200 miles away, respectively, and it was the intention to add to the fuel if the fire was not visible at those points. With the first flare up the news was flashed from Denver that the blaze was distinctly apparent. Cheyenne reported that there was a reflection from the clouds as though an immense forest fire was raging in the south.

It is the intention to illuminate Pike's Peak, Grey's Peak, and the Uncompaghre when the troops return, so as to communicate the fact to the entire State.

OFFICER TO END LONG CHASE.

Goes to Honolulu to Bring Back Alleged Embezzler Who Eluded Him in Europe.

San Francisco, Cal., July 3.—[Special.]—The last outbound steamer for Honolulu had among its passengers John W. Reynolds, a private detective, who has traveled over Europe in search of James N. Taggart, who in 1887 was a trusted employé of the Union Trust company of Philadelphia, and who is charged with embezzling $30,000. He fled to Europe in company with a 16-year-old girl, deserting his wife and two children. In 1890 the fugitive returned to America under the alias of James T. Stasker, and in Port Townsend, Wash., married a Miss Kelley, by whom he has a family of several children. In 1892 he went to Honolulu, and now that the islands belong to the United States he can be extradited. He was recognized there by a former friend, who informed the authorities in this country.

FIGHT IN A KENTUCKY CHURCH.

Renewal of the Difficulty at Bellevue Results in Victory for the Harding Faction.

Cincinnati, O., July 3.—[Special.]—At the Bellevue (Ky.) Christian Church on Sunday morning there was a free-for-all fight. The Rev. R. D. Harding had been dismissed from the church as pastor and member, but for some time he has continued to hold services. On Sunday morning the anti-Hardings arrived first, and began services by psalm-singing. Professor David H. Davies, the leader of the antis, had announced "Hymn 830," when the Rev. Mr. Harding arrived and in a loud voice announced "Hymn 741." The choir and anti-Hardings sang the first hymn, while the Hardingites shouted out the other. For a few minutes the fighting was general, but when the police arrived Harding had won and was going on with the services.

STONE RESORTS TO WEAPONS.

Acting Chairman of Democratic Committee Draws His Knife on a Reporter.

St. Louis, Mo., July 3.—[Special.]—Former Governor William J. Stone, now temporary chairman of the Democratic National committee, drew a knife, and, it is alleged, tried to draw a revolver on a reporter in his office today, after an interview concerning Mr. Stone's management of the Mullanphy Bank receivership.

The reporter asked Mr. Stone a series of questions on the subject of the sale of 640 shares of Farmers' Elevator stock included in the assets, among them being if he had not appraised these shares at $15 each when they were at the time worth $25 in the market. Mr. Stone became indignant and asked what the reporter was trying to show. The young man replied he intended to learn if $160,000 could not have been saved for the stockholders.

Mr. Stone ordered the reporter out of the office and, drawing his knife, pursued him down the hall, until stopped by his partner, G. S. Hoss. There was quite a struggle before Mr. Stone was calmed.

In reference to the affair ex-Governor Stone said later: "I regret much that I lost my temper. The reporter's questions incensed me and caused me to act as I did. I first struck him and them ejected him from the office. While I admit drawing a knife I deny that I intended to shoot, as I never carry a pistol, and had none this morning."

SAMOA CHIEFS MAKE PEACE.

Meet on Transport Badger and Shake Hands—Government Moving Smoothly.

Apia, Samoan Islands, June 28, via Auckland, N. Z., July 3.—The Mataafan chiefs met the Malietoan chiefs yesterday on board the United States transport Badger in the presence of the international commissioners, shook hands, and made peace.

A meeting has been arranged for Malietoa Tanus and Mataafa with the commissioners. Peace is thus finally assured between the chieftains and their followers and both factions have returned to their villages on friendly terms, awaiting action by the powers.

In the meantime the government is vested in the three Consuls, two of whom can act in all cases where unanimity is not required by the treaty. This arrangement is acceptable to all parties.

Dr. Wilhelm Solf is exercising his office as President of the Municipality of Apia, and the friction with him and with the natives is at an end.

The German protected cruiser Cormoran has arrived, and the Falke has gone to Sydney, N. S. W.

The petition for the injunction was filed by C. H. Bosworth, receiver of the coal company. The injunction is not confined to the striking miners alone, but is general, and pertains to all citizens.

Armed with the injunction Chief Deputy United States Marshal Watts, accompanied by Deputies Wier, Dowell, Spring, Williams, and Eaton, has gone to Carterville to enforce the injunction.

TUMULT IN FRENCH CHAMBER.

Effort to Force Millerand to a Declaration Compromised by Promise to Explain Later.

Paris, July 3.—In the Chamber of Deputies today M. Charles Ferry, Republican, raised a hornet's nest by moving a resolution in connection with the workmen's accident bill, evidently with the intention of drawing out M. Millerand, Minister of Commerce and Radical Socialist.

A great uproar immediately broke out, and the President of the Chamber, M. Deschanel, suspended the sitting.

When the session was resumed, M. Deschanel announced that M. Millerand had agreed to explain matters tomorrow.

BANKER MAGILL IS FINED

FORMER HEAD OF AVENUE SAVINGS INSTITUTION FOUND GUILTY.

Judge Burke Decides the Case, in Which He Was Charged with Receiving a Deposit from Mrs. Carrie Manlove When Insolvent—Other Indictments Pending — Prisoner's Father-in-Law Pays $4,551 for His Freedom.

George L. Magill, formerly President of the Avenue Savings Bank, was adjudged guilty yesterday by Judge Burke in the Circuit Court of receiving deposits in his bank when he knew it was insolvent. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $4,551 or serve eight years in the bridewell. Later he was arraigned on fourteen other indictments, whereupon Frank Walker, his lawyer, abandoned the case. He found another lawyer, then Lawyer Walker came back to him. Mr. Walker entered a motion for a new trial, which immediately was overruled; then entered a motion for arrest of judgment, which also was immediately overruled. Next a date was set for arguing a bill of exceptions; then Lawyer Walker withdrew from the case once more. Lawyer Nichols, Mr. Magill's new lawyer, made heroic efforts to avert the consequences of the sentence, but failed. Ex-Banker Magill was turned over to the bailiffs and locked up in jail to await the coming of the wagon that would haul him off to the bridewell unless somebody came to pay the fine, which, with costs, amounted to $4,551. Then ex-City Controller O. D. Wetherell, his father-in-law, came and paid the fine and he was free again.

History of the Bank.

It was a busy day for ex-Banker Magill. The Avenue Savings Bank, which was located at Thirty-first street and Indiana avenue, was the private property of Mr. Magill. It was established by his father-in-law, ex-Controller Wetherell, in 1890. The next year Magill took charge of the bank and on Aug. 26, 1896, the bank failed. It owed $174,000 and had nominal assets of $188,000. The assets since have realized $16,000.

Magill was indicted for receiving deposits while the bank was insolvent. The indictment tried yesterday was one in which he was charged with receiving from Mrs. Carrie Manlove, five days before the bank doors were closed, a deposit of $2,252. A jury was waived in the case and Judge Burke heard the evidence and delivered sentence.

Assistant State's Attorney Olson, who tried the case for the State, said he was confident that when Magill is next tried he will be sent to the penitentiary. The case decided was a test, and it demonstrated, he said, that the defense of the ex-banker is insufficient.

Walker Abandons the Case.

The abandonment of the case by Attorney Walker was a sensational feature of the court procedure. Mr. Walker declared that justice no longer was hovering about the court with a pair of scales. It was a moment of perturbation for Mr. Magill. The clerk kept on reading the arraignments—Mr. Magill answering "not guilty" to each—until he had read the fourteen. The last answer made by Mr. Magill was in an angry tone.

An effort was made by the prisoner to compromise the remaining cases. He was willing to plead guilty to all of them, he said, provided he were fined twice the amount of the sum involved in each indictment and let go without a sentence of imprisonment. Mr. Olson refused to agree to that. He said the charges were sufficient to warrant a sentence in the penitentiary, and he would not be satisfied with anything less for Magill.

More Cases to Be Tried.

The cases still pending against Magill, with the amounts he is alleged to have received after insolvency and the names of the depositors, are:

Alman M. Cobb	$93	Benjamin Hamford	110
Nathan C. Dow	400	E. H. Dyer	97

B. F. Michael	215	William Krug	1,468

Magill will be called for trial next week on the case of William Krug.

INSURANCE AFFAIRS.

Attorney Thomas Bates, representing several prominent insurance companies, will go to Missouri tomorrow night to meet Superintendent of Insurance Orear and Attorney General Crow, regarding the decision rendered by the Supreme court on Friday. Mr. Bates has been asked independently by several of the managers to confer with the Missouri State officials, and his trip does not represent a combined effort on the part of the underwriters to meet the situation. Mr. Bates said yesterday that the outlook was unfavorable for the companies. It is hoped that a compromise may be effected by the companies agreeing to remain outside all combinations and social clubs in Missouri.

Private advices from St. Louis show that the judgment is final. It is generally understood, however, that the State officials will not take any action towards forcing the companies out till the expiration of the customary ten days. In the meantime all the companies are still writing in Missouri. Some of the agents have written to their managers for instructions, and they have been notified to continue issuing policies until definite action is taken by the State authorities. In several cases agents have shown fear that they would be prosecuted on the charge of writing for an unauthorized company, but the understanding that the writ of ouster will not take effect until the ten days have elapsed has dispelled their doubts.

No steps towards concerted action have been taken. A movement probably will be started for a meeting, to take place the latter part of the week. Pending active steps, informal conferences are being held.

A St. Louis paper says: "There is confidence that the authorities will deal leniently with the companies, and that they will be relicensed and allowed to continue their business without interference. They will, however, have to keep themselves clear of pools and other entangling alliances. If the case is not appealed, it is expected that the companies will be allowed to pay the costs in the suit, including the expenses of the Attorney General in taking testimony, and then they will be granted new licenses."

Frederick L. Morrell has been appointed manager for the Manhattan Life Insurance company in Chicago and northern Illinois, succeeding W. N. Sattley. Mr. Morrell has just returned from New York, where he has been in conference with President Henry B. Stone, and his appointment takes effect at once. He was formerly with the Franklin Life of Springfield, and while with this company traveled over the State of Illinois, so he is well posted on the territory he assumes. Mr. De Mott, who has been in charge of the office lately, will return to New York.

The name of A. C. Bartlett of Hibbard, Spencer & Bartlett has been added to the list of the resident directors of the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance company. Mr. Bartlett succeeds Henry W. King, who died last year, and will act on the board, together with Ezra J. Warner and Levi Z. Leiter. The selection was made by Messrs. Warner and Leiter, on whom it reflects credit. Of the two older members of the board Mr. Leiter alone has been a director since the formation of the board. Mr. Warner succeeded George Armour on his death.

Insurance on the plant of the Western Paper Stock company was held to the amount of $50,000. Of this sum $20,500 was on the building, as follows:

Northwestern National Fire Insurance	$9,000
Continental Fire Insurance	5,000
Germania Fire Insurance	4,000
Liverpool and London and Globe	1,500
Imperial Fire Insurance	1,000
Total	$20,500

The insurance on the stock amounted to between $10,000 and $12,000, in eight or ten companies.

DATE HINGES ON EXTRAS.

DRAINAGE TRUSTEES TO DECIDE TOMORROW ON CANAL OPENING.

Contractors Estimate It Will Cost Nearly $200,000 Additional to Finish the Channel by December on Account of Rush Work—Views of Members of the Board—Water Power Inquiry—Discuss a Mayor Pro Tem.—Asks Ordinance for Stadium Loops.

At the meeting tomorrow the Drainage Trustees will decide whether the canal is to be finished next December or whether the opening will be postponed until spring. It is altogether a matter of money, and if the work is to be completed this fall will require something like $200,000 extra.

The whole matter was gone over yesterday by the Engineering committee of the Drainage board. McArthur Bros., contractors for the Campbell avenue bridge, announced that if they were to finish their work by December they would charge a bonus of $140,000, as they would have to work day and night, with a necessity for extra machinery and higher wages for night work. McGrimith & McDermott, contractors for the bypass at Van Buren street, made a demand for $24,000 extra if they were to finish by December. They offered to sell their machinery and material to the board at cost and let it finish the work.

Heidmeir & Neu, section 17, are now working day and night, and say they will be through in November. Gahan & Byrne, section 18, have a clause in their contract compelling them to work nights as well as days if necessary, and Mr. Gahan said he had no doubt his firm would be through before December.

The Canal Commissioners claimed the work being done on the dam at Joliet should be stopped, as they want limestone cement instead of granite. Engineer Randolph said he was following the instructions of the court, and ordered the work to go on.

Views of Trustees.

On the question whether the board should pay the extra money in order to get the work done this year various members expressed themselves as follows:

PRESIDENT BOLDENWECK—We will have the canal finished in December, if such a thing is possible, and I believe it is. I never will vote to give the contractors one dollar more than the actual cost of the additional expense entailed by night work.

TRUSTEE KELLY—The conservative members of the board are in favor of settling with the contractors, and finishing the ditch with all possible haste. They fear that we may have trouble with Congress unless the water is turned into the canal by Dec. 1. I will vote for the district's best interests.

TRUSTEE BRADEN—The contractors will be required to go to great additional expense to finish the canal in accordance with our plan, and would be entitled to more money than if allowed to complete it in their own time. I would not give the contractors any more than it is worth.

TRUSTEE JONES—If the channel is to be ready in December, night work is an absolute necessity, and some kind of a settlement with the contractors must be made.

Water Power Inquiry.

An inquiry in regard to water power was received from the Tamarack Mining company of Boston. The inquiry was signed by G. M. Hyams and read:

Will you kindly let me know where I can obtain some information in regard to the proposition for leasing water power on the drainage canal. Our companies are thinking of establishing a large electrolytic refining plant for all our copper companies, and will require a large amount of power. It has occurred to me that it is well worth our consideration to take up the development of power along the drainage canal.

Chief Engineer Randolph sent the company a mass of data, with an invitation to submit a bid when the other proposals are received on Aug. 23.

Discuss Mayor Pro Tem.

Some of the Aldermen during the day discussed informally a proposal to elect at Thursday's meeting of the Council a Mayor pro tem., to act while Mayor Harrison is on his vacation. It has been the habit of the present Mayor, as of others before him, to name either the Controller, Commissioner of Public Works, or Corporation Counsel as Acting Mayor during his absence from the city. The law on the question is as follows:

During the temporary absence or disability of the Mayor, the City Council shall elect one of its number to act as Mayor pro tem, who, during such absence or disability, shall possess the powers of Mayor.

The Alderman suggested for the position, should a Mayor pro tem. be elected, was William Jackson of the Fourth Ward. Alderman Jackson is a Republican, but he possesses the confidence of the better class of Aldermen of both parties, and, it is claimed, could secure the votes of Democrats as well as Republicans.

Mayor Harrison, when he heard the story, made inquiries as to the likelihood of any such action being taken. The best opinion, however, is that nothing more than talk will come of the matter.

Asks for Loop Ordinance.

Alderman Coughlin, as chairman of the Council committee named to further the plans for the fall festival, called on Corporation Counsel Walker to ask him to draft an ordinance for two temporary street car loops on the North Side, to give better access to the proposed stadium. The plans are for an extension of the trolley line in Indiana street east from State street to the Lake Shore drive, north just west of the drive to Ontario street, west in Ontario to Fairbank's court, and south in Fairbank's court to Indiana street. The other is to be east in Chicago avenue to the Lake Shore drive, south to Ontario street, west to Fairbank's court, and north to Chicago avenue.

The ordinance also will call for the closing of Ohio street east of Fairbank's court during the two years the stadium is to remain standing and for street car privileges to hold for the same time. The ordinance will be presented to the Council on Thursday.

County Board Items.

President Irwin of the County board has named W. P. McGibbon a member of the advisory medical board of the County Hospital. The nomination was confirmed.

Superintendent of Public Service Healy has been instructed to proceed with the work of removing the Probate Court to the Criminal Court Building.

Other City Hall News.

The recount of the votes cast in the Twentieth Ward at the last election showed Alderman Alwart, whom the official count gave a plurality of 9, to be defeated, and Amos Pettibone, his Republican opponent, elected by a plurality of 36. With Mr. Pettibone seated the Council will stand thirty-five Republicans to thirty-two Democrats. It also is considered likely the recount in the Tenth Ward will show Novak, the Republican candidate, elected over Alderman Zimmer, the sitting member.

Dr. Spalding, chief medical inspector, already is receiving applications from physicians who wish to take part in the volunteer work of visiting the poorer districts to instruct mothers as to the proper care of infants to guard against disease.

Pending a decision by Judge Clifford of the injunction suit restraining the Rogers Park Waterworks company from collecting its old rates, a stipulation has been entered that the company shall accept the city's rates.

The Autostage company was incorporated at Springfield, with a capital of $10,000. The incorporators are Walter Peacock, Louis Gottschalk, and Gustave Franzen.

OWEN F. ALDIS GIVES FEES.

Sends to the Boys' School at the County Jail the $24 He Received for Grand Jury Service.

Owen F. Aldis, who served as a member of the June grand jury, has sent his check for $24, the amount he received as juror's fees, to the boys' school at the Cook County Jail. Mr. Aldis was chairman of the committee appointed to visit the jail and report on its condition. The members of the committee became particularly interested in the boys' department and the school connected with it. Mr. Aldis stipulated that his gift was to be used for the purchase of books and supplies for the school.

AYLESWORTH DIVORCE SUIT ON.

Plaintiff Tells Her Story to the Court—Mrs. E. E. Coleman Files a Bill for Separation.

Mrs. Arozina L. Aylesworth, formerly Miss Tobey, gave testimony in her suit for divorce against William A. Aylesworth Jr., whom she married on March 3, 1897. Two weeks after the ceremony, Mrs. Aylesworth said, her husband began to drink heavily and stay away from home. When she remonstrated with him, she said, he threw her down and choked her. Witness said that several times he threw heavy missiles at her head and hurt her. Another time, she said, he struck her on the nose with the heel of an old shoe, leaving her face in an unpresentable condition for a week. She charged him also with infidelity.

James R. Mills, a saloonkeeper at 71 Thirty-first street, was the only other witness. When asked if defendant was what he called a habitual drunkard he replied that Aylesworth was not, but that he had seen defendant under the influence of liquor about 500 times. Asked if he had ever seen defendant with other women than his wife, witness replied that defendant had entered his saloon with about 500 different women. The court ordered the testimony written up.

Both parties to the suit are well known on the South Side. They resided at the Chicago Beach Hotel and at 4441 Prairie avenue.

Egbert E. Coleman, diamond broker at 1217 Champlain Building, has been sued for divorce by Mrs. Cora L. Coleman, whom he married in August, 1878. They separated in 1893. Mrs. Coleman declares he left her for Mrs. Grace Caswell, who, she says, he introduces as his wife. Mr. Coleman says he has been divorced from plaintiff in Grundy County.

MRS. DOYLE HELD FOR MURDER.

Detective Peyton Suspended Pending Investigation of the Shooting of the Woman's Husband.

Fanny Doyle was held to the grand jury by the Coroner's jury yesterday, charged with the murder of her husband, Richard C. Doyle. Detective Anthony Peyton, whose revolver Mrs. Doyle took from his pocket to do the shooting, has been suspended from the police force by Inspector Heidelmeier.

Mrs. Doyle refused to make any statement to the Coroner's jury. Her signed statement made to the police was read to the jurors. In this she admits shooting Doyle at Illinois street and La Salle avenue at 4 o'clock Sunday morning.

Peyton told the jury that he was out to arrest a man; that he met the Doyle woman and asked her about the man he wanted. She said he might be in a saloon on La Salle avenue. He started for the saloon with her. They met Doyle, and the quarrel and shooting followed.

In speaking of Peyton, Inspector Heidelmeier said: "There is no doubt that Peyton's condition was not what it should have been. He has been a good officer, and I never had a complaint of his conduct before."

COLONIAL OFFICIALS CONFER.

Enforcement of Bait Act Causes Retaliation by French on Newfoundland Coast.

St. Johns, N. F., July 3.—Now that the bait act is being strictly enforced by the colonial authorities against the French the latter are retaliating by driving Newfoundland fishing vessels out of the harbors along the treaty coast.

The colonial authorities had their first conference this morning with the British and French Commodores, Sir Hugh MacCallum, the Governor, being present, and another will be held tomorrow.

The result of these deliberations is not likely to be made known here until it has been communicated for approval to Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, Imperial Secretary of State for the Colonies.

The Newfoundland special service vessel Columbine is expected to arrive here this evening.

COYNE GETS RULINGS ON LAW.

Stamps Required on Bonds of Distillers and Brewers—Special Tax on Summer Concert Halls.

Collector of Internal Revenue Coyne has received from the department at Washington notice that stamps are required on bonds of distillers, brewers, and other manufacturers. When these bonds are given in duplicate or triplicate only the original must be stamped. Another original ruling is to the effect that a special tax of $10 only is required to be paid for the hall in the grounds of a summer resort where performances are given from time to time during the summer season. Such halls do not come under the provision of the revenue law, which requires a special tax for regular concert halls.

BOURGOGNE ANNIVERSARY SUIT

W. C. Perry of Chicago Asks $5,400 for Loss of His Wife and Her Effects.

One year ago today the steamship La Bourgogne was lost, with hundreds of passengers, in the Atlantic, and on the first anniversary of the disaster W. C. Perry of this city has brought suit in the United States Circuit Court to recover $3,200 damages for the loss of personal effects of his wife and four children, who were lost with the ship. He already has a suit pending for damages for the lives of his family.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Opposed to Lynchings.

Chicago, July 2.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—According to an interview published in "The Sunday Tribune" Chief of Police Nicholson of Hinsdale says that Cody's suicide saved that suburb "from the disgrace of a lynching." That "when it became known that he had murdered his own wife while she was holding their little baby in her arms, the people were not to be restrained if they had got their hands on him alive and well. As it was, the people hung around the police station watching to assure themselves that he would never recover, before they were contented to go home, and many of them staid there to see him breathe his last."

Again, the account of the crime written by "The Tribune's" representative says: "The extraordinary brutality of his crime had so incensed the village people that no one doubts now they would have made short work of him if he had not taken his own life."

Here we have the chief guardian of the law virtually condoning a threatened assault against the peace and dignity of the community and the State. The justification seems to be in the fact that a single individual had committed a cold-blooded murder, therefore an entire village was called upon to do the same, and public sentiment, as represented by the law, stood ready to condone this openly proposed lynching. It would thus seem that the only reason Illinois was not again disgraced by the prevalence of lynch law was because Chief Nicholson intervened. Chief Nicholson had no word to say in this interview as to the protection he provided for the prisoner to prevent the threatened outbreak, as is his sworn duty, but he was sure the "people were not to be restrained" had Cody not died, and "no one doubts now they would have made short work of him had he not taken his own life."

If the people are to be Judge, jury, and executioner all rolled into one, why maintain our expensive system of jurisprudence, and why should the people tax themselves to keep an army of police, whose ostensible duty is to suppress lawlessness, guard the peace, and arrest murderers, whether individuals or mobs? Better abolish the whole business at once if we believe the mob is the best conservator of law and order.

Cody was a poor man, and that one fact assures us that the money power which so often defeats the ends of justice would not have been exerted in his behalf. There is little doubt but that he would have swung for his crime. Why then should the guardians of the law and the forces which make for civilization needlessly encourage a resort to barbarism and foster the bloodthirsty and brutal in our natures. It is because of such encouragement that this great country of ours, alone among nations, has the blot of lynching on its escutcheon. Its newspapers either incite or encourage the gathering of crowds to see human beings burned alive with indescribable torture, and the officers of the law either take a hand or stand idly by while such scenes are enacted.

This has been carried to such an excess that it is now the duty of every civilized and moral influence to sternly demand that such things be condemned and reprobated until lynching and torture of criminals or supposed criminals be known no more in this our beloved country.

WOMEN'S BOOTS—In Tan Vici Kid, hand turned, with kid and vesting tops, lace and button, including hundreds of pairs of our regular $3.00 and $3.50 lines, sizes missing in some styles, but a complete line of sizes in the styles combined; you are sure to get your fit, and in so doing secure a regular $3.00 or $3.50 boot at $1.95

Sailor Hats, 50c.

THESE are the very best "Rough-and-Readys" the art has produced. You pay $4 for exactly the same quality and workmanship plus a widely advertised name. Or you invest $1 in an "annual reduction sale" article that is not as good. These Sailors have silk bands, black or any color. When they were manufactured these hats were meant to sell at $2.50, or as much higher as the dealer chose to mark them; but a cold, backward spring curtailed the demand and demoralized the trade to such an extent that manufacturers were willing to close out their stocks at almost any price. You will be the gainer when you buy one (or several) of these pretty Rough-and-Readys at 50c

75c SAILOR HATS, 25c—These are very pretty Rough-and-Readys, not so carefully made as the line described above, but full 75c values and made to sell at that price. We have several hundred dozens more that we will sell at 25c

ENGLISH SPLIT STRAW HATS—Very best braid, during the clearing sale $1.95

Ginghams, Dimities, Organdies, Seasonable 25c to 35c goods for 12½c

THIS sale is still in full swing. The opportunity is an extraordinary one to secure choice summer fabrics in the height of season at half or third their usual prices. We offer:

Sheer crisp Organdies, light and dark grounds, large and small floral designs—goods that have always sold at from 25c to 30c—reduced for this sale to 12½c

GINGHAMS—Choice plain and corded weaves that generally sell at 20c, 25c and 30c for 12½c

DIMITIES—We offer 50 pieces more of the same real imported Irish fabrics that created such a stir last Monday—choice 25c and 30c fabrics in light and medium colorings—reduced to 12½c

Organdie de Soie—All silk weft, nothing handsomer in a sheer crisp summer fabric to be found, white grounds with handsome oriental designs and colorings—this fabric has never been sold less than 35c—we have just 40 pcs., so to close them with a rush we mark them 15c

After Inventory Silk Clearing, 50c.

All gathered together into one grand collection of seasonable merchandise at 50% reduction.
